RATTRAY AND NEW RATTRAY.

RATTRAY is a parish and village. The latter pleasant, but irregular in its buildings, is 58 miles N. from Perth, 13 N. E. from Dunkeld, and 4 W. from Alyth; situated on the north-eastern part of the county, and built mainly on the declivity of a hill. The principal occupation of both sexes of the inhabitants consists in the spinning of flax and weaving of coarse linens. To the south-east, on a rising ground called the Castle-hill, remains the vestiges of the ancient Castle of Rattray; and about two miles north of the village stands Craig Hall, on a rock that rises one hundred feet perpendicularly. The small but neat village of NEW RATTRAY is of modern erection; this is connected with Blairgowrie by a bridge of four arches crossing the Ericht, on each bank of which river are flax spinning mills, employing a great number of persons, both male and female. The places of worship are a handsome church built in 1820, and a Free church. The parish of Rattray lies on the left bank of the river Ericht, and is bounded by Bendochy on the east, and on the opposite side of the river by Blairgowrie; it extends four miles in length by two in breadth; the surface is much diversified—the land on the banks of the river being arable and fertile, while the higher grounds are only suited for pasture. Fairs are held on the first Fridays in April and August.

POST OFFICE, RATTRAY, Alexander Robertson, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from BLAIRGOWRIE), at nine and a quarter before twelve every morning; and are despatched in the morning at ten minutes past seven, and afternoon at a quarter-past three.

Post Office, NEW RATTRAY, George Sidey, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from BLAIRGOWRIE), at twenty minutes past eight and eleven morning; and are despatched at twenty minutes past seven in the morning, and afternoon at twenty-five minutes past three.

SCONE,

WITH THE PARISHES OF CORGILL, COLLACE, KINFAUNS, KILSPINDIE, AND ST MARTINS.

SCONE is a parish lying on the left bank of the Tay, opposite the parishes of Redgorton and Perth—the village sometimes called NEW SCONE, is about two miles N.E. from Perth, and with the palace, occupies a retiring part of the grounds which rise from the Tay, and command an outlook upon the river and the vale of Perth. This place is worthy of notice principally on account of its ancient palace, for ages the residence of the early Scottish monarchs, the place of their coronation, and the scene of many important and brilliant events. In this vicinage formerly stood an abbey also, founded by Alexander I, in the year 1114. Some historians have described Scone as the ancient capital of the Picts; it certainly, however, was the chief seat of Scottish royalty as far back as the time of Kenneth II. In the church of the abbey just mentioned was preserved the famous stone (brought from Ireland, according to some writers, by Fergus I), which was used as the coronation seat, and upon which all the successive Scottish kings were crowned till the calamitous days of John Baliol, when Edward I carried it to England, where it continues to form one of the appendages to regality in Westminster Abbey; the last monarch crowded at Scone was Charles II, January 1st, 1651, when on his expedition into this kingdom. On the site of the ancient palace an elegant new edifice has been raised, as a seat of the Earl of Mansfield—pleasantly seated on an extensive lawn sloping gently to the Tay, and surrounded by large and umbrageous plantations. In this modern mansion much of the antique furniture has, with judicious taste, been preserved, in particular, a bed that belonged to James VI., and another, the hangings of which were wrought by the fair hands of Queen Mary, when a prisoner at Lochleven: the music gallery occupies the same site as the noble hall in which the coronations were performed; the large gallery, intended for the reception of a collection of valuable paintings, is one hundred and eighty feet long. About fifty yards from the house is an aisle of the old abbey of Scone; it contains a magnificent marble monument to a Viscount Stormont, who died upwards of two centuries ago. At a little distance further stands the old market cross of Scone, surrounded by a wilderness of pleasure grounds, which have usurped the station of the ancient village; it has been aptly observed, that 'there are many instances of towns losing their market crosses, but this is the only cross which has lost its town.'

POST OFFICE, NEW SCONE, Elizabeth Thomson, Post Mistress.—Letters from all parts arrive (from PERTH) every afternoon at a quarter past one, and are despatched thereto at twenty-five minutes before three in the afternoon.

THORNHILL,

OR THORNHILL IN MENTEITH, is a village in the parish of Kincardine, 45 miles w. by N. from Edinburgh 39 s. w. from Perth, 5 s. from Callander, four from Doune, and three from Kippen. It consists chiefly of one street, extending nearly half a mile in length. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture, and a few in weaving. There are the usual domestic trades found in a country village, also a tannery. A church of the Establishment, and one for the Free communion are the places of worship; and the schools are a parochial and two private ones.

The parish lies in the southern quarter of the county in the strath of Monteith; it is triangular in figure, one side of which is twelve miles in length, another sixteen, and the third about seven; altogether it contains a superfices of six thousand acres, four thousand of which are carse land, lying along the Forth; the moss of Kincardine covers a considerable portion of the carse land. Adjacent to the Teith, and on the road from Stirling to Doune, is the highly ornamented and improved estate of Blair Drummond, upon which operations of great magnitude have been successfully carried on, in reducing the quantity of superincumbent moss.

ESTABLISHED CHURCH, Kincardine—Rev. Alexander Gray, D.D.
FREE CHURCH—Rev. William Watt

WEEM AND DULL, WITH ABERFELDY.

WEEM is an extensive Highland parish in the district of Breadalbane; it is so mixed up with and intersected by neighbouring parishes, that no accurate idea can be given of its extent and boundaries. The surface is mountainous and rugged; it is watered by the rivers Tay, Lyon, Lochy, and Dochart. The church of Weem is 74 miles N. N. W. from Edinburgh, 34 N. W. from Perth, and 9 W. from Logierait. Near the church is Castle Menzies, the seat of Sir Robert Menzies, Bart.; a handsome building with lofty turrets, surrounded by fine plantations, pleasure grounds and orchards—a spot presenting a refreshing contrast to many other parts of the district. Near the Castle is the Weem Hotel, of which Mr. Macdonald is the proprietor; it is an establishment admirably conducted for the reception of families and other visitors; it is sheltered from the north winds, and is placed in the midst of the delightful and interesting scenery with which this locality so richly abounds.

DULL is also a large parish, and assimilated in its localities with Weem so that a just estimate of its extent cannot be arrived at; it comprehends, however, a general length of thirty miles, by a breadth of about twelve; the river Tummel bounds the district on the north-east, and the Lyon and Tay on the south, which rivers produce excellent salmon; and the lakes (of which there are fifteen, of large and small dimensions) abound with fine trout, pike and eel. The military road from Stirling to Inverness passes through the entire length of the parish. The church stands at Appin, about two miles and a half from Weem. The lofty mountain Schiallion, which rises upwards of three thousand five hundred feet, is seen on the northern border, with its brow shrouded in mist. The village of Dull is situated close to the castle of Menzies before mentioned, and presents anything but an inviting aspect, the habitations being of the humblest grade.

ABERFELDY is a thriving and neat village, partly in the parish of Dull, and partly in that of Logierait, 18 miles N.W. from Dunkeld, 9 W. from Longierait, and 6 N. E. from Kenmore; situated on the south bank of the beautiful Tay, on the great highland road, which crosses the river by a bridge, elegant and substantial of five arches, constructed by the celebrated General Wade. This part of the county is justly recognised as the centre of the most beautiful scenes on the Tay: these comprise mountain, dale and wood, and the locality is likewise attractive from its proximity to the romantic falls of Moness. The village contains several establishments of business importance—these include branches of the Central Bank of Scotland, and the Union Bank of Scotland, a woollen manufactory, two hotels, of both of which Mr. Mackenzie is the enterprising proprietor, well known for their excellent arrangements; and a large, handsome and admirably-conducted academy, in connection with the Free church. A sheriff small debt court is held here three times a year, in which claims are settled to any amount not exceeding £8. 6s. 8d. Fairs are held on the first Thursday in January (old style), on the Tuesday before Kenmore March fair; on the first Tuesday in April (old style), for horses and cattle; in May for cattle and sheep; on the Saturday next before Amulrie fair; on the first Friday in August (old style), and on the last Thursday in October (old style), for castle and sheep.

RENFREWSHIRE.

THIS county, of great importance as connected with the manufactures of North Britain, is bounded on the south by Ayrshire and on the east and north-east by Lanarkshire; the Clyde river and Firth separate it from the county of Dumbarton on the north, and the Firth of Clyde divides it from Argyleshire on the west. In figure it is nearly triangular—measuring from north-west to south-east about thirty miles, and varying in breadth from ten to fifteen miles: altogether the county is estimated to contain about one hundred and fifty-four thousand English acres.

EARLY HISTORY.—At the epoch of the Roman invasion this district was inhabited by the Damnii, a British tribe who also occupied the adjacent vale of Strathclyde; the invaders concentrated themselves at a spot near the present site of Paisley, to which they gave the name Vanduaria. In after times the Romanised inhabitants were subjected to the sway of the Scots, and in 1097 submitted to the silent revolution which took place under Edgar, when the Celtic customs were changed for the municipal laws which the Scoto-Saxon government gradually introduced. In the reign of David I, Walter, the son of Alan, fled from Shropshire during the troublous conflicts of Maud and Stephen, and settled in the district, where David I made him stewart, and gave him lands to support the dignity of his office. Besides these possessions, he subsequently acquired the whole district of Strathgryfe, and the western half of Kyle, in Ayrshire, which hence was called Kyle Stewart. Such was the manner in which the first of the royal family of Stewart settled in Scotland. At this period the country in this quarter was in a semi-barbarous state, but Walter, the Stewart, introduced new and civilised usages. He settled many of his military followers on his lands, and, by founding the abbey of Paisley, introduced a body of instructed men, who taught the ancient people domestic arts and foreign manners. For several centuries this district formed a portion of Lanarkshire: in 1404 Robert III created a principality, consisting of the barony of Renfrew and the whole of the Stewarts' estates, with the earldom of Carrick and the barony of King's Kyle—all of which he granted, in a free regality, as a provision for his son James; and this principality continued, in after times, the appropriate appanage of the eldest sons of the Scottish monarchs: in consequence of these arrangements, the indentity of the barony of Renfrew and the shire of Lanark was dissolved, and the former placed under the jurisdiction of a separate sheriff.

SOIL, PRODUCE, AND MANUFACTURES.—The soil of this county is very much diversified. In those parts of the high grounds which are not covered by heath and moss, a fine light soil on a gravelly bottom is generally found; in the portion formed of detached hills, the surface is a thin earth, based on gravel; and in the level district the plough or spade sinks through a deep, rich, brown loam. More than one-half of the shire, comprehending the west and south-east portions, is hilly, and devoted to pasture; the cultivated districts comprise the north, the north-east, and the centre of the county, and consist partly of low distinct elevations, and partly of a level tract of rich loam between Paisley and the river Clyde. The hilly part of the county varies in elevation from five hundred to six hundred feet; the hill of greatest altitude in the shire is about twelve hundred and forty feet high. Owing to the great demand in this county for dairy produce, and that also of the garden and the fold (arising from the vicinity of large and populous towns), nearly two-thirds of the arable land in the shire is kept under grasses; and hence the county of Renfrew enjoys but little celebrity as an agricultural district. The Minerals of this shire are of very considerable value—coal, limestone, and sandstone abounding in various parts of it: the most extensive coal-works are those of Quarrelton, near the centre of the county—Polmadie, on its north-east boundary—and at Hurlet and Househill, to the south east of Paisley. As many as eight or nine different lime quarries have been wrought at the same time in Renfrewshire. Ironstone accompanies all the coal strata, and is particularly embodied in the composition of the shores of the Clyde. In point of commercial and manufacturing importance, this county is second only to that of Lanark, and with it unites in constituting the great manufacturing district of Scotland. The Manufactures are chiefly cotton and silk goods, including, among various articles and fabrics, shawls of infinite diversity in texture and price. While Paisley is the head-quarters of the trade in these articles, the business of weaving is pursued, to a greater or less extent, in almost every town, village, and hamlet. The free export of the manufactured goods is promoted by the different sea-ports on the Clyde, especially Greenock—by which, also, foreign produce is imported; the trade is further assisted by the Forth and Clyde Canal, which connects the county with many other shires.

RIVERS, LAKES, AND RAILWAYS.—The waters of Renfrewshire are of no great magnitude in themselves, but by the industry and enterprise of the inhabitants of the district they are rendered of material importance to society. The principal streams are the White Cart, the Black Cart, and the Gryfe; all of which ultimately unite, and fall into the Clyde below Inchinnan-bridge—that is, about half-way down the river between Glasgow and Port Glasgow. The White Cart (which, by way of superdistinction, is generally denominated the Cart,) has its creative springs at Eaglesham, in this county, and in the high grounds of East Kilbride, in Lanarkshire; and, passing Paisley in its course, joins the Gryfe at the bridge above named. The Black Cart issues from the beautiful Loch of Castle Semple, in Lochwinnoch parish, and, decending northward, falls in with the Gryfe at Walkinshaw The Gryfe rises in the high grounds above Largs, and flows eastward until it meets the Black Cart; the Gryfe bestows the name of Strathgryfe upon the vale through which it flows. The lakes are Castle Semple Loch, Queenside Loch (in the parish of Lochwinnoch), two lochs in Neilston parish, and several smaller ones. The first named (Castle Semple) is situate in the southern border of the county; its banks are beautifully wooded in some places; and it contains a small island, on which stand the ruins of a castle. This county enjoys the benefit of railway transit—the Glasgow, Paisley, and Greenock line connects those towns, while other lines diverge from Paisley to Renfrew, Kilmarnock, Troon, Ayr, &c.

Renfrewshire comprehends fifteen entire parishes and four parts of parishes; it contains two representative burghs, Port Glasgow and Renfrew, which join with Rutherglen, Dumbarton and Kilmarnock in returning one member to parliament; and Paisley and the county send each a representative.

BARRHEAD,

NEILSTON, HURLET AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

BARRHEAD is a rapidly increasing village in the parish of Neilston, county of Renfrewshire, four miles from Paisley and seven from Glasgow. The town, or village, consists chiefly of one principal street, with several smaller ones diverging from it, and, together with a suburb called GRAHAMSTON, which s connected by a bridge over the river Levern, is the centre of a manufacturing and thickly-populated neighbourhood. The trade and manufactures of the district are very considerable, consisting of several large bleach fields, a number of extensive calico and shawl printing establishments, cotton and flax spinning, power-loom weaving, besides collieries and two engineering and ironfoundry works—that belonging to Mr. John Cochrane, Grahamston, being the most extensive. These, altogether, give employment to a vast number of both sexes, and contribute materially to the prosperity of the place. In the village there are also three banking establishments, several respectable shops, and a gas works. A justice of the peace court is held on the first Monday in each month. Barrhead being the terminus of the Glasgow and Barrhead section of the Caledonian Railway, easy communication is afforded with other important towns. The station, a handsome one, is situated close to the town. An omnibus runs daily to Paisley in connection with the trains.

The places of worship are an Established church, a Free church, an United Presbyterian church, an Evangelical Union chapel, and one for Roman Catholics. There are several excellent schools in connection with the various places of worship, besides one or two private academies. There is also a Mechanics' Institute, with an extensive library attached.

NEILSTON is a village in the parish of its name, 9 miles S.W. from Glasgow, the like distance N.E. from Stewarton, 5 from Paisley, and one from Barrhead, eligibly situate on the river Levern, on the road to Irvine, in the midst of a well-cultivated and thriving neighbourhood. In the centre of the village stands the parochial church, surmounted by a handsome steeple and clock. The situation of the village is healthy, and is within ten minutes' walk of Crofthead and the terminus of the Glasgow and Barrhead Railway. In the vicinity are several bleach fields and print works; and a branch of the Union Bank of Scotland affords suitable monetary accommodation. There are two good schools, in which are taught the various branches of a useful education. The inhabitants also support several institutions and societies of a charitable, friendly, and educational character; there is also a mechanics' institute, and an agricultural society. The parish extends eight miles in length by from two to four in breadth. From the summit of a ridge of hills, which extends through the entire length of the parish, the prospect is grand and comprehensive, and several plantations, which were raised some years since, add materially to the beauty of the scene. There are two small lakes, called Loch Lebo and Loch Long. From the former issues the Lugton, a tributary stream of the Garnock; and the latter discharges itself by the Levern, which runs north-east to join the Cart. Fairs for cattle are held on the third Tuesdays in February, May and October (old style).

One mile from Barrhead, on the Paisley road, is the small village of HURLET, where are large chemical works belonging to Messrs. Wilson & Sons, and the Hurlte and Campsie Alum Company.

CATHCART,

CROSSMYLOOF, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS,

CATHCART is a pleasant village in the parish of that name, partly in the county of Lanark, but chiefly in that of Renfrew, distant from Glasgow two miles. Its original designation was Caer-Cart, i.e. the Castle on the river Cart. The parish is of considerable extent, and contains above 3,000 acres, almost wholly arable In it are paper, pasteboard, and snuff mills. The surface of the land is agreeably diversified with hills and dales, and presents, in many situations, great picturesque beauty; many handsome villas, have lately been erected. Agriculture is the occupation of a great proportion of the inhabitants; the very summits of the hills are ploughed and cultivated. The parish church which is in the Gothic style of architecture, will accommodate 850 persons, and there is a school-house, for the accommodation of the parish. The field of Langside, in this parish, is remarkable for being the scene of the last fruitless effort of the unfortunate Mary, to regain her crown. An eminence is still pointed out where the queen stood during the engagement. The old castle of Cathcart above alluded to is a very conspicuous ruin, placed in a commanding situation, with two sides defended by the Cart, to which there is almost perpendicular descent of a tremendous depth. It belonged to the Lords of Cathcart, and has been dismantled about a century.

CROSSMYLOOF, is a finely-situated little hamlet, composed principally of plain houses ranged on both sides of the highway, about two miles south from Glasgow, commanding a wide-spreading prospect of the surrounding country, studded with towns, villages, and mansions, and bounded at the extreme distance by the misty Pentlands. At this place is an extensive baking establishment, erected in 1847 by the late Mr. Thompson of Camphill, for the purpose of supplying the city of Glasgow with bread.

EAGLESHAM.

IS a neat modern village, 10 miles s. w. from Glasgow and 11 s. from Paisley, pleasantly situated in the lower part of the parish to which it has given its name about a mile to the north-west of the old castle of Polnoon; it is composed of two rows of houses; a tributary rivulet to the Cart running through the intermediate space. The old village was demolished in 1769, and was shortly afterwards re-built under the direction of the former Earl of Eglintoun, who also, in 1790 erected the church, which is of octagonal form, and has an elegant steeple, furnished with a good clock and a fine toned bell; there is likewise a Free Church, and chapels for United and Reformed Presbyterians and Roman Catholics. The barony of Eaglesham, and the patronage of the church was in the Earl of Eglintoun's family, since the year 1250, but has lately passed into that of Allan Gilmour, Esq. Two cotton mills here give employment to the industrious classes, and there is a grain mill. Fairs are held on the third Thursdays in May and August (old style).

GOUROCK

IS a small sea-port town and burgh of barony, in the parish of Inverkip, three miles W. from Greenock, beautifully situated along the south side of a fine bay on the river Clyde. The haven is favoured with excellent anchorage ground, and vessels to and from Glasgow, Port Glasgow and Greenock frequently take refuge here in contrary winds: a small but commodious quay was constructed, at the cost of about £5,000, which has nine feet depth at low water — an advantage possessed by no other on the Clyde. The town, which is upwards of a mile in length, has become a fashionable resort in the summer months of families from Glasgow and other places, to enjoy the pleasure and benefit of sea-bathing. It is said that this port was the first place in Great Britain where red herrings were prepared. The lands of Gourock were incorporated into a burgh of barony by a charter from William and Mary, dated the 24th of April, 1694, with very extensive powers, and among other privileges, gives authority to hold a weekly market and two annual fairs, but the successive proprietors have never yet thought proper to avail themselves of this privilege; the present proprietor is Major Duncan Darroch.

A neat chapel was built in the year 1773; from the increase of inhabitants, and the influx of casual visiters in the summer, it has long been too small for their accommodation: to obviate this inconvenience, a very commodious and well finished place of worship, with a handsome tower and clock, was erected in 1832. A Free church, an United Presbyterian chapel, and a Scottish Episcopal church, are the other places of worship. An excellent school room was built by the heritors of the parish in 1817, and endowed by them with the one one-half of the maximum salary allowed by the act of parliament. There is a school in connection with the Free church, also a school of industry, which is managed by a committee of ladies.

GREENOCK,

THE first sea-port in Scotland, is 22 miles from Glasgow, 15 from Paisley, and 66 from Edinburgh; situated on the south bank of the river Clyde, and connected with Glasgow by means of the Glasgow, Greenock, and Paisley Railway. The site of this town is unrivalled for the command of grand and picturesque scenery, combining water, wood, and mountains; among the latter is seen the majestic Ben Lomond, whilst others of less magnitude serve to render more obvious its immense and towering elevation. In the early part of the eighteenth century Greenock was a small village, inhabited chiefly by fishermen, and without quay or harbour; it now, however, possesses its harbours, which of late years have been improved at a considerable expense, and are most commodious and very capacious; they extend nearly 3,000 feet from east to west, and are of sufficient depth to float vessels of great burthen; in the roads there is a good anchorage for ships of the largest class. The quays are spacious, and have well-constructed sheds, supported by iron pillars, for the security of merchandise against the weather; there are also good graving and other docks, capable of receiving vessels of any size. The area of the water inside the Victoria Harbour is somewhat over six acres, and the works have been erected at a cost of about £120,000. It is one of the finest tidal harbours in the kingdom and is particularly well suited for vessels of large tonnage, being sixteen feet deep at neap tides, and fourteen at spring tides. At this harbour is a crane capable of lifting seventy tons, so that steamers of the largest class may have their engines fitted at this port without taking the ground. The streets of Greenock have been greatly improved, a large sum having been recently expended in sanitary arrangements; and within a recent period a number of very clean, regular, and even elegant streets have been erected towards the west, for the accommodation of the more wealthy portion of the inhabitants; a tendency has likewise been displayed by this class of society to rear streets and detached villas along the heights behind the town, where the view of the firth and of the Highland scenery beyond is a source of unfailing pleasure. The thoroughfares and principal shops are lighted with gas, supplied from works erected in 1828. The markets for meat, fish and vegetables are convenient, and generally well supplied. Among the public edifices of this town, the Custom-house decidedly ranks first; it is truly a grand national structure. The selection of its situation is also most appropriate; the grand front faces the water, leaving a fine open space from the edge of the quay. The building is of Grecian architecture; in it the business of both customs and inland revenue is transacted. The entrance to the former is at the north front, facing the river, and that of the latter at the east front. Both fronts are ornamented by four elegant lofty Doric pillars, supporting a handsome pediment. This fine edifice was erected under the direction of Mr. Burn, of Edinburgh, who was the architect also of the Assembly-rooms, situated in Cathcart-street, which he completed in the same elegant order and style. There is a commercial news room in Cathcart-square which is well-supplied with the various journals and magazines. Greenock is the birthplace of the illustrious Watt, the perfector of the steam engine, who was born in 1736; in commemoration of this circumstance his son has erected a building in Union-street, called the Watt Institution, for the purposes of a library, upon ground given by the late Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart.; the building is from a design by Mr. Blore, architect, of London, and cost £3,000; a statue of the deceased engineer, from the chisel of the celebrated Chantrey, is placed within the entrance of the edifice: £2,000 was the sum paid for the execution of this appropriate ornament, which was raised by subscription. Besides this library the town has two or three good circulating libraries.

Among the most important branches under the head of, or connected with, manufactures, are seven shipbuilding establishments, the yards of two of which are so complete as to rank second only to those belonging to the crown; there are also several extensive engineworks, six foundries, two breweries, four ropewalks, four tan yards, twelve sugar-refining houses; manufactories for woollen and sail-cloth; soap and candle works, a distillery, and large mills for spinning wool, cotton, and flax, and for making paper; but in nothing is Greenock more celebrated than in the building and fitting-up of steam vessels—furnishing them not only for London, Bristol, Liverpool and Dublin, but also for the Mediterranean, Portugal, Spain, South America and New South Wales. Most of the fine steamers belonging to the Cunard American line have been built here. Greenock being the first seaport town in North Britain, its mercantile and shipping trade extends to very considerable importations of rum, sugar, molasses, mahogany, &c., from the West Indies; ice, potash, timber, &c. and naval stores from America; and wine, fruit, &c., from Portugal: many ships are likewise employed from hence in the trade of the Baltic, and also in the fisheries of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. Since the opening of commercial intercourse with India and China, the merchants of this place have prosecuted the trade to those countries with great spirit and commensurate success—the Clyde ships, from the superiority of their construction, never failing to secure a preference of engagements. Greenock derives vast advantage from the application of steam to navigation, there being a great number of vessels propelled by this powerful auxiliary constantly traversing the Clyde, to and from Glasgow, and the intermediate places on the banks of the river, where they make stoppages for the convenience of passengers; large and elegant steam-boats also leave this port for Liverpool, Dublin, Belfast, Londonderry, Campbelton, Ayr, Inverness, and other intermediate places in the Highlands, at stated periods: indeed no town in the kingdom affords greater facility to travellers, by this mode of conveyance, than Greenock. The steamers carrying the Irish mail are now despatched from this port.

In all probability this thriving seat of commerce will at no distant period, become the station of some considerable cotton factories, and participate with Glasgow and Paisley in the extensive trade enjoyed by those places, there being in the neighbourhood of the town the greatest amount of water power to be found in the kingdom; this is derived from an extensive breakwater having been thrown across a valley, in the bottom of which a stream of water flowed, now forming a condensed body of that element two miles long and half a mile wide, having a depth of sixty feet, and at an elevation of five hundred feet above the level of the sea, it furnishes sites for thirty-two mills, of which twenty-one are now occupied, with power to any extent that may be required; it is also rendered subservient to the supply of the town with water for domestic purposes, a necessary with which it was formerly but ill provided. This splendid work, which is calculated to impress the stranger with a high sense of the character of the inhabitants of Greenock, was completed in 1827, by a company, under the title of Shaw's Water Company. There are in the town six banking establishments, viz., branches of the Bank of Scotland, the Royal Bank of Scotland, the Union Bank of Scotland, the Clydesdale Bank, the National Bank of Scotland, the City of Glasgow Bank, the British Linen Company's Bank, and the Provident Savings' Bank. The municipal government of Greenock is vested in a provost, four baillies, a town treasurer, and sixteen councillors, who have the power of making laws for the advantage of the burgh, and of maintaining peace and order within its limits. The police is under the most efficient regulation, both that of the town and that of the harbour; the management of the latter is confided to its commissioners (along with the town council), who are elected annually. The town has its goal and bridewell, which were erected in the year 1810. The burgh sends one member to parliament.

Greenock comprehends three parishes, respectively the 'West parish,' the 'Mid parish,' and the 'East parish'—all being erected out of, and separated from the original parish of Innerkip. The first, which may be styled the mother parish of the three, includes the western part of the town, and the greater proportion of the country district. The church is a modern and elegant structure, situated in Nelson-street, the original church, now in ruins, stands near the shore, and is surrounded by an old burying-ground, which is interesting from being the resting place of Burns's 'Highland Mary,' and to mark which some years' since a monument was erected. The mid parish comprehends the central parts of the town; the church is situated in a small square, fronting along a street which descends to the quay; this is an elegant structure with a lofty steeple (the site extremely well selected to render it an ornament to the town), and forms a highly interesting object in the prospect from the river. The east parish possesses a place of worship near Rue-end; it was erected in 1774, as a chapel of ease. Besides the churches and chapels under the Establishment, there are places of worship for various sects of dissenters, and a Roman Catholic chapel; some of these are of recent erection, are embellishments to the town, and highly creditable to those under whose direction and superintendence they have been founded and raised—(a list of all, and where they are situated, with the names of the respective ministers, appears under an appropriate head in a subsequent page). The inhabitants of Greenock are by no means indifferent to the pursuits of literature and science; the libraries and reading-rooms have been briefly noticed; the denizens can boast an excellent academy, several parochial and other public schools; and the Highlanders' Society have constructed handsome buildings for schools in Roxburgh-street. Three newspapers are published here.—'The Greenock Advertiser,' 'The Herald,' and 'The Telegraph.' There are several charitable institutions, the finest among which, as a building, is Sir Gabriel Wood's Mariners' Asylum, an institution founded by the late Sir Gabriel Wood, for the relief and comfort of aged and decayed master mariners and merchant seamen. The Infirmary, erected in 1809, is ornamental as a public edifice, and its utility is universally acknowledged. A Ragged School was established here in 1849, and promises to prove a most suitable provision for the neglected youth. A Sailors' Home, on the same principle as those of Dublin and Liverpool, has been established. At a short distance from the town is a Lunatic Asylum, built in 1824—it is called 'Fancy Farm;' the situation it occupies is most salubrious and pleasant, and it is admirably conducted.

About a mile from Greenock, close to the banks of the Clyde, is a battery mounting fourteen guns; but there are no barracks, and it is seldom that any soldiers are quartered in the town. There are several very agreeable bathing villages in the villages in the vicinity; one of these forms a very pleasing and picturesque object from the quays—being seated under the mountains on the opposite side of the frith, which is six or seven miles across: several steam-boats go to and from the different villages during the bathing season. The weekly market is held on Friday; and there are two annual fairs—one takes place on the first Thursday of July, the other on the fourth Tuesday of November, and horse and cattle markets twice a year—on the Friday before Glasgow Whit-Monday fair, and on the Friday immediately preceding Kilbarchan fair.

HOUSTOUN, BRIDGE OF WEIR, CROSSLEE, AND ERSKINE.

HOUSTOUN is a manufacturing village, or small town, in the united parish of Houstoun and Kilallan; 14 miles from Glasgow, 7 from Paisley, the like distance from Port Glasgow, and 3½ miles from the Houstoun station, on the Glasgow and Greenock Railway; pleasantly situated on both sides of the Houstoun burn. It consists of two long streets, one on each side of the rivulet; the inhabitants are chiefly weavers of silk and cotton goods. At the east end of the village is a small parish church; there is also a Free Church, and a Roman Catholic chapel. It is said that the town is partly built of the stones that once composed the Castle of Houstoun, which formerly stood in this neighbourhood, to the east—an ancient mansion, the residence of the knights of Houstoun, demolished in 1780 by a proprietor of the estate.

About one mile from Houstoun, and three from Johnstone (a station on the South-Western railway) most delightfully and romantically situated in a valley, is WEIR BRIDGE, more familiarly known by the name of the 'Bridge of Weir.' It is the boundary of the parish in this quarter, being divided from the parish of Kilbarchan by the river Gryffe; on this stream are three cotton mills, in which are employed a considerable number of the industrious classes.

About one mile hence is CROSSLEE, once participating in the prosperity enjoyed by different places in this parish, as the seat of manufactures, but now almost deserted, owing to the destruction by fire of a large cotton mill, in which many hands were employed. The united parish is about six miles in length by three in breadth: the low grounds are in general fertile, and beautified by some fine natural tracts of wood; coal and abundance of limestone and freestone is found in various parts of this favoured district.

The parish of ERSKINE is six miles in length, and from three to four in breadth; situate on the Clyde, opposite to Kilpatrick. The ground rises gently from the margin of the river, and is laid out in rich plantations, orchards, and corn-fields. Erskine House, the seat of Lord Blantyre, is a beautiful mansion, seated amidst tasteful pleasure-grounds facing the Clyde. The Glasgow and Greenock Railway passes through the parish. Erskine, it is said, is the oldest ferry on the Clyde; there is a neat and comfortable inn at this place.

INNERKIP, WEMYSS BAY, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

INNERKIP is a village in the parish of its name, six miles s. w. from Greenock; situated on the Kipp water, which intersects the district from east to west, and falls into the Clyde. The village is sometimes called the 'Auld Kirk,' but is more commonly termed Inverkip—the latter appellation being derived from its being seated at the mouth of the Kipp water. The Daff, and some other rivulets, likewise irrigate the district; in their courses they are broken into small cascades, which produce a pleasing effect; and the meadows through which they pass are finely embanked. The inhabitants of the village are chiefly fishermen, but it obtains some advantage from being the resort of persons for sea bathing. Ardgowan House, the seat of Sir Michael Robert Shaw Stewart, Bart., is pleasantly situated on a kind of peninsula, a little north of the village; it is a fine modern building, surrounded with beautiful and romantic pleasure grounds. Besides the parish church, which is a neat and handsome edifice, surmounted by a spire with a clock, there is a Free church, and a chapel for Independents; connected with the Established and Free churches are two excellent schools. Communication with other towns is rendered easy by means of the steamers plying daily on the river.

WEMYSS BAY is two miles from Innerkip, and is beautifully situated on the banks of the Clyde. It is fast rising into notice as a watering place. Several respectable familes have here taken up their residence, and a number of handsome villas have been erected, all of which are well tenanted in the summer season. There is a church in connection with the Establishment. The river steamers also call here to take in passengers for Greenock, Glasgow, Largs, Millport, and several other places.

JOHNSTONE, ELDERSLIE, KILBARCHAN & LINWOOD.

JOHNSTONE is a very considerable manufacturing village, within the landward part of the Abbey parish of Paisley, 3½ miles w. from that town, 11 w. from Glasgow, 8 N. from Beith, and 14 S.E. from Greenock; most agreeably situated, contiguous to the Black Cart river. The increase of population in this locality is unparalleled in Scottish statistics: in 1782 it contained but ten persons. The system of feuing was then commenced here, and since that period it has been progressively increasing up to the present time. Trade and commerce, likewise, have kept pace with the augmentation of its population, there being now in the village numerous cotton mills, a flax mill, iron foundries, extensive machine manufactories, and the public gas works; and two branch banks are established here. Contiguous to the town are several valuable coal mines, which produce to their respective proprietors a very considerable revenue; the most extensive of these mines belongs to Ludovic Houstoun, Esq., of Johnstone Castle, and who is proprietor of Johnstone. The town is very regularly laid out; it has several good streets, a spacious square in its centre, and a large area for a market place; the houses are for the most part substantially constructed, and roofed with slate; the shops are numerous, and well stocked with various domestic and useful commodities—the principal are lighted with gas. The Glasgow and South-Western Railway passes the village, and affords direct communication with all parts of the country. Some years ago a canal was opened between this place, Paisley, and Glasgow, which has proved of the greatest utility. From an eminence on the Paisley road the village of Johnstone has a pleasing appearance; to the left, at a short distance, stands Johnstone Castle, surrounded by thriving plantations, and commanding a fine view of the country for many miles round. To the west of the town, immediately beyond the river Cart, is the seat of Sir Robert Napier, a delightful residence. Johnstone possesses nothing to invite the antiquarian or amuse the traveller; but curiosity may be gratified by a visit to the village of ELDERSLIE (a mile east of this place), once the residence of the renowned Wallace.

The places of worship are a chapel of ease under the Establishment, a Free church, two United Presbyterian chapels, and one for Roman Catholics. The public institutions are a subscription library, a news-room, a mechanics' institute; Bible, missionary and friendly societies; a town's school, and various Sunday schools.

A horse fair is held on the Friday before the second Wednesday in January, and a cattle and pleasure fair in the middle of July, which lasts for three days.

KILBARCHAN is a considerable manufacturing village in the parish of its name, one mile and a half from Johnstone, and about five miles from Paisley; situate on the southern declivity of a hill, and pretty regularly built. Upwards of 1,300 looms are employed in this village and its immediate vicinity in the manufacture of silk, cotton shawls, robes, &c. In the centre of the village is the school-house, with a tower, on which is the statue of Habbie Simpson, the well-known Scottish piper, born in this parish. It was executed by Archibald Robertson, a young sculptor from Greenock. The places of worship are the parish church and an United Presbyterian chapel. Gas was introduced by a company in 1846, and the village is now well lighted. There are two public libraries containing several thousand volumes. A horse fair is held annually on the first Tuesday in December (old style).

About three miles from Johnstone, and three and a half from Paisley (in Kilbarchan parish), is the manufacturing village of LINWOOD; it contains a large cotton factory and a shawl-printing establishment, which furnish employment to most of the inhabitants. Several coal and ironstone mines are in the neighbourhood.

POST OFFICE, High-street, JOHNSTONE, Alexander More, Post Master.—Letters from ENGLAND, EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, also from IRELAND, arrive every morning at ten minutes past eleven; and are despatched at ten minutes before one. From all parts of SCOTLAND every morning at half-past four, and afternoon at ten minutes past five; and are despatched at ten minutes past twelve at noon, and twenty minutes before five in the afternoon, and to PAISLEY at twenty minutes past nine at night.

Money Order Office open from nine in the morning till six in the evening.

Post Office, ELDERSLIE, David Paterson, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (by foot post) morning at half-past seven, and a quarter past ten; and are despatched afternoon at a quarter past one, and a quarter before six.

Post Office, KILBARCHAN, William Barbour, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (by foot post from JOHNSTONE) morning at eight, evening at half-past six; and are despatched morning at half-past nine, and evening at twenty minutes before eight.

Post Office, LINWOOD, John Galbraith, Post Master.—Letters arrive (by foot post from PAISLEY), morning at nine; and are despatched at ten minutes before one afternoon.

LOCHWINNOCH, NEW TOWN OF BELTREES AND HOW-WOOD.

LOCHWINNOCH is a large village in the parish of its name; 16½ miles s.w. from Glasgow, 9½ s.s.w. from Paisley, 6½ s.s.w. from Johnstone, and 3½ N. from Beith. The Glasgow and South Western Railway has a station close to the town. The village is situate on the north-west bank of the beautiful lake from which it derives its appellation, and surrounded by scenery of a most interesting and romantic character, highly attractive to the tourist: among which the lovely loch, the banks of the Calder, the sublime cataract of Reekan Linn, the bottomless Gurratt's Linn, and the remains of several old castles, are all eminently worthy of a visit from the stranger to these parts. The lake, which stretches in a northerly and southerly direction, lies in the eastern part of the parish; it receives the Calder water on its west side, and its issue forms the Black Cart river; it is about two miles in length by one in breadth, but was formerly much more extensive, having been contracted by an embankment, whereby several hundred acres of land have been obtained and brought into cultivation. On the north-west side of the loch stands Castle Semple House, the seat of James O. L. Harvey, Esq. the situation of which is in the highest degree picturesque; it occupies the site of the ancient castle of Semple, founded by Lord John Sempill about the year 1500; it was demolished in 1735. On a small island in the lake is the 'Peel,' the remains of some forgotten stronghold, of which nothing but a vault now exists. Lochwinnoch possesses some claims to notice as a place of manufactures; it contains an extensive cotton mill, two bleach-fields, a woollen mill, &c.; there is also established here a branch of the City of Glasgow Bank. The village is ornamented by a parochial church, having a handsome steeple; also a Free church, and an United Presbyterian chapel. Justice of peace courts are held here on the first Saturday in each month. There are two annual fairs: the first, called the 'trades race,' on the first Tuesday in May; and the 'fair of Hill,' first Tuesday in November (old style). In 1851 the population of the village amounted to 2,400; and that of the entire parish to 4,500; since then a considerable decrease has taken place, owing chiefly to one of the then existing cotton factories having stopped; at present (1860) the village numbers about 2,000 inhabitants, and the whole parish 4,000.

HOW-WOOD is a small village in the parish of Lochwinnoch, 3½ miles from that town, situate on the high road between Beith and Glasgow. About a mile and a half nearer to Lochwinnoch, in that parish, is a place called NEW TOWN OF BELTREES, another small village, neither of which contain any object worthy of particular description.

MEARNS, WITH BUSBY AND NEWTON.

MEARNS is a village in the parish of its name, seven miles from Glasgow and eight from Paisley, and near the line of the Glasgow and Barrhead Railway; the parish lies in the south-eastern part of the county, and extends seven miles in length by about three in breadth. The surface of the land is finely diversified by pleasing undulations, rising gradually from east to west; it is generally fertile, and adapted to the purposes of the dairy, while other portions of the district afford excellent pasturage. The great road from Glasgow to Ayr and Kilmarnock runs through the whole length of the parish; and lately a new road has been opened from Glasgow, which, passing Newton, joins the former road a little beyond the King's Well Inn. In the parish are two bleach-fields, calico printing works, and an extensive cotton spinning mill—the latter at BUSBY, a small romantic village in the parish of Mearns, five miles from Glasgow. At NEWTON (or Newton Shaw), another village in Mearns, three miles and a half from Busby, stands the parish church, a neat stone edifice, with a handsome spire, in which is an excellent clock; and the interior contains seven hundred sittings. There is also a Secession chapel, which will accommodate a congregation of five hundred persons. The village, which is well built and of pleasing appearance, possesses a superior inn, and a branch of the City of Glasgow Bank. The only object of antiquity in the parish is the Castle of Mearns, near that village; it is a large square tower, seated on a rocky eminence, commanding an extensive and beautiful prospect; it is encompassed by a strong wall, and the entrance appears to have been secured by a drawbridge: this interesting relic of former times is now out of repair, and dismantled; it belongs to the family of Blackhall, of Ardgowan, but its origin is lost in obscurity. The parish is adorned by several elegant modern seats and mansions; and the lands are irrigated and refreshed by the waters of three lakes, one of which, named Black Loch, is nearly two miles and a half in circumference.

POST OFFICE, BUSBY, James Cunningham, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from GLASGOW) every morning at eight, and afternoon at half-past five; and are despatched morning at half-past nine,, and afternoon at half-past three.

Money Orders granted and paid at this office.

Post Office, NEWTON, William Blair, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from GLASGOW) every morning at a quarter before five, and every afternoon at half-past five; and are despatched thereto every morning at a quarter before five, and again at nine.

PAISLEY AND ITS VICINITY.

PAISLEY is a burgh of barony and the seat of a presbytery, in the parish of the abbey of Paisley; 50 miles west by south from Edinburgh, about 7 miles s. by w. from Glasgow, and 17 s.E. from Greenock. This active manufacturing town, so distinguished for the beauty of its shawls and muslins, and its extensive fabrication of thread, stands in a healthful and picturesque situation on the banks of the White Cart, about three miles above the confluence of this river with the Clyde, and enjoys the advantages of railway communication, being connected with Glasgow, Greenock, Renfrew, Kilmarnock, Ayr, &c., by the iron road. The Burgh, or Old Town of Paisley is on the western side of the river; the New Town on the eastern side. The High Church, with its lofty spire, rises from a fine eminence, the south side of which, and its summit, are covered with buildings, and its northern slope is laid out in gardens; this central ridge forms a natural terrace, which runs westward from the river nearly half a mile, terminating abruptly at a point where the Romans had a fort and a fortified camp, whence is a prospect extensive and beautiful; with this camp several minor stations are believed to have had communication, each placed on the summit of a neighbouring eminence, such as Woodside, the Knock, and Castlehead; while the name 'Causeyside,' still retained by one of the streets of the burgh, is thought to indicate the former existence of a Roman road, leading to or by the principal station.

Paisley is generally supposed to have been the Vanduaria of Ptolemy, a notion supported by the etymology of the name Vanduaria—the British words wen dur signifying the 'white water,' and thus expressing the present distinctive appellation of the river on the banks of which the town is built. In ancient days, Paisley was distinguished only for its abbey; and the shrine of Saint Mirren, which it enclosed, was resorted to by multitudes of pilgrims from all parts of Scotland; this Saint, Saint James, and the Virgin Mary, divided the tutelary honours between them. This great and opulent monastic establishment was founded in the year 1160, by Walter, great steward of Scotland, and son of Allan, the first of the Stewarts, who, for a long period, made this abbey their family mausoleum; the religious order of the Clugni were the first occupants; it was originally a priory, but was afterwards elevated to the rank of an abbey—its lands being by Robert II erected into a regality, of which the abbot was lord. By Abbot George Schaw, in 1484, the abbey precincts were surrounded by a lofty wall of hewn stone, a mile in circumference, the greater part of which has been demolished; still a good deal of it remains, as does an inscription setting forth, in uncouth rhyme, Abbot Schaw as its builder; this inscription is on a house in Lawn-street. In 1588, the reformation having taken place, the abbey and lands were made a temporal barony in favour of Lord Claude Hamilton, third son of the Duke de Chatelerault, and on whom was conferred the title of Lord Paisley. The abbey lands having been transferred from the Earl of Abercorn to the Earl of Angus, and from him to Lord Dundonald, the greater portion became the property, by purchase, of the Marquis of Abercorn, who intended to have kept it entire as a residence, but finding it had become much delapidated he let it on building leases; so that the parks, orchards, and gardens of the abbey subsequently became the site of the new town of Paisley, and the stones from the wall form a portion of the materials of which the houses were built. The abbey church, mutilated as it now is, constitutes the most interesting public structure of which Paisley can boast; the nave, which in the interior exhibits three tiers of arches, is neatly fitted up, and contains some curious monuments and sepulchral inscriptions. It is the parochial church of an extensive rural district, lying around the town, and called the 'Parish of the Abbey of Paisley.' The choir is levelled to within a few feet of the ground; the north transept is more entire, and displays in its large well-proportioned northern window a striking relic of ancient ecclesiastical magnificence. Three windows of good size and elegant design, with a recessed doorway, form the principal ornaments of the western front. Near the abbey is a Gothic chapel, built as a place of sepulture for the Abercorn family. The remarkable degree of resonance possessed by this little building (which is still, from the circumstance, called the sounding aisle) has been magnified by most writers; much of the effect which it formerly produced is now, however, lost, from the re-construction within the chapel of a large altar tomb, consecrated to the memory of Marjory Bruce, wife of the great steward, Walter, as well as mother to Robert II, whose remains were removed from the monastery in 1770. The aperture in the brickwork, formed to close up the interstices of a once beautiful eastern window, likewise contributes to weaken the echo. It is not improbable that, for some time after the suppression of its abbey, Paisley languished; and when Crawford, the first regular historian of Renfrewshire, produced his learned and useful work, the town consisted of no more than one principal street and a few narrow lanes or wynds branching from it. Its population did not at that time exceed 3,000; nay, some assert that its inhabitants were then only about 1,500 in number.

That portion called the Old Town is considerably more extensive than the new, and contains all the chief warehouses of the manufacturers. Many of its streets are well-built, and there are three parallel lines running from east to west of very great length. The New Town, comprising many streets, occupies a level surface on the eastern side of the Cart. Of both portions of the town, the entire length, reckoning from the first suburban houses on the east to the last occurring on the west, can scarcely be less than two miles; while the extreme breadth of Paisley, from north to south, must reach at least a mile and a half. East, north, and west of it are suburbs with distinct names. Such are Williamsburgh, Doveland, Lylesland, Carriage-hill, Charleston, Maxwellton, Ferguslie, &c. The eastern and western parts of the town are connected by three bridges, respectively of one, two, and three arches, and called individually the Old, the Saucel, and the Sneddon bridge; as also by the railway bridge, which is near the Sneddon bridge. Gas was first introduced in 1824, and all the streets are illumined by it; and the town is well supplied with water. A most conspicuous public building is the Castle, a large towered, turreted and embattled fabric, comprehending, besides a variety of rooms and offices for county and burgh meetings, and for public functionaries, a county gaol, a debtor's gaol, a bridewell, and a prison chapel; between the noble pile which forms the front edifice and the prison in its rear are two courts for exercise and air. The steeple of the former town-house of Paisley yet remains and forms an architectural ornament to the area called the Cross. By a charter granted by James IV, in 1481, in favour of Abbot George Schaw, Paisley was created a burgh of barony. The present municipal body consists of a provost, four baillies, a treasurer, a procurator fiscal, and ten councillors, with a town clerk and chamberlain; the provost and baillies act as justices of the peace. For the New Town, and for the burgh, a separate police establishment is organised; the latter is divided into eight police wards. Paisley returns one member to the legislature.

MANUFACTURES AND TRADE.—A young lady of some historical notoriety was the original cause of Paisley becoming a manufacturing town. In 1697 a daughter of the Laird of Bargarren, aged eleven years, named Christian Shaw, preferred a charge of bewitching her (either from cruelty or revenge) against a servant girl, with whom she had quarrelled, and nineteen alleged confederates, who were all condemned, and five of the number burnt on Gallow-green, Paisley. The inciter to this detestable act of superstitious cruelty subsequently acquired great skill in spinning fine yarn; her first production having been sold advantageously at Bath, by Lady Blantyre, to the lace makers, stimulated Miss Shaw to extend her transactions by availing herself of the co-operation of a relative in Holland; the demand for this thread soon became eager, and the most extensive manufactures that arose in Scotland at that period acknowledged 'the bewitched lady,' as their originator, who afterwards became the wife of the minister of Kilmaurs. Coarse linen checks were the first fabrics produced by the Paisley looms; to these succeeded others of a lighter kind, such as lawns, both figured and plain; silk gauze then took the lead, about the year 1760, and Spitalfields soon yielded to its more successful competitor,—for such was the celebrity of Paisley gauze that warehouses were engaged for its sale in London, Dublin, and Paris. The produce of this article, together with sewing-thread, lawn and linen gauze, amounted for the year 1784 to £579,000, and more than 26,000 persons were employed in their fabrication. But the demand for the popular gauze rapidly decreased, and soon became insignificant; muslin, cambric and cotton thread were the next productions of Paisley industry and skill; to these succeeded silk and cotton shawls, and scarfs and plaids, composed of silk and merino wool, ascending in price from five shillings to fifteen guineas; these still continue to exhibit the ingenuity and taste of the Paisley weavers, and in the manufacture of them they have arrived at great perfection. In Paisley and its neighbourhood are numerous thread and cotton spinning mills, bleaching and printing works, dye houses, power loom factories, iron and brass foundries, engineers and millwrights' shops, timber yards, a brewery, distilleries, soap manufactories, and a very extensive tannery. There are five banking establishments in Paisley: these are branches of the Union Bank of Scotland, the City of Glasgow Bank, the Bank of Scotland, the National Bank of Scotland, and the British Linen Co.

Between the years 1786 and 1791, the White Cart river was, at an expense of £4,000 (and partly by means of a navigable cut, which enables vessels to avoid certain shallows in the river), made navigable to the town, for sloops of forty to fifty tons burthen: attempts were some time ago made with dredging machines to deepen it so as to admit of vessels of greater burthen, but it was found to be impracticable. The Glasgow and Ardrossan canal passes along the southern verge of the town, presenting at one point a fine basin and wharf. The railway from Paisley to Renfrew, which was opened in April, 1837, is also a delightful mode of communication between these places; the carriages are drawn by horses.

Places of Worship, Institutions, &c. — Paisley contains eight churches connected with the Establishment, viz., the Abbey, the High Church, St. George's, the Martyr's, the North, the South, the Middle, and the Gaelic churches, and six Free churches; there are also six United Secession chapels, one Reformed Presbyterian, one Episcopalian, two Congregationalist, three Baptist, two Methodist, an Independent Methodist, and one for the numerous Roman Catholics in Paisley —the situation of each, and the names of their respective ministers, will be found in a subsequent page.) The following institutions and schools are liberally maintained by the inhabitants of Paisley, viz., the Dispensary and House of Recovery, the Town Hospital or Poor House, the Deaf and Dumb Institution, the Philosophical Institution and Humane Society; the grammar school, town's mercantile and mathematical school, town's English school, Hutchison's charity school, Roman Catholic school, Educational Association schools, a Sessional school, Sabbath, infants' and several parochial schools. A hospital school, richly endowed by the late John Neilson, Esq. (a citizen of Paisley), and named after him, was opened in 1852; it is a handsome massive grey structure, surmounted by a lofty dome, and from its elevated position is a conspicuous ornament to the town. There are some friendly associations, bible and missionary societies, and three public libraries; and public reading rooms for the lower classes have been established by some of the principal manufacturers in different parts of the town. Opposite to the Cross is a handsome structure; the exterior of the upper part is adorned with Ionic pillars; the interior includes a public coffee room of noble dimensions, on the tables of which newspapers, reviews and magazines abound; and the place is liberally thrown open to the visits of strangers. There is a neat theatre, which is opened occasionally for those who derive amusement from such a source; and races are held annually in August, on a picturesque course half a mile from the town, on the Greenock road. A new workhouse was erected in 1850; it occupies a commanding situation in the upper part of the town, the style is Elizabethan, and there is accommodation for six hundred inmates; adjoining is the lunatic asylum, built in the same style, and capable of containing eighty patients.

Paisley may boast of having been the birth-place or residence of several individuals noted for genius or science: Wilson, the celebrated American ornithologist, and Tannahill, the lyric poet, were natives of Paisley; and the distinguished Dr. Witherspoon, once minister of the parish, wrote several of his best works here, prior to his emigration. The country around Paisley (except on the north, where a wide-spread fertile plain expands itself), is most agreeably diversified by gentle risings—by wood—by water—and in short, by all the constituents of the soft and beautiful. A fall in the Cart, just above the town, and an aqueduct bridge over the Ardrossan canal, deserve mention, and from the stranger a visit.

The weekly market is held on Thursday; and the fairs on the third Thursdays of February and May, and the second Thursdays of August and November. February and August are the principal for cattle, and last three days each, those of May and November are mostly for hiring servants; St. James's Day, in August, is distinguished by horse-racing and various shows, which attract a great concourse of persons from the surrounding country.

POLLOCKSHAWS, THORNLIE-BANK,
AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

POLLOCKSHAWS or Pollokshaws) is a thriving manufacturing town and burgh of barony, in the parish of Eastwood, two miles and a half from Glasgow; situated on the road to Irvine, near to the White Cart river, in a pleasing valley sheltered by plantations, and consists of several well built streets, somewhat irregular in appearance. The trade of the place is considerable, their being extensive establishments for spinning, weaving, and dyeing, as also bleach fields, print works, and the manufacture of earthenware, besides collieries, altogether furnishing employment to the greater portion of the inhabitants. The town boasts a town-house (a neat building with a spire), an extensive public library, a parochial school, and several private academies. Pollockshaws was erected into a burgh of barony in 1814, in favour of Sir John Maxwell, of Pollock, and the government of the town vested in a provost, a baillie, six councillors and a treasurer. Branches of the City of Glasgow Bank, and the Clydesdale Banking Co. are established here, a freemasons' lodge, and various friendly societies, one of which has been a century in existence. A sheriff court is held every alternate month, a justice of peace court once a month, and criminal courts once a fortnight.

The places of worship are two Established churches, two Free churches, chapels for United Presbyterians, and Original Seceders, and a Roman Catholic chapel. The parish of Eastwood is four miles in length by three in breadth—bounded on the north by Govan and Gorbals, and on the south by Neilston and Mearns. The district is generally under a creditable state of cultivation, and abounds in freestone; and, besides the stream of the White Cart, is watered by the Auldhouse burn. The Glasgow and Barrhead railway has a station close to the town; and omnibuses run to and from Glasgow several times a day.

THORNLIE-BANK is a small village lying a little to the south of Pollockshaws, in a beautiful hollow, watered by the Auldhouse burn. The manufacture of cotton is carried on here to a great extent, embracing every process from the raw material to the most beautiful printed fabrics. The United Presbyterians have a chapel here.

POST OFFICE, 61, King-street, POLLOCKSHAW, James Watson, Post Master. — Letters from all parts arrive every morning (from GLASGOW) at half-past six, and at twelve noon, and are despatched thereto every forenoon at eleven and, at six in the evening.

Post Office, THORNLIE-BANK, Archibald Gilchrist, PostMaster.—Letters from all parts arrive (from GLASGOW) at ten minutes past seven, and at half-past twelve noon, and are despatched thereto every morning at eleven, and every evening at nineteen minutes before six.

To and From GLASGOW, William Strang, from 65 Main st, Wednesday and Friday

PORT GLASGOW AND KILMALCOLM.

PORT GLASGOW is a sea-port and opulent burgh of baron and regality; pleasantly situated on the south bank of the river Clyde, twenty miles below Glasgow, and two miles east from Greenock, and on the line of the Glasgow, Greenock, and Paisley Railway. It is protected on the south by a range of high hills, and an extensive view of corresponding eminences presents itself on the north. The lower grounds in the vicinity of the town are embellished with handsome villas, to which are generally attached excellent gardens. The town stands immediately contignous to the old barony and village of Newark, at the eastern extremity of which is the ancient castle, formerly occupied by the barons of the name of Maxwell, now the property of the heirs of Sir M. Shaw Stewart; it is a fine old ruin, in good preservation; and the situation is much admired for its commanding view of the Clyde and adjacent picturesque scenery, particularly that wild and singularly formed rocky eminence on which Dumbarton Castle stands. Port Glasgow is neatly built, the streets running at right angles. It possesses a town-house (erected by the magistrates, in 1815, at a cost of nearly £12,000), comprising a council chamber, a court hall, a police station, and offices for the accommodation of the town clerk, fiscal and other public offices; also a public reading room. This pile of building, which is of the finest Grecian architecture, is surmounted by an elegant spire one hundred and fifty feet in height, and adorned with a good clock. The custom-house is a handsome building, and contains offices and rooms for the different officers in that branch of the revenue.

The trade of this port town has been, for these many years, gradually improving; the tonnage employed in the American trade is very considerable, as also a very fair share of India and general imports. It enjoys the superior advantage of an extensive wet dock, constructed at an enormous expense; the tide harbours, which are large and commodious, are remarkable for facility of entry and egress, and are accessible to vessels of the largest tonnage at all times of the tide; contiguous to the harbours is a large graving dock, the first of the kind constructed in Scotland, and still preserved in excellent order. Connected with the town are four very extensive ship building establishments, besides two of smaller grade; the steam vessels constructed at these works (both iron and wood) are of the finest model, and excite the admiration of the scientific in this important branch. Various manufactures, on a large scale, are established in this prosperous place, consisting of a sugar house (one of the most extensive in Scotland), chain cable works, roperies, iron and anchor foundries, sail-cloth factories, cooperages, and block-making.

Port Glasgow formerly belonged to the parish of Newark; in 1695 it was erected into a separate parochial district; and, in 1775, the town was constituted a burgh of barony, and its government confided to a provost, two magistrates, and seven councillors; it joins with Renfrew, Rutherglen, Dumbarton, and Kilmarnock in returning one member to parliament. Through the public spirit of the inhabitants, a new parish church was erected upon the site of the old one; in external appearance it is handsome, and its interior is chaste, elegant, and convenient: there is also a quoad sacra parish church, a free church, and a place of worship each for United Presbyterians, Reformed Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and Roman Catholics. The weekly market of Port Glasgow is held on Friday; and there is one annual fair, which takes place on the third Tuesday in July.

KILMALCOLM is a village situated on the east side of the parish of its name, on the road from the Bridge of Weir to Port Glasgow, ten miles from Paisley, seven from Greenock, and rather more than that distance from Johnstone; it is an agricultural district, intersected by the Gryfe, and the Duchal streams, whose banks are well cultivated, while a greater proportion of the surface of the parish presents the less pleasing contrast of moss and moor.

RENFREW, THE PARISH OF INCHINAN, AND YOKER.

RENFREW is an ancient town and royal burgh, the capital of the county and parish of its name; 50 miles W. from Edinburgh, 13 E. by S. from Port Glasgow, 6 W. from Glasgow, and 3 N. from Paisley; situated a short distance from the Clyde, and one mile east from the river Cart. In old charters the name of this place is variously written Ranfrew, Rainfrew and, as it is now spelt Renfrew; it is composed of two British words ren (or rhyn), a point or promontory, and frew, a flux or flow—implying 'a point of land subject to be overflowed by the tide,' which certainly is applicable to the local character and figure of a part of the parish. Walter, the first Stewart, built a castle here, on a small height called the Castle-hill, on the margin of the bank of the Clyde; and Renfrew was an early and favourite residence of the Stewarts, long ere they succeeded to the Scottish throne. The present town consists of one long street, from which several smaller streets issue. There have been established within the last few years two extensive ironfounding and engineering establishments, and two ship building yards, with slips capable of raising vessels of a thousand tons burthen, large gum and starch works, forge works, a dye works, &c.; these, with a distillery in operation at YOKER, are the principal establishments which come under the head of manufactures, if we except a number of looms employed in weaving for the Paisley and Glasgow houses. Gas has also been introduced and the town is well lighted. The magistrates have erected a commodious and substantial stone wharf, at which the largest vessels that frequent the river can discharge and load with the same facility as at Glasgow; from this part a branch line, on which the carriages are drawn by horses, communicates with the Paisley and Renfrew railway, whereby goods discharged are conveyed to the former town; the main line of the railway is connected with a wharf on the Clyde (about one hundred yards below the stone wharf), where passengers embark in, and land from, the different steam-boats navigating the Clyde. As a royal burgh, Renfrew is governed by a provost, two baillies, and nine councillors. It joins with Port Glasgow (and other places there named) in returning one member to parliament. The vicinity of the town is adorned by some fine estates and mansions; of the latter, the most worthy of the stranger's notice are Elderslie, the residence of Mrs. Spiers, and Blythwood, the seat of Archibald Campbell, Esq.—both situated on the banks of the Clyde, and their beauty increased by delightful plantations. The places of worship are an Established church and a Free church. There are also several good schools in the village. Fairs are held on the third Tuesday of May and the second Friday of June.

The parish of INCHINAN is situate to the north-west of Renfrew; it is watered by the Clyde, the White Cart and the Gryfe rivers. At the confluence of the two latter streams is a fine bridge of ten arches, forming a communication with Renfrew; to enable vessels navigating between Paisley and the Clyde to pass this bridge, a canal has been cut, across which has been thrown a handsome iron swing bridge. The road from Glasgow to Greenock passes through the whole length of this parish.

ROSS AND CROMARTY SHIRES.

ROSS-SHIRE.

THIS is a large section in the north of Scotland, being eighty miles in length and nearly the same in breadth (exclusive of the Isle of Lewis), extending from the German Ocean to the Atlantic. On the north it is bounded by Sutherlandshire, on the south by Inverness-shire, on the east by the Ocean and the small county of Cromarty, and on the west by the Western Sea: on the east coast the county terminates in an obtuse point, and on this side it is deeply penetrated by the bay of Cromarty; the western shore is laid open by many gulfs or arms of the sea, the waters of which roll far within the land. From the numerous indentations made by lakes and friths, the form of Ross-shire is of the most irregular character. The main land (exclusive of Cromartyshire) is computed to contain about one million, eight hundred and fifty thousand, eight hundred acres, and Lewis Isle three hundred and fifty nine thousand; of the first number, five thousand nine hundred belong to the district of Ferintosh, a part of the county of Nairn.

SOIL, SURFACE, CLIMATE, PRODUCE, &c.—The portion of this extensive county capable of cultivation is very small; the arable lands extend along the eastern coast, and are found in patches here and there on the western; a great proportion of the low lands of Easter Ross, and a small portion of those near Dingwall, is loamy clay; the rest is light soil, various qualities. The whole of this comprehensive shire, except a district on the east side, called Easter Ross, is mountainous, wild and pastoral: the mountains are for the most part in groups, many of them reaching a considerable elevation; Ben Wyvis is considered the most lofty—it rises upwards of 3,700 feet above the level of the sea. Almost the whole of the west coast presents magnificent mountain scenery, and the interior is in general picturesque. The climate of this county is unsteady, and exhibits the extremes of long dreary cold winters, and some very hot summer weather; the west coast is subject to heavy rains. The natural forests, which formerly covered large tracts, have nearly all disappeared, with the exception of the birch, and some oaks, in different parts of the county; the remains of fir woods are extensive, and the trunks of oaks of an immense size are still to be seen. Planting is prosecuted with great spirit—large additions have been in progress for many years. The improvements effected in farming within the last fifty years have completely changed the aspect of the district of Easter Ross; and indeed this portion, as well as other parts of the county, may now compete, in the skilful management of the land, with any other division of Scotland: to such perfection have the agriculturists of Ross-shire brought their system that they now grow wheat to the amount of twenty thousand quarters, and export grain in quantities of full ten thousand quarters. The mineralogy of the shire is interesting to the geologist, but of little value in a directly useful point of view: limestone occurs in several localities on the west coast, but there is a general destitution of coal throughout the county. The salmon fishery is carried on to a considerable extent in the different rivers and estuaries, and that for herrings is pursued with great success on the east coast, and partially on the west.

RIVERS AND LAKES.—The principal rivers on the east side of the county are the Conan, which flows into the Cromarty Firth, and the Oikel and the Carron, which pass into the Dornoch Firth; the largest stream on the west coast is the Ewe, which has a short course from Loch Maree. The Conan and its principal branch, the Raney (or Blackwater), form some falls of considerable height and beauty. The indentations of the sea, or saltwater lakes, on the west coast proceeding from north to south, are Loch Enard, Loch Broom, Loch Greinord, Loch Ewe, Gair-Loch, Loch Torridon, Loch Keeshorn, Loch Carron, and Loch Alsh, with (its inner southerly arm) Loch Duich. The county likewise possesses a great number of lakes of fresh water in the interior; but none of them, save Loch Maree, near the west coast, are of sufficient magnitude or beauty to excite interest.

DIVISION, REPRESENTATION, &c.—Ross-shire comprehends thirty complete parishes, and three parts of parishes; it has three royal burghs, namely, Dingwall, Tain, and Fortrose; the two former, with the town of Cromarty, join with Kirkwall, Wick, and Dornoch, in returning one member to parliament, and the shires of Ross and Cromarty unite in sending another. The burgh of Fortrose is associated with Inverness, Nairn, and Forres, in parliamentary representation.

CROMARTYSHIRE.

THIS county is so amalgamated with and intersected by Ross-shire, that, as is observed by respectable authorities, 'there can hardly be a literary separation of the two, as there should certainly not be a political.' The greater part of it lies in the 'Black Isle,' or that peninsula which is bounded by the Frith of Cromarty on the north and the Moray Frith on the south and east. The length of the district is about sixteen miles, and its average breadth between six and seven; it is computed that the superficies of the land in the county amounts altogether to about three hundred and forty square miles. Cromarty is mentioned, in the fifth parliament of James V, in the year 1537, as a separate county; and the same distinction is observed in subsequent legislative acts that apply to the statistical divisions of the country; yet it has still been included in the shrievalty of Ross, and at this time the sheriff substitute holds a monthly court at Cromarty (the only town in the shire), from which the county has received its distinctive recognised title.

SOIL, CLIMATE, PRODUCE, &c.—Originally, and at not a distant period, the greater part of this district presented a moorish unprofitable surface; but in recent times agricultural improvements, extensively pursued with persevering industry and skill, have materially changed its features: the soil has been rendered generally productive—planting has been introduced, and is gradually progressing. The climate is drier, and the air more genial, than in the further Northern and more western Highland tracts; the culture of the land has contributed to the amelioration of the temperature of Cromartyshire, and its crops are in most seasons earlier than in many of the adjacent districts. Its mineral treasure is but scanty,—freestone and granite comprise the only descriptions worthy of notice. The fisheries on the coast are the most productive sources of the public profit and prosperity.

CROMARTY

IS a burgh of barony, and the capital of its parish and county; 19½ miles N.E. from Inverness, 17 N.W. from Nairn, 11 s. from Tain, 9 N. by E. from Fortrose, and 8 w. by N. from Invergordon; situated upon a promontory, jutting into the neck of the sea connecting the Moray with the Cromarty firth, and at a short distance from the entrance into a harbour esteemed one of the safest and most capacious in North Britain; in this haven vessels of any tonnage may ride in perfect security. The entrance from the sea lies between two wooded headlands, called the 'Sutors of Cromarty,' which almost meet and reflect each other's form—producing an effect, in combination with the general scenery, eminently picturesque. The view from the hill of Cromarty is truly delightful, and is the admiration of every visitor. Beneath the south Sutor is a profound chasm, called 'Macfarquha's Bed, and a petrifying spring called the 'Dripping Well,' both attractive natural curiosities, never overlooked by the investigating stranger or tourist. Near the north Sutor are seven sunken rocks, termed the 'Seven King's Sons,' so named from the circumstance (according to tradition) of seven individuals who bore that relation to royalty having been shipwrecked upon them and drowned in returning from France. There is at present in the course of erection, on an eminence immediately behind the town, a monument to the memory of the late Hugh Miller, the eminent geologist, and author of the "Testimony of the Rocks," &c. who was a native of Cromarty. The column is 40 feet in height, and will be surmounted by a full sized figure of Hugh Miller. The execution of the work is by Mr. Handyside Ritchie, of Edinburgh. Some years since a fine commodious quay was constructed, at the joint expense of government and the proprietor of the Cromarty estate; and the town is supplied with water, by pipe, from the summit of the south Sutor, which will obviate the inconvenience long felt by the inhabitants from the deficiency of this indispensable element. The herring and white fishery is prosecuted in this quarter with persevering industry and general success: large quantities are exported to foreign countries, and the remainder (with the exception of the local consumption) to the London and various home markets. The monetary transactions of the place are facilitated by branches of the Caledonian Bank and the Commercial Bank of Scotland.

Cromarty was anciently a royal burgh, but was disfranchised by an act of the Scottish Privy Council, in compliance with the solicitations of Sir John Urquhart, proprietor of the estate of Cromarty; it now, however, holds the rank stated in the brief description of shires, and joins with Kirkwall, Wick, Dornock, Tain and Dingwall in returning one member to parliament.

The parish church, an ancient building, stands at the east end of the town, a chapel, for the accommodation of the Gaelic portion of the community, is situated on the hill south of the town, and a Free church, is the only other place of worship. A fair is held on the third Wednesday in November (old style).

DINGWALL,

STRATHPEFFER, MARYBURGH, CONAN BRIDGE, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

DINGWALL is a parish, royal burgh, and market town, the latter 178 miles N.N.W. from Edinburgh, 23 N.W. from Inverness, 20 S.W. from Cromarty, 13 S.W. from Invergordon, and 9 N. from Beauly; pleasantly situated in the eastern part of Ross-shire, on a fertile plain, near the western extremity of the beautiful frith of Cromarty, which is navigable at high water for light craft as far as the town. The burgh authorities have constructed, about three-quarters of a mile from the town, a pier, or jetty, for the convenience of vessels in discharging their cargoes or taking in freight. It is supposed that at some remote period Dingwall was much more extensive than it now is, as causeways and foundations of buildings have been found some hundreds of yards from the site of the present town. As it now exists, Dingwall is neat and well built, and consists of one main street, well paved, and a few smaller ones; it is copiously supplied with excellent water from springs above the town, into which it is conveyed by means of pipes. The town-house, near the centre of the burgh, is a curious old building, with a spire and clock; and the church is a plain structure, on the north side of the town. In the neighbourhood of the latter edifice is an obelisk, fifty-seven feet in height, erected to the memory of George, first Earl of Cromarty, who, eccentric at death as in life, in accordance with his last injunctions was buried here. Near the town formerly stood the mansion of the powerful and noble family of Ross; a rude fragment in the garden attached to a villa is now all that remains of that once princely domicile. Dingwall was erected a royal burgh by Alexander II., and its charter was renewed by James IV.; it is governed by a provost, two baillies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, and ten councillors, and joins with Cromarty, Tain, Dornock, Wick, and Kirkwall, in returning one member to parliament.

The town is eligibly situated for the purposes of a more extensive trade than it at present enjoys; its business is chiefly of a local character, manufactures not having as yet found a seat here. In the High-street of the town is a new, handsome, and spacious hotel, the National, built by Mr. Robertson, where the best of accommodation may be obtained. The Caledonian is also a comfortable commercial hotel. In the same street are branches respectively of the National Bank of Scotland, the Caledonian Bank, and the City of Glasgow Bank. A little to the west of the town stand the County Buildings, forming a very conspicuous feature in the general appearance of it: they were completed in 1845, at a cost of £5,000, and contain a county room, a sheriff's court room, and county clerk's, and other offices, together with one of the most complete prisons for its size in the kingdom.

Dingwall is surrounded by some of the most beautiful scenery in Scotland. The valley of Strathpeffer recedes to the westward, and is as lovely as any Lowland vale; while the mountains at its head present all the rude grandeur of the Highlands. The hill on the north side of the town, a beautiful woody declivity, will remind the traveller of the celebrated hill of Kinnoul, near Perth. About a mile and a half from Dingwall, on the road to Beauly, is the small village of MARYBURGH, seated on the left bank of the Conan, on the opposite side of which river is CONAN BRIDGE, another little village. In the former village a handsome Free church and manse were erected in 1850. The market of Dingwall is held every alternate Saturday; and the fairs on the third Wednesday in January; the third Wednesday in February; the first Wednesday in June; the first Tuesday in July; the first Wednesday in September, and in November, and the Tuesday next before Christmas (new style).

The mineral wells of STRATHPEFFER, situate at the upper extremity of a fertile valley of that name, which stretches about three miles due west from Dingwall, have occasioned the erection of some twenty or thirty neat villas or cottages around them for the accommodation of invalid visitors, and two good hotels, subsequently added. The small hamlet of Auchterhead, about two miles distant from the pump-room (or public lounge) attached to the principal well, and many of the adjacent farm houses, likewise furnish lodgings to strangers when their influx is great, as it generally is during the months of June, July and August. The situation of these wells is romantic—the neighbouring country fertile, and exceedingly beautiful. The springs seem to rise through the porous red sandstone which is prevalent in this district, and at no great distance from the lofty mountain, Ben Wyvis, one of the most conspicuous eminences in the north of Scotland. The waters have long been known as medicinal, and an analysis of their composition was published by Mr. Donald Munro in the Philosophical Transactions for 1772: they were brought into considerable celebrity by Dr. Morrison, an Aberdeenshire gentleman, who was an enthusiast for their sanitary virtues, affirming them to be the strongest and most salubrious in Great Britain; they have subsequently been visited by various scientific individuals, particularly by Dr. T. Thompson in May, 1828, who analysed the waters with the most scrupulous exactness. Strathpeffer is bounded on the north by a high sandstone ridge, and on the south it is skirted by the steep, green wooded acclivities of Knock-Farrel, one of the most extensive and strongly vitrified forts (or ancient beacon hills) in the country. The public road through the valley passes along the property, almost exclusively, of the Marchioness of Stafford, sole heiress of the estates of Cromertie, and bounds the grounds of the ancient seat of the Cromertie, Castle Leod, a castellated mansion, still inhabited; the same road, on quitting the strath, runs by the romantic and beautifully wooded knolls of Coul, the property of Sir William Mackenzie, Bart. and the manse, village, and island plain of Contin, beyond which the visiter of this district may either wander along the picturesque shores of Loch Echiltie, and the sheep-walks of Comrie to the cascades of the Conan—or, holding more to the north, he will be delighted with the falls of Rogie, on the Blackwater, which flows from the upland lake and moors of Strathgarve. Nearer to the mineral spa, he may likewise be gratified by a walk through the lawns and pleasure grounds of Brahan Castle, the ancient, and princely residence of the Seaforth family; this beautiful seat is situated below the southern slope of Knock-Farrel, and commands an extensive, magnificent and pleasingly varied prospect, comprehending the partially wooded and cultivated courses of the rivers Conan and Orrin.

FORTROSE, ROSEMARKIE, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

FORTROSE is a small market town and representative burgh in the parish of Rosemarkie; 21 miles s. from Tain, 18 N.N.E. from Beauly, and 10 N. from Inverness; situated on the north side of the inner part of the Moray Frith, nearly opposite to Fort George, from which it is distant two miles and a half. Before the abolition of episcopal establishments in Scotland, Fortrose cathedral was that of the bishopric of Ross, and this town was likewise the chief seat of learning in this quarter of the kingdom; it was mentioned in history by the title of the 'Chanonry of Ross.' James II, in 1444, united the town in burghal privileges with the neighbouring village of Rosemarkie, under the name of Fort-Ross, which has since been softened down into Fortrose. But small portions of the ancient cathedral now remain entire; one part of it is used as a court-house and prison, and another division a as burial-place. ROSEMARKIE is comparatively a meaner place than Fortrose, though in point of antiquity it takes precedence as being the parish town. The trade of shoemaking is the most prominent branch of business in Fortrose, while in Rosemarkie weaving is the chief occupation. Between the former place and Fort George there is a regular ferry, and the town has an excellent harbour, erected by parliamentary commissioners, which is frequented by the London, Leith, Aberdeen and Dundee traders. Fortrose enjoys every advantage for sea-bathing; and there is an excellent hotel—the 'Royal,' which affords very good accomodation, and is also a posting establishment. The burgh is governed by a provost, three baillies, a dean of guild and nine councillors; and it joins with Inverness, Forres and Nairn in sending one member to parliament.

The parish church, which is at Rosemarkte, is a modern erection, having been completed in 1821; it is in the late gothic style, and considered to be a very handsome well-finished building; its situation has been happily selected, and its commanding aspect on the coast uniformly attracts the particular notice of strangers. More recently a neat church has been erected at Fortrose for the free communion of Scotland, and there is an Episcopal chapel. The parish of Rosemarkie extends six miles in length, by three in breadth Its situation is fine and pleasant; the hills both on the north and south are, for the most part, arable, being in summer covered with verdure, and producing early and abundant crops. The coast all along between Rosemarkie and Cromarty is bold and rocky; it abounds with romantic views and frightful precipices. As the country lies dry and has the benefit of fine sea breezes, the air is pure and salubrious. Fairs are held on the first Wednesday in April, the third Wednesday in June, and the first Wednesday in November.

INVERGORDON AND ROSSKEEN, ALNESS, EVANTON,

AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

INVERGORDON is a thriving sea-port village, in the parish of Roskeen, county of Ross; 12 miles s.s.w. from Tain, 13 N.N.E. from Dingwall, and 8 W. by N. from Cromarty, most eligibly seated on the north side of the fine bay of Cromarty, from whence there is a regular ferry to the opposite shore of the frith. For the accommodation of persons crossing, a small pier was erected in 1821, partly at the expense of the county and partly with the assistance of government, so that boats can now land their passengers at any time of the tide; but the most valuable and important improvement conferred upon the port has been effected through the munificence and the public spirit of the proprietor, R. B. Æ. M'Leod, Esq. of Cadboll, who at his own expense constructed an excellent harbour in 1828, from the central situation of which all goods for the eastern and western parts of Ross-shire, as well as for most districts of Sutherlandshire, are at present unshipped here. In 1857 large and extensive wooden piers were erected, which renders the harbour in every way complete. Since the weekly arrival and departure of the London and Leith steam-vessels at the port, a considerable trade has been created in the exportation of cattle. The bay is perfectly commodious and safe, and capable of containing a large fleet, with anchorage of the best description, from which vessels never drive—the 'Souters of Cromarty' forming a natural mouth to one great harbour. The village has undergone considerable improvement of late years, and its appearance enlivened by the erection of some excellent buildings, amongst which may be mentioned a handsome house and offices belonging to the Commercial Bank, and also several shops, which for elegance are not surpassed in the north of Scotland. The manufacture of hemp was carried on in this town some years ago with very considerable spirit, by two establishments; nothing is now done in this branch of commerce. Few places possess greater attraction or convenience for sea bathing than Invergordon; this circumstance, together with the salubrity of the climate, the comparatively short distance to the Strathpeffer mineral wells, now of so much celebrity, and its lately formed accommodations as a port, have combined to raise this once unimportant village into a station of consequence enjoyed by few places of its size. Two banking establishments are settled here—they are branches respectively of the 'Commercial Bank of Scotland' and the 'North of Scotland Bank.' There are several comfortable inns—the principal one, the 'Commercial,' in High-street, affording the best accommodation to tourists and travellers—is an excellent house. A justice of peace court is held monthly, and a sheriff court quarterly.

About one mile from the town is Invergordon Castle, where are some fine plantations. In November, 1801, the centre of the edifice was accidentally destroyed by fire; and that part has remained in a ruinous state since the unfortunate occurrence; the left wing of the building is the portion at present occupied by the family. The parish of Rosskeen extends six miles along the Frith of Cromarty, and ten inland. The parish of Alness lies on the west, and Logie Easter on the east. The lower part of the parish, which lies along the Frith, and for about two miles back, forms a gentle and easy ascent towards the hills. A hill called Knock-Navie or Cold hill, divides the lower from the highland part of the parish. Beyond the upper arable ground and inhabited glens, is a very considerable range of mountains, applicable to no other purpose than that of pasturing black cattle or sheep. Like the adjacent parts of the shire, the parish has been greatly improved in agricultural capabilities, and now possesses some fine plantations, the chief of these being at Invergordon Castle, above noticed.

Fairs are held on the third Tuesday in February, the second Tuesday in April and December (old style), and the first Tuesday in August and October (old style).

ALNESS is a small village, partly in the parish of its name, and partly in that of Rosskeen, three miles from Invergordon, situated on both sides of the Alness (which river separates the two parishes), and on the north side of Cromarty bay; the church is about half a mile from the village. The distillation of whisky is carried on extensively in this parish by two large establishments. The following fairs are held at Alness:—On the second Wednesday in June, Wednesday before the third Thursday in July, and Wednesday after the third Tuesday in September.

EVANTON is a rural village, about seven miles from Invergordon and four from Alness, situate, like the two latter places, on the north side of Cromarty bay, and sheltered by a row of trees, which defend it from the sea-breeze. The church is about a mile distant. About two miles to the westward is Foulis ferry, used for loading grain, timber and cattle: and a mile north-east of the village is a deep ravine, called 'Aultgraade,' supposed to have been formed, at some very early period, by a mighty convulsion of nature. Fairs are held in this village on the second Tuesdays in the months of May, August and November.

POOLEWE, GAIRLOCH, AULTBEA, KENLOCHEWE,

AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

POOLEWE is a small village in the parish of Gairloch, in the county of Ross; 64 miles W. from Dingwall, and about the same distance S.E. from Stornoway; situated at the head of a fine bay called Loch Ewe. According to an inventory from the title deeds, still in the possession of the Gairloch family, the old name for the village of Poolewe was Clive. It was erected into a borough of barons in 1619, and a charter of registration, in favour of the then proprietor, was granted under the Great Seal, erecting the borough of Clive, on the water of Ewe, into a borough of barons; and the harbour of Ewe into a free port, with power from year to year of electing a provost, baillies, &c., and not only of keeping borough courts for the good government of the borough, and the administration of justice to the inhabitants, and all others concerned, but of creating burgesses, levying the borough duties, buying and selling merchandise as practised in other boroughs of the kingdom, and planting artizans, keeping weights and measures, and levying customs, anchorage, &c. after the manner of other royalties; of having a market cross, a Saturday market once a week, and a public market once a year, under the name of Michaelmas market, beginning September 29th, and continuing four days. It does not appear that any use was ever made of this charter, as far as the borough of Clive was concerned. It is very probable that the proprietor of Gairloch, may have desired to introduce trade and commerce into the country, and had 'planted artizans' at Poolewe, and obtained this charter to encourage the settling of others. However this may be, Poolewe at the present day has no evidence of the success of such an attempt. The proprietor, John of Gairloch may have attempted such favourite schemes; but it appears his successor Alexander did not carry them out. John died 11 years after the granting of the charter, and Alexander 8 years later, leaving a son, Kenneth, a minor. Poolewe is part of the Estate of Gairloch—is a quoad sacra parish—a quoad sacra church, and two Free churches (in which the minister officiates alternately) are the places of worship. In Poolewe and the neighbouring villages are several schools for the education of the young, a girls school at BUALNALUIP is one of the finest erections for educational purposes in any rural parish in the north of Scotland, it was erected and endowed by T. H. M'Kenzie, Esq. (brother of Sir K. S. M'Kenzie), and is under the able superintendence of Miss Fraser. The only station on the west coast for curing salmon, grilse and trout, is that at Poolewe; which is carried on to a great extent by Messrs. Hogarth & Co., of Aberdeen. Poolewe is about two miles from Loch Maree which abounds with fish. This lake contains twenty-four islands; some of these are but little raised above the water, and are covered with scattered firs, and with thickets of birch, alder, and holly; while they are separated by narrow sinuous channels. The northern margin of the loch presents a variety of close shore scenery, consisting of rocky and wooded bays and creeks crowned by noble overhanging cliffs and mountains; in one place the remains of a fir forest, in a situation almost incredible, produces a style of landscape that might be expected among the Alps, but not within the more confined scope and lower arrangements of Scottish mountains. The lake is eighteen miles in length by from three to four broad; one of the islands is called Maree, from which the water takes its name; tradition says that some noble personages from Norway were buried here. Mr. Macculloch, after describing this beautiful lake, adds,—'I ought not to forget, before quitting Loch Maree, what is interesting as a point of natural history, namely the existence of the grey eagle in this place, because it is not known anywhere else in Scotland. There was a pair in Pennant's time, and there is a pair still, one of which I (Mr. Macculloch) had the good fortune to see; it is a long-lived bird, and it is not unlikely that these are the same individuals.' Loch Maree is the property of Sir Kenneth S. M'Kenzie, of Gairloch. Into the inner part of Loch Ewe (or Ew, or Eu) pours the river Ewe, which is scarcely two miles in length, and is the natural outlet from Loch Maree; the river has a rapid turbulent course, and is noted for the abundance of its salmon. About one hundred and seventy-five years ago, an extensive iron furnace was in operation near Poolewe, but its fires became extinguished after consuming the greater part of the timber around it. A block of pig iron found in the ruins of this furnace, may still be seen in the agricultural school of Poolewe.

GAIRLOCH parish is about forty miles in length by thirty-eight in breadth, and abounds in mountains, lochs, heath, &c. For beauty of scenery and abundance of game of all descriptions, it is perhaps unsurpassed by any other district in the north. An Established and a Free Church, together with several schools are in the parish.

STORNOWAY.

STORNOWAY is a parish in the Island of Lewis, county of Ross—the town, which has greatly increased in importance of late years, is 65 miles N. from Portree (in Skye), and 100 from Poolewe (described in a preceding page). It is situated in north latitude 58 deg. 7 min., and in west longitude 6 deg. 14 min. 10 sec., at the head of a fine bay, called Loch Stornoway, considered one of the safest and most commodious harbours in North or even Great Britain; the entrance to it is north and north-by-west, and is easy of access to vessels of any burthen, at any time of the tide. A light-house stands on Arinish point, on the south side of the harbour, erected by the Commissioners of Northern Lights; another light-house is in course of erection on the Butt of Lewis by the commissioners. The harbour is built round the bay, in form of an amphitheatre, and the streets run in direct lines; the houses are neat and well built, and, being in general whitewashed, have a clean appearance. A most convenient quay, with slips and landing-places, was constructed by public subscription. The stranger, on entering the bay, is forcibly struck with the imposing and magnificent appearance of Lewis Castle, in the Tudor and castellated style of architecture. It occupies a commanding position west of the town, and was erected by its present proprietor, Sir James Matheson, M.P. for Ross-shire, at an outlay of £20,000. The town, too, as seen on entering the bay, presents a pleasing aspect. From small origin, Stornoway has gradually risen to considerable importance, through the spirit and enterprise of its inhabitants; and these exertions have been effectually seconded by the present liberal proprietor; and the ample resources of this gentleman have been applied to promote both the agricultural and commercial value of the Lewis in general, and Stornoway in particular. Among the improvements accomplished, within a very short period, may be mentioned the draining two thousand acres of moor or waste land; planting several hundred acres with timber trees; whilst immediately surrounding the castle, pleasure grounds and walks have been tastefully laid out; ponds sunk and drives formed. One hundred miles of old roads have been thoroughly repaired, and the same distance of new ways made in various directions. Twenty-one bridges have been thrown across rivers and rapid streams, in different parts of the island; and in Stornoway, a patent slip has been constructed, at a cost of £6,000, which will draw up vessels of eight hundred tons burthen into dock, for the purpose of making repairs—a great advantage to the ship owners of Stornoway, and others visiting the port. The white fishery, consisting of codlings and herrings, has been long and successfully prosecuted in these waters; besides which, the salmon fishery is very productive. From five hundred to six hundred boats, with a complement of six hands to each boat, are employed in the season through the island; and during some of these periods four hundred tons of fish, or more, have been exported; consisting chiefly of cod, lings and herrings. We may in this place be allowed to state a fact, which, though at the time deemed interesting merely as a singular occurrence, involves considerations worthy of being entertained in a more important light, as creating, possibly at no distant period, another branch of marine pursuit, upon our own shores, that has hitherto been followed only in more distant seas, accompanied by extreme perils and privations—we allude to the whale fishery. On the morning of the 4th of July, of the year 1837, a shoal of several hundreds of whales, of the bottle-nose species, came into the bay of Stornoway; the greatest bustle and activity was immediately manifested amongst the inhabitants—chase was instantly commenced upon these unusual visitors, and, after an arduous and severe contest, twenty-eight of these leviathans of the deep were driven on shore. The writer of this article witnessed the opening of one of these enormous fish: in the paunch were found the remains of nine fine salmon, two of which, when alive, could not have weighed less than twenty pounds each, and they exhibited every appearance of having been swallowed whole. If we may except a ropery and a corn mill, Stornoway derives but little prosperity or consequence from manufactures. Its monetary transactions are facilitated by branches of the National Bank of Scotland and the City of Glasgow Bank, which have been established in this distant quarter for many years. There are likewise agents for Loyds, and for several insurance companies, and three or four excellent inns—of the latter, the Caledonian Hotel and the Lewis Hotel may be considered as exceedingly eligible establishments for families, commercial gentlemen, or for posting. The town is supplied with gas and water by joint-stock companies, munificently promoted by the great patron of the place.

Stornoway was erected into a burgh or barony by James VI, with the design of promoting the civilisation of the western isles. A sheriff's court sits every Tuesday; and a justice of peace, commissary and baron baillie courts are held as occasion may require. In respect to edifices, ornamental in their architecture, the only buildings deserving notice are the Established, the Episcopal and Free churches, the Masons' Hall, a commodious prison, erected in 1845, and a few private residences along the beach of handsome exterior. Stornoway possesses several educational, religious and social institutions. The Free Church and General Assembly's schools are very efficient establishments, conducted upon the plan of the Normal seminaries; there are also two schools for females; one instituted and endowed by the proprietor and his lady, affording a thorough English education to numerous pupils, and instructions in every description of needle-work; having a department for Ayrshire needle-work alone—the materials of which are supplied by Glasgow houses, who pay the pupils for their work. There are several other schools, built and endowed by the same benevolent gentleman, in various parts of the island, and one founded by the Society for Propagating Christian Knowledge. The friendly society and incorporated trades' society (association for the support of the aged and infirm), are liberally sustained by their respective benevolent members. But an association of the first consequence is the Horticultural Society, established by the gentleman we have had occasion so frequently to refer to; this association promises advantageous results from its already flourishing condition. The edifice erected for the service of a masonic lodge is a handsome structure; in it are occasionally held assemblies, concerts and public meetings; in the same building is a news-room and a public library.

The parish of Stornoway lies on the north-east of Lewis Island, bounded on the inland side by Barvas—it extends nineteen miles in length, by from seven to four in breadth. The surface is generally flat and moorish; the shores partly sandy and partly rocky, and are indented by a number of bays. In addition to the more immediate local improvements effected by the proprietor before, and so often mentioned, he has facilitated the means of communication between Lewis and Stornoway with distant parts. The Messrs. Hutcheson, of Glasgow, have built two large steamers, which are handsomely fitted up for passengers, and ply between Glasgow and Stornoway twice a week in summer, and once a week in winter. Persons also having to visit Stornoway can proceed from Edinburgh or Glasgow to Inverness; thence to Dingwal, by coach, and then to Loch Maree by mail car; from the latter point is a boat to Poolewe in winter once a week, and from Poolewe is a mail packet to Stornoway.

POST OFFICE, STORNOWAY, W. M. Macaulay, Post Master.—Letters are despatched (in summer) twice a week, on Mondays and Wednesdays, per steamer for GREENOCK, PORTREE, and all intermediate places, and are received on Wednesdays and Saturdays. In winter there is only one steamer and a mail packet once a week, between STORNOWAY and POOLEWE. Mails are despatched to GARRABOST and HARRIS twice a week, and to BARVAS and MIVAIG once a week by foot messengers.

Money Order Office.—Money orders are granted and paid. A money order office has lately been opened at HARRIS.

TAIN,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF PORT MAHAMACK, AND BONAR-BRIDGE, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

TAIN is a parish, a royal burgh, and a market town. The latter 46 miles N. from Inverness, and 26 N. by E. from Dingwall, occupying a gentle acclivity about a mile from the frith of Dornoch, across which arm of the sea several ferries are established, and near its head an iron bridge crosses it. The ancient Gaelic name of the town is Baldnei, signifying 'the town of St. Duthac' (or Duthus), to whom the old church and chapel in the parish had been dedicated. The church, which was founded by Thomas, Bishop of Ross in 1428, and was an elegant structure, is now in a state of melancholy dilapidation. St. Duthac seems to have been a saint who enjoyed a considerable reputation in Scotland, in the fifteenth century, as tradition records that James IV. once made a pilgrimage on foot from Falkland, in Fife, to his shrine at the church of Tain, for the expiation of some offence. He travelled with unsual expedition, resting only a short time by the way, at the monastery of Pluscardine, and on his arrival bestowed upon the town of Tain extensive grants of land, with other immunities. The inhabitants hearing of his approach, constructed a hasty roadway over a peat-moss within a few miles of the town, which is still called 'the King's causeway.' A rich agricultural district surrounds the town, which is old and irregularly built; but of late years it has received improvements and additions by the erection of many good houses and some buildings for public use—among the latter is a large modern edifice for assemblies and public meetings; a new town hall surmounted by pinnacles, and presenting a handsome appearance; the churches, and the royal academy. The last named, which is agreeably situated in an open park, at the west end of the town, and is a superior educational institution, was founded by royal charter in 1809, and opened in 1822; the cost of its erection having been raised by subscription. The courses of education are conducted by a rector, with a classical master and assistants. The town hall previous to 1833 was used as a place of confinement for debtors; in April of that year it was destroyed by fire, when three persons perished in the flames; the new town hall is erected on its site. The trade of Tain is of the usual character found in country towns where manufactures have not appeared. The most prominent branches are distilling brewing, an iron foundry, and in the vicinity of the town a woollen mill. There are two banking houses established here—they are branches, respectively, of the British Linen Company, and of the Commercial Bank of Scotland. Seated almost on the shore of an arm of the sea, Tain has of late years improved very considerably with regard to shipping, a few shipowners being now resident in the town. As a royal burgh, it is governed by a provost, three baillies, a dean of guild, treasurer and nine councillors; and unites with Cromarty and other contributory burghs (named under that town), in returning one member to parliament. A sheriff small debt court is held in Tain every Tuesday during session, and a justice of peace court every Thursday fortnight. The places of worship are a church of the Establishment; a Free church—a handsome building erected in 1844, and a United Presbyterian church. The first mentioned edifice is of considerable dimensions—in form quadrangular, with a castellated tower at each corner, which, not rising above the main body of the building, renders the general appearance of the whole more massive than elegant. The parish of Tain extends eight miles along the south shore of the Dornoch Frith, by a breadth of two miles inland. The ground in general is flat, but, towards the west, rather hilly. The district is tolerably well wooded, much improved by agricultural operations and upon the whole, of pleasing appearance. The sea shore is flat and sandy. The principal markets are held on the Wednesday after the second Tuesday of July, on the Wednesday after the third Tuesday of August, and on the third Tuesday of October.

PORT MAHAMACK, or, as it is variously written Portma halmack, and Port-halmack, is a small sea-port and fishing village in the parish of Tarbat, 12 miles E. from Tain; situated on the north coast. The curing of fish during the season is carried on here very extensively.

BONAR BRIDGE is a considerable village in the parish of Criech. 15 miles W. from Tain; situated on the great north mail road, and on the north side of the Frith of Dornoch, which is here crossed by an elegant iron bridge, erected by government in 1812, at a cost of £13,971. Fairs are held in the village on the third Tuesdays in July, August, and September.

ULLAPOOL AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

ULLAPOOL is a sea-port and fishing village in the parish of Loch Broom, 61 miles W. by N. from Inverness, 50 N. W. by W. from Dingwall, and 30 N. E. from Poolewe, situated on the west coast of Ross-shire, on the north side of an extensive islet of the sea, called Loch Broom; and it is overhung by a long rugged precipitous face of rock. It was begun to be built under the auspices of the British Fishery Society, in 1788, and has been gradually increasing since that period. It possesses a spacious and excellent harbour, and there is a good quay for the use of vessels, some of which sail regularly to Portree and Stornoway in Lewis. The nearest railway station at present is at Inverness, but an extension of the line to Dingwall and Tain is in contemplation. When this line is completed, thirty hours will suffice in travelling from London to Ullapool. The chief trade of this place is the herring fishery, which is the main dependence of its inhabitants. Prodigious shoals of this fish appear off the coast of Loch Broom as early as May, but they pass on towards the south, and do not strike into the lochs and arms of the sea as to be of benefit to the inhabitants until the month of September, when their appearance is anxiously looked for, great preparations made, and considerable expense incurred by the poor people, to profit by their expected bounty. When the shoals set fairly in, and remain in the lochs and bays, the number taken is very great, and of the very best quality. Ullapool, in the season, is attended from all parts of the east and west coast, and even from Ireland by curers, and during this period the place presents a very animated appearance.

The want of good roads in this district has been an inconvenience long felt by inhabitants of the circumjacent country; this deficiency has been ascribed justly to the absence of the proprietors of the land. Within the last few years, Hugh M'Kenzie, Esq. of Ardross and Dundonnell, became a resident proprietor, and opened up new roads in various directions. Now Ullapool is the property of the Marchioness of Stafford, Sir James Matheson, Bart., M. P. being the feuer, he has conferred great benefits on Stornaway, and otLer parts of the Lewis, by his spirited and costly improvements in roads, &c.: Ullapool may therefore look confidently forward to future days of prosperity under his fostering care.

The parish church was erected at the head of Loch Broom in 1817, and contains sittings for a congregation of twelve hundred. There is a quoad sacra church with a district attached; it was erected into a parish quoad sacra in 1859. A Free church is also situated in the village. Schools are connected with each. The parochial school, which is eight miles from the village, is an admirably conducted one, and the departments of education entered upon are of the first class: the present talented master is Mr. M'Leay. A justice of peace court for the recovery of small debts sits on the first Tuesday of every month, in the village.

POST OFFICE, ULLAPOOL, Donald Maclean, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from DINGWALL), every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at four in the afternoon; and are despatched on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, at nine in the morning.

ROXBURGHSHIRE.

THIS county, which lies on the south-eastern border of Scotland, is bounded by Northumberland on the east, Dumfries-shire on the south-west, by the county of Selkirk on the west, by Berwickshire on the north, and by Northumberland and part of Cumberland on the south. The figure of the county is extremely irregular: it measures from its extreme point on the south to that part which is inserted between the counties of Berwick and Edinburgh, upwards of forty miles; and from east to west, near the centre, about thirty miles. The area of the shire has been variously estimated as containing six hundred and seventy two, six hundred and ninety six, and seven hundred and twenty square miles of land; rather less than one-half is brought into cultivation. The county is divided by its waters into several districts, of which the chief and largest is Tiviotdale, being that division drained by the Tiviot and its tributary streams; this district comprehends about 520 square miles. Liddisdale which forms the south-west corner of the county, comprehends the alpine territory, which is drained by the Liddle and its tributaries, and contain about 120 square miles. The third division lies between the Gala and Leader streams, measuring 28 square miles; and the fourth, which is situate north of the Tweed, is included in 'the Merse,' and comprehends 27 miles.

EARLY HISTORY.—At the time of the Christian epoch the western and greater part of Roxburghshire was inhabited by the Gadenii, while the eastern and lesser districts were occupied by the Ottadinii, who had numerous strong holds in the shire—ruins and traces of which are still visible; the district is also intersected by Roman roads in various directions, and the whole shire presents a field of the greatest interest to the antiquary and the historian. There is another class of antiquities (the memorials of after ages) belonging to the county, worthy of notice and inspection—these are towers or castles; among them are the castle of Jedburgh, that of Roxburgh, Hermitage castle (in Liddisdale), and other similar structures of minor celebrity. The district was likewise famed for its religious edifices, which included the abbeys of Jedburgh, Melrose, and Kelso. From its situation on the confines of the two kingdoms, Roxburghshire suffered severely throughout the various border wars; few were so distinguished in the conflicts of the middle ages as the 'men of Tiviotdale,' many of whom followed David, in 1128, to 'the Battle of the Standard,' in which they fought by his side, and shared his misfortune. During these fierce aggressions, the marches of the kingdom were at different periods contracted and extended (this district being occasionally wholly or partly under English domination), till the year 1357, when the borders were finally settled as they then happened to lie; and by this arrangement Roxburghshire was for ever attached to Scotland.

SURFACE, SOIL, PRODUCE, MANUFACTURES, &c.—The southern parts of Roxburghshire are very mountainous, and throughout the whole territory there is little land absolutely flat; in many instances, however, the hilly grounds rise in beautiful swells from the rich vallies at their base: the aspect of the country is thus finely diversified in respect to surface and elevation, while the beauty of the district is greatly enhanced by the clear rivers and brooks poured through the different vales. The following are the principal mountains and eminences, with their respective altitudes above the level of the sea:—Cheviot, 2,682 feet; Chill Hill, Millenwood Fells, and Windhead Fell, each 2,000; Tudhope Fell, 1,830; Carter Fell, 1,602; Meggs Hills, 1,480; Ruberlaw, 1,419; Eildon Hills, 1,330; Dunnian, 1,021; Minto Hills, 858; and Minto Craigs, 649. The soil of the county is various, and much of it exceedingly fertile: in some parts a rich loam prevails—in others, gravel and clay, in various proportions; the heavy clayey soil chiefly occupying the higher grounds, while the valued loam is generally found on low and level tracts, near the beds of rivers and rivulets. In Liddisdale there is much mossy land; but for a country so mountainous, the proportion of heath and moss is inconsiderable. It has been ascertained that, so early as the twelfth century, the district produced great quantities of corn; and the amount of barley then ground at the mills exhibited the progress in the manufacture of grain. Under the intelligent monks, the agriculture of the county is known to have arrived at considerable perfection; and it is a matter of certainty that they introduced a knowledge of horticulture. In later times, Roxburghshire has kept pace with the other counties in those extraordinary improvements in the management of the soil, and in the rearing of stock, for which Scotland in general is now distinguished. The mineralogy of the shire is neither valuable or varied. Between the years 1760 and 1770, coal was discovered in the hill called Carter Fell, in this county, near the border of Northumberland; but, though wrought for some time, was ultimately abandoned as unprofitable; another seam was subsequently found near the south eastern point of Liddisdale, from which little benefit has been derived beyond that detached district; various attempts have been made to discover coal in different places in the county, but not one of them was conducted on a scale adequate to the importance of the object; the inhabitants are still supplied with this valuable fossil from Dumfries-shire, Lothian or Northumberland. The manufactures of Roxburghshire are not extensive: if a staple of the county may be particularised, it is that of articles manufactured from wool, the seats of which are at Hawick, Jedburgh, and Kelso, where flannels, blankets, woollen cloth, lambs' wool yarn, and hosiery and some linen, are extensively manufactured. The county contains many elegant mansions and beautiful seats: one of the most interesting of these is 'Abbotsford,' the seat of the late eminent novelist, Sir Walter Scott; it is a fine Gothic castle, the internal and external decorations of which, characterize it has having been the residence of the poet, the antiquary, and the man of superior and refined taste: but not to the mansion was the cultivated taste and judgment of the poet confined—he covered his extensive property with the most skilfully disposed and thriving plantations, and by his improvements induced others to contribute to ornament that beautiful portion of the valley of the Tweed.

RIVERS AND RAILWAYS.—The principal streams of Roxburghshire are beautiful and interesting, and their tributaries numerous. The noble Tweed enters the county near the influx of the Ettrick, winds through the fertile vales of Melrose and Kelso, and, in a course of thirty miles, receives the Gala, the Allan, the Leader, the Tiviot and the Eden. The TIVIOT, which falls into the Tweed nearly opposite to Kelso, is a lovely river; it passes through a vale to which it gives name, and, in a course of from thirty to forty miles, receives the Borthwick, the Ale, the Slitterick, the Rule, the Jed, the Oxnam and the Keaile Waters, with many subsidiary streamlets. The Liddal (or Liddle) rises in and runs through the parish of Castletown; it gives the name of Liddisdale to a division of the county, and for a distance of four or five miles forms the boundary with England: the streams tributary to the Liddal are the Hermitage, the Tweeden, the Tennis, the Kershope and the Blackburn. The Tyne and Coquet rivers have their origin in this county; after which they enter England, and fall into the sea at Tynemouth and Coquet Isle. The waters of Roxburghshire, while useful and ornamental to the country through which they glide, possess considerable interest with both the antiquary and the poet, from the associations connected with their streams; for besides being frequently mentioned in the pages of history, they have elicited laudatory strains from the Scottish lyrists—among the rest those of the author of the Seasons. The principal Railways that have connection with this county are, the 'North British,' the 'Edinburgh and Hawick,' the 'York, Newcastle and Berwick,' and the 'Berwick and Kelso,' all branches of, or in connexion with the first mentioned line, these, besides the places indicated by their designations, include various other towns in their respective routes. From Roxburgh, a branch from the Berwick and Kelso line runs to Jedburgh.

The county of Roxburgh comprises thirty entire parishes, and five parts of parishes: it contains only one Royal Burgh—JEDBURGH—which, in connexion with Haddington, Dunbar, North Berwick and Lauder, returns one member to parliament; and the county sends another.

ANCRUM AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

ANCRUM is a small village in the united parish of Ancrum and Langnewton, 12 miles W. from Kelso, 11 E. from Hawick, and 4 N. from Jedburgh; pleasantly situated on the right bank of the water of Ale, about a mile above its junction with the Teviot, and about 3 miles from the Hawick branch of the North British railway. Ancrum House, the residence of Sir William Scott, stands in a delightful position, and commands some beautifully picturesque prospects; the trees in the park are considered the oldest and finest in this part of the country. At a short distance east of the village stood Ancrum Castle; opposite to which, in the face of a perpendicular rock, are some caves, supposed to have been places of retreat in the troubles of former ages. In the early part of the last century the banks of the Teviot and Ale, at this spot, were the favourite haunt of Thomson, the poet of 'The Seasons;' one of the caves just mentioned is still pointed out, in which, it is said, he frequently retired to indulge his reveries, and on that account is called 'Thomson's cave;' his name is carved on the roof, by (it is supposed) his own hand. Mount Teviot, the residence of the Marquess of Lothian, is also in the village. Dr. Buchan, the celebrated author of the 'Domestic Medicine' and other medical works, was born in this village. The parish stretches six miles along the north side of the river Teviot, and its breadth is about four miles. A part of the Roman road that led from York to the banks of the Forth passes through the north corner of the parish, and the remains of a Roman encampment are likewise sufficiently discernible.

DENHOLM

IS a small village in the parish of Cavers, five miles from Jedburgh, and the same distance from Hawick, pleasantly situated near the Teviot, which is here crossed by a neat suspension bridge for foot passengers. The greater proportion of the inhabitants are stocking weavers, and others are engaged in rural affairs. Many are also employed in the stone quarries adjoining the village. The parish contains an Established church, a Free church, a chapel for Independents, and schools in connexion with each. In the village are two libraries—one subscription, the other free. A horticultural society was formed here in 1849. The celebrated Dr. Leyden was born here. The upper part of the district is hilly and pastoral, while the lower, which is in a fine state of cultivation declines into rich arable fields

RAILWAY

HASSENDEAN Station, on the DALKEITH and HAWICK BRANCH of the NORTH BRITISH LINE, is two and a half miles from DENHOLM

HAWICK,

INCLUDING THE NOBILITY, GENTRY AND CLERGY IN THE PARISHES OF CAVERS, HOBKIRK, KIRKTOWN, MINTO, ROBERTON, TEVIOT-HEAD, AND WILTON.

HAWICK is a thriving manufacturing town, a free burgh of regality, and capital of its parish, 50 miles S. by E. from Edinburgh, 20 S. W. from Kelso, 11 S. from Selkirk, and 45 N. from Carlisle; situated on the high road between the last-named city and Edinburgh, on the Hawick branch of the North British railway, for which line there is a station not far from the centre of the town. It is seated at the confluence of the Slitrig with the Teviot. By the former river the town is divided into nearly two equal parts, which are connected by two stone bridges, one of which bears the marks of great antiquity. From its approximate position to the border of the two kingdoms, Hawick generally suffered severely from the incursions of the English, and was more than once burnt. One of its most destructive conflagrations occurred in 1570, when it was set fire to by the English under Lord Sussex. The present town consists chiefly of one long spacious street on the right bank of the Teviot, with some other thoroughfares of inferior grade. The entire is well paved, lighted with gas, and supplied with excellent spring water, conveyed through leaden pipes. In the High-street stands the town-house, in which the burgh and justice of peace courts are held. The environs of Hawick are much admired by strangers; but the improvement of the neighbourhood is much retarded by the territory being held under strict entail, which prevents gentlemen of fortune from settling in this part of the country and embellishing its natural loveliness. The banks of the Teviot are extremely picturesque and delightful, and the approach to the town from the south can be scarcely surpassed for beauty: the extensive nursery grounds, which are so celebrated throughout the kingdom, are in the immediate vicinity of the town, and materially heighten the general effect of the scenery: the grounds belong to the Messrs. Dickson & Turnbulls', and were first established by members of the first-named family upwards of a century ago. To obviate the inconvenience which existed in the approach to the town from the north, a handsome bridge was constructed in 1832, and various other improvements, in this as well as different parts of the burgh, have been effected. The great increase of manufacturing establishments, together with the erection of extensive mills and the enlargement of others, have conduced to the increase of the population, and the consequent augmentation of buildings.

Hawick is a burgh of barony, independent of the lord of erection, and appears to have existed free from a very early period; but the documents of the burgh having been either lost or destroyed during the inroads of the English borderers, a charter was granted in the year 1545, by James, Douglas Comes de Drumlanrig, confirming to the burgesses such rights and lands as they formerly possessed; and in the month of May of the same year this was confirmed by another charter, granted by Queen Mary: under these grants the burgesses annually elect their magistrates, consisting of two baillies, and two representatives of each of seven incorporated trades, who, with fifteen councillors (elected for life), manage all municipal affairs of the town. The burgh enjoys all the privileges of a royal one, except that of returning members to parliament. An annual ceremony, which, it is conjectured, was imposed by one of the charters, still continues to be observed—it is called 'common riding.' The ceremony originated, according to tradition, from the circumstance of some young men of the town having surprised a party of English, during the night, about two miles below the town, and, after slaying the greater part of them, took possession of their colour; this happened in the year 1514. The ensign is now borne by an unmarried man of the burgh, elected for the occasion, and dubbed with the title of 'Cornet,' who accompanies the authorities in procession round the lands belonging to the town, of which a grant was made from the Laird of Drumlanrig, as a reward for their valour displayed in obtaining the standard. The perambulation, which takes place in the month of June, is succeeded by horse-racing, and various national and local gymnastic exercises, to the fortunate competitors in which are awarded proportionate stakes and prizes.

Hawick is one of the most considerable manufacturing and trading towns in the south of Scotland. The weaving of stockings, and the spinning of yarn (chiefly lambs' wool), are branches of great extent. The manufacture of blankets, shawls, tweeds, tartans, cloakings and woollen cloths is also of material importance; in the tanning of leather and dressing of sheep-skins there are several houses engaged; and the making of whips and thongs is a branch of consequence here. Four banking agencies are settled here, namely, a branch of the British Linen Company's bank, the Commercial Bank of Scotland, the National Bank of Scotland, and the Royal Bank of Scotland; there is also a Savings' bank. The commerce and general trade of the place has received some improvement from the facility of communication with distant parts by railway transit. The Hawick branch of the North British line has effected a direct means of intercourse with Edinburgh and the north, and by means of the Berwick and Kelso branch, with those towns and the south. One of the principal inns here, called 'The Tower,' situated in the Market-place, was a fortress, once belonging to the superior of the burgh, and the only building not consumed by the forces of Sussex: at a more recent period it was the frequent residence of the celebrated Anne, Duchess of Buccleugh and Monmouth. 'The Crown' is the other inn.

There are places of worship of the Establishment, the Free Church, and for various religious denominations—a list of these, with their officiating ministers, is given at a subsequent page. The establishment of several institutions evinces a taste for literary pursuits and useful knowledge; among these are two public and one circulating libraries, two public reading rooms, liberally furnished with London and provincial papers; also a mechanics' institution. A farmers' club, or agricultural society, was formed here in 1776; the members assemble regularly once a month for the discussion of questions connected with agriculture. There is also the West Teviotdale Agricultural Society, established in 1835, which have an annual exhibition of live stock, to the best of which premiums are awarded; the object of the society being to encourage the improvement of the breed of stock within the district. The market is held on Thursday, and the fairs on the 17th of May, the 21st of September, and the 8th of November—(any of these days of the month happening on Saturday, Sunday or Monday, the fair is held on the following Tuesday). A cattle tryst is likewise held in October, at which numbers of black cattle are exposed for sale in passing from Falkirk tryst to Carlisle and Newcastle fairs; and there is a wool fair held on the first Thursday after Saint Boswell's fair in July.

JEDBURGH,

INCLUDING THE NOBILITY, GENTRY, CLERGY, &c. IN THE PARISHES OF BEDRULE, CRAILING, HOWNAM, OXNAM, AND SOUTHDEAN.

JEDBURGH is a royal burgh, the seat of a presbytery, the capital of its parish, and the county town; 46 miles S. E. from Edinburgh (by Lauder), 10 S. by W. from Kelso, the same distance N. by E. from Hawick, and 12 N. from the English border; agreeably situate on the left bank of the Jed—the name of which river, with weorth, the Saxon name for hamlet, formed its ancient appellation of Jedweorth or Jedworth; in course of time it became perverted to its present designation, but through a very extensive district in the south the old name is partly retained, by pronouncing it Jeddart or Jethart, which are almost exclusively used by the common people. The town, which stands on the declivity of a hill, and surrounded on every side by others of considerable height, is in general well built, and consists of four principal streets, which cross each other at right angles, and form a square or market place in the centre. The streets and principal shops are lighted with gas, and the inhabitants are supplied with excellent water. The river Jed, which takes its rise in the Carter, one of the hills of the Cheviot range, and runs along the south-east side of the town, is crossed by no fewer than seven bridges within a mile of it. In recent times Jedburgh has been greatly improved, and many new buildings have been erected. The principal architectural and antiquarian object of attraction in the town is the abbey, which stands upon a piece of ground between the houses and the river. Although for the most part in a ruinous condition, it still exhibits an outline of its original magnitude and magnificence. To preserve this venerable edifice from the total destruction towards which it was hastening, it several years since received considerable repairs, which were so judiciously conducted as not to interfere with or alter the original design of the structure; this is of the Gothic order, and was founded for canons regular by David I; it runs from east to west, and appears to have been originally three storeys in height; the nave from the tower, and the south front, are mostly entire, but there is no roof on any part of it. Part of the nave is fitted up as the parish church; the tower, which is still standing in tolerably good preservation, is about one hundred and twenty feet in height. Among the other prominent public buildings of Jedburgh are the county gaol and bridewell, and the townhall; the former is designated the 'castle,' from its occupying the site of the ancient fortress; it is a fine erection, in the castellated style, and its internal accommodations and arrangements are upon the most approved system. The appearance of this building is such as to disguise its real character as completely to the sight, as its name does to the ear. From its elevated situation it is seen at a considerable distance all round the town, and when on its summit, a delightful view is obtained; executions have, however, from time immemorial, taken place on this eminence. The town hall is a commodious edifice, built in 1811. Jedburgh is a burgh of very ancient erection, and, from a charter granted by William the Lion, appears to have been a place of note previous to the year 1165. It has the honour of parochial precedency, being the oldest parish in Scotland of which any historical record has been transmitted to posterity. Prior to the Union it was a place of importance, and one of the principal towns in the south of Scotland. The burgh is governed by a provost, four baillies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, and a council elected by the £10. constituents resident within the royalty. The lords of justiciary and lords commissioners of the jury court hold courts here for the south circuit (which includes the counties of Roxburgh, Berwick, Selkirk and Peebles), generally in April and September; and the sheriff holds a court every Wednesday for the despatch of civil business, and a small debt court once every month. The justices of the peace hold their court on the first Tuesday in every month; and here also the court of general quarter session sits, The burgh joins with Haddington, Dunbar, North Berwick and Lauder, in returning one member to parliament.

Of late years Jedburgh has advanced towards importance as a seat of manufactures: woollens, blankets, plaidings, and flannels, are here produced to a considerable amount, and in the neighbourhood are many corn mills. Considerable emolument is derived from the sale of the produce of the orchards and gardens that surround the town. A branch of the British Linen Company's bank has been settled here since the year 1790. More recently there has been established an agency of the National Bank of Scotland, another of the Royal Bank of Scotland, and one of the City of Glasgow Bank. A savings' bank, opened in 1815, has been successfully sustained by the provident. There are two principal inns—the 'Spread Eagle' and the 'Harrow.'

There are places of worship belonging to the Establishment, the Free Church of Scotland, the United Presbyterian body, Independents and Episcopalians—of these a list and their localities, with their officiating ministers, is given in the directory of the town, and the several schools, most of which are well attended, and conducted upon the best plans of imparting instruction, will be found under an appropriate head. In connection with the town flourishes a horticultural society, which has five meetings annually; and the Jedburgh Cheviot sheep show, which has one annual exhibition. The members of a farmers' club meet here weekly. The market is held on Tuesday, and the fairs on the third Saturdays of January, February, March, and April; the Tuesday after Whitsun-week, the second Tuesday in August (old style), the 25th of September (or on the Tuesday following, if that day should fall on a Saturday, Sunday, or Monday), the first Tuesday of November (old style), and the third Saturday of December.

KELSO, WITH THE VILLAGE OF EDNAM,

AND THE NOBILITY, GENTRY, CLERGY, &c. IN THE PARISHES OF EDNAM, MACKERSTON, ROXBURGH, SMAILHOLM, SPROUSTON, AND STITCHEL.

KELSO is a burgh of barony, a considerable market town, and the capital of its parish, 42 miles S. E. from Edinburgh, 10 N. from Jedburgh, 23 S.W. from Berwick-upon-Tweed, 60 N. by E. from Carlisle, and 6 W. from the English border. It is connected with the North British and the Newcastle and Berwick railways, by branches which approach within a short distance of the town; and it occupies an extensive plain on the north bank of the Tweed, opposite the confluence of the Teviot with that river, and surrounded on all sides by a delightful amphitheatre of wood-clad hills. Kelso is of very great antiquity, and has been the scene of many memorable events in early history. Its border situation subjected it to almost continual incursions of enemies, and to several conflagrations; to the latter infliction, however, it is indebted for the modern and uniform style which now characterises its appearance. It is built after the manner of the Flemish towns, having a spacious square in the centre, from which diverge four of the principal streets at equal distances. On the east side of the square stands an elegant town hall, erected in 1816, possessing offices for the chamberlain of the Duke of Roxburgh and town clerk, and a lofty and handsome hall, which is adorned with a fine portrait of the late Duke of Roxburgh. In this hall periodical courts are held by the sheriff, justices of the peace and baron baillie, as are also the meetings of the commissioners of police, and the incorporated trades and friendly societies of the town. On the ground floor is a large enclosed piazza, which, on market days, is opened for the use of the farmers and others attending the market. In the Wood market has been erected a very elegant corn exchange, which has proved a great boon for the farmers and merchants. The bridge, which crosses the Tweed, was built in the beginning of the present century, after a plan by the late Sir John Rennie, the architect of Waterloo bridge, London, of which it may be said to be a model. It consists of five arches of equal span, and is well worthy of the strangers' notice, particularly from the beautiful views obtained from it, which are not surpassed on any other part of the Tweed. On the north bank is Fleurs Castle, the princely residence of the Duke of Roxburgh, and on the south bank of the Teviot is Springwood Park, the beautiful seat of Sir George S. Douglas, Bart.; in the centre may be seen the ancient castle of Roxburgh, with the Eildon hills in the distance, while on the right hand are the venerable remains of Kelso Abbey, founded by David I. in 1128. During the repairs of this monument of ancient ecclesiastical magnificence some years ago, on removing the rubbish from the base of the structure, the fragment of a bell was found, which is supposed to have been, when perfect, about three feet in diameter, and one ton and a half in weight.

The government of the town is vested in a baron baillie, appointed by the Duke of Roxburgh, and a body of commissioners of police, who derive their powers from the Scotch burgh police act. The town is lighted with gas, and is abundantly supplied with spring water, and among all the towns on the borders stands pre-eminent for its cleanly and orderly appearance. Though not a manufacturing town, Kelso enjoys a considerable trade, from being the chief seat of population in a wide agricultural district, which affords employment and support to a numerous body of the working classes. A considerable trade is carried on in the dressing of lamb and sheep skins, and the currying of leather, and there is a large iron foundry. The linen and woollen manufacture also exists, but not to any extent; boots and shoes are made in large quantities, supplying not only the town and neighbourhood, but also the different fairs and markets in the north of England. It is noted for its cabinet and upholstery work, and the artizans in this business are selected by the resident gentry within a wide circuit on both sides of the border. There are many corn mills in the neighbourhood, and numerous gardens—the latter producing fruits and vegetables in large quantities. The domestic trade of Kelso is well supported, and many of the shops are furnished with very extensive stocks of all kinds of goods necessary for the consumption of an inland district. The trading and monetary interest of the town are aided in their transactions by the establishment of five banking houses—branches respectively of the Bank of Scotland, the Commercial Bank of Scotland, the National Bank of Scotland, the British Linen Company's bank, and the City of Glasgow bank. The principal inns are, the Cross Keys, the Queen's Head, the White Swan, and the Black Swan; they are all excellent houses.

There are seven places of worship in Kelso, exclusive of the Established church; their designations, &c. are stated in a list raised for that purpose. Among the several benevolent institutions supported by the inhabitants may be enumerated the dispensary, founded in 1777, which possesses hot and cold baths. A society for educating poor boys; a public grammar school, conducted by a rector and an assistant, and a parochial school. The literary institutions include several public libraries and a news and reading room, a literary and polytechnic institution, an association entitled the Tweedside Physical and Antiquarian Society; a society composed of the noblemen and gentlemen residing in this quarter, styled the Bowmen of the Border (instituted in the year 1768), and several benefit societies. Two newspapers are published in Kelso, under the titles of the 'Kelso Mail,' (established in 1797), and the 'Kelso Chronicle,' (in 1838); the former is published on Mondays and Thursdays, the latter on Fridays; both are extensively circulated through this and the neighbouring counties. Kelso, which is at all times a place of gaiety and respectability, has an additional liveliness imparted to it by the occasional rendezvous of the Royal Caledonian Hunt, and by the horse races which take place in the autumn, they being superior to any meetings of the kind in Scotland. The course, which is much admired, is situate about a mile to the northward; on it is an excellent stand, on the model of that at Doncaster. These races never fail to attract great numbers of the fashionable and opulent classes from both sides of the border, and brilliant assemblies at these seasons are frequently held. The weekly market, chiefly for corn, is held on Friday; and from October to June a market for cattle and sheep is held once a fortnight on Monday: an annual fair also takes place on the 5th of August.

EDNAM (or Edenham) is a small village and parish—the former pleasantly situated on the small river Eden, about two miles and a half north-east from Kelso. It is celebrated as the birth-place of the poet Thomson' his father having been the clerical incumbent of the parish; a monument, erected to the memory of the poet, stands on an eminence near the village. The principal trade establishment in this place is an extensive brewery. The land of the parish ranks among the finest in this fertile district, and is excellently cultivated and enclosed.

LESSUDDEN AND MAXTON.

LESSUDDEN is a small village in the parish of Saint Boswells, 10 miles W. from Kelso, 7 N. from Jedburgh, and 5 E. from Melrose; situated nearly in the centre of the parish, at the east end of a spacious green, and distant about one mile from the Newton station of the North British Railway. The hamlet of St. Boswells which now consists of little more than a public house or two, was at one time noted for one of the largest fairs (on the 18th July, for black cattle, horses, sheep and wool), held in the county. 'St. Boswells fair' was also the resort of salesmen of various goods, and it is still much frequented by the direct descendants of the gypsies for the disposal of earthen, horn and tin ware: fallen off as this fair now is, its occurrence always presents a scene of great merriment in the pastoral district in which it takes place. The parish of St. Boswells (or Lessudden) is three miles in length, by from one and a half to two in breadth; the land is beautifully enclosed, planted and cultivated. On the west rise the Eildon hills, and on the east and north the grounds is undulating—the latter quarter ornamented by the fine woods of Dryburgh, separated from the village by the Tweed which is here a beautiful river, enclosed within high banks; beyond the Dryburgh woods rise hills of various altitudes that bound the prospect.

The parish of MAXTON, which is about four miles in length by three in breadth, is a rich agricultural district, well enclosed and planted. On the estate of Littledean, about a mile from the church, are the remains of an old tower, once a strong fortification, and long the residence of the Kerrs, of Littledean. At Lilliard's Edge, on the boundary betwixt this parish and that of Ancrum, was fought the famous battle between the Scots and English on the 14th of December, 1544, when the latter were totally routed with dreadful slaughter and the loss of a thousand men, slain and made prisoners.

LILLIESLEAF, BOWDEN AND MIDHOLM.

LILLIESLEAF is a village and parish—the former 10 miles from Galashiels, the same distance from Jedburgh, 8 from Hawick, 6 from Selkirk, and 3 from the New Belses station on the North British railway. The village is destitute of interest as respects manufactures, particular trade, or objects of curiosity; but a few of the inhabitants are employed in the weaving of hosiery for the manufacturers of Hawick. There is a subscription library in the village. The parish, which is four miles in length by nearly three in breadth, is intersected by the Ale water. The lands are under good tillage, and the district has a very pleasing appearance,

BOWDEN village is two miles and a half from Melrose, standing in a low situation, through which a rivulet passes to the Tweed. The parish comprises a portion of the Eildon hills, from whence the land gently declines in well cultivated and enclosed fields. The vestiges of a Roman military road, with circular stations or encampments, may be traced in this district; and a ruin at HOLLYDEAN, at an early period a strong fortification, and the ancient residence of the now noble family of Roxburgh. Within the parish, besides Bowden, is the small village of MIDHOLM, or Midlam, pleasingly situated on a rising ground, two miles from Lilliesleaf.

POST OFFICE, LILLIESLEAF, Thomas Turnbull, Post Master.—Letters from SELKIRK and all parts arrive every day at one, and are despatched every morning at a quarter before seven.

POST OFFICE, BOWDEN, Robert Nichol, Post Master.—Letters from NEWTOWN and ST. BOSWELL'S arrive every day at twelve and evening at seven, and are despatched every morning at eight and aftern. at four

MELROSE,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF NEWSTEAD, GATTONSIDE, DARNICK, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

MELROSE is a parish and free burgh of barony—the town, small and ancient, is 36 miles S. by E. from Edinburgh 12 S. W. from Jedburgh, 7 N. E. from Selkirk, and 4 S. E. from Galashiels, delightfully situated at the foot of the Eildon hills, and on the line of the North British railway, which runs through the town. The station, a spacious and handsome erection, presents a very fine appearance, and being situated on rising ground, it may be seen from all parts of the neighbourhood. The town contains a number of new and handsome houses, while others exhibit proofs of great antiquity, presenting decorated stones that once undoubtedly formed a portion of the superb abbey for which the place is so celebrated. The town is built in the form of a triangle, with small streets leading out at the corners. In the centre stands the cross, a structure supposed to be coeval with the abbey, and which bears all the marks of that great age. A wire suspension bridge over the Tweed, for foot passengers, leads to the village of GATTONSIDE, on the opposite bank of the river.

The abbey of Melrose, one of the largest and most magnificent Gothic structures in the kingdom, stands a short distance from the town, on the south side of the Tweed. On viewing the exterior of this noble pile of building from the south, it has a most imposing effect; but on entering the interior the lofty Gothic columns, in a double row, supporting the arched majestic roof—the elegance and variety of its sculpture, the multiplicity of its statues, the beauty of its stone, and the symmetry of its parts, must strike every stranger with profound admiration. It was founded in 1136 by King David, who dedicated it to the Virgin Mary, and endowed it with extensive privileges and almost princely revenues. The monks were of the Cistercian order, and this monastery was the mother foundation of all establishments of that order in Scotland. It is somewhat remarkable that it is only within the limit of the present century that Melrose Abbey became an object of interest to the tourist. That interest was first awakened by the publication of the 'Lay of the last Minstrel,' a poem by Sir Walter Scott, whose description of this venerable time-recalling fabric induced the visits of strangers from all quarters. About two miles east from the town is the site of the still more ancient abbey of Old Melrose, founded in 664, and said to be the first abbey of the Culdees settled in this part of the kingdom. All that remains, however, of the old structure is a small house, on a peninsula formed by the Tweed, whose banks around it are lofty and wooded, varied with perpendicular rocks, jutting out into the river like buttresses: the situation is in the highest degree pleasant, commanding a fine view of the strath of Tweeddale. About a mile nearer the new town of Melrose is the village of NEWSTEAD, near which was another abbey, called the 'Red Abbey,' until late years used as the parish church, when a new one was erected a little west of the town—the latter, a very beautiful edifice, with a handsome spire of considerable height. After the completion of the new church, the abbey underwent some repairs, in the progress of which two stone coffins were discovered, with human skeletons.

Previous to the abolition of hereditary jurisdictions, Melrose was a burgh of regality; but it is now a free burgh of barony, and governed by a baron baillie chosen by the burgesses. A justice of peace court is held here on the first Saturday in every month. The only public building of the town, exclusive of the churches, is the gaol, a plain and small structure, substituted for a curious old one, of which no relic has been preserved except a stone bearing the arms of Melrose. A church of the Establishment, a Free church and an Episcopal chapel are the places of worship. The banks of the Tweed are clothed with plantations in the finest order, and the land around here is cultivated after the best manner. The weekly market is held on Saturday, and there are nine annual fairs, namely, on the first Saturdays of January, February, March, May, and December; the first Wednesday of June, for cattle: the 12th of August, for lambs, but should that day fall on Saturday, Sunday, or Monday, the fair takes place on the Tuesday following; the Saturday after the first Tuesday in October, for ewes, &c., and the 22nd of November, for cattle. The August fair is considered the largest for lambs in Scotland.

The antique and rural village of GATTONSIDE stands on the north bank of the Tweed, in the parish of Melrose, with which town a communication is maintained by means of the bridge before mentioned. The village is surrounded with orchards, and it is computed that a greater quantity of fruit is grown about this place than in any other part of the vale of Tweed.

DARNICK is a small village, situated on the road leading from Melrose to Galashiels, about one mile from the former town.

NEW CASTLETON

Is a modern village, in an extensive mountainous parish, formerly known by the name of Castletown but more generally by the popular title of Liddesdale, being in the vale of the Liddle water. The village, which owes its rise to Henry, Duke of Buccleuch, and has superseded the old parish village (a little further up the vale), is 26 miles S. from Jedburgh, 20 S.E. from Hawick, and 5 N.E. from Canonby; situated in the centre of the lower and more arable part of the district on the road which proceeds up Liddesdale. It consists principally of two long streets of neat houses, which occupy a haugh on the right bank of the Liddle. Except that a few of the inhabitants are employed by the cotton manufacturers of Carlisle, there is no other business worth mentioning. The parish is upwards of eighteen miles in length by fourteen in breadth. The banks of the river are covered with natural wood and extensive plantations, which afford an infinite variety of the most picturesque scenery. Within the district are the ruins of no less than five churches, and many others of castles and fortified places; but the most remarkable object in Liddesdale is the ancient castle of Hermitage, erected in the thirteenth century by Comyn Earl of Monteath, and was one of the largest fortresses on the border: it has been repaired by the Duke of Buccleuch, and during this operation several small pieces of cannon were found, and, among other antiquities, a gold ring, evidently of very old manufacture, bearing the inscription—In Broderlie Amite. The places of worship are the parish church; a Free church and one for the United Presbyterians. There are two libraries—a subscription, and a parochial. Fairs are held in April, May, September, and November—some of them are for hiring servants.

YETHOLM, LINTON AND MOREBATTLE.

YETHOLM parish is bounded on the south by the English border, and divided into nearly equal parts by the water of Bowmont, an excellent trouting stream: the surface is hilly, but covered with verdure, and is pastured by numerous flocks of sheep. There are considerable haughs (or meadows) on the banks of the Bowmont: the soil is good, and adapted for wheat. The parish comprises two villages, or rather a village in two parts, situate on either side of the Bowmont: that on the west side, called 'Town-Yetholm,' is about 8 miles S. from Kelso; the other, designated 'Kirk-Yetholm,' stands at the distance of about a quarter of a mile on the other side of the stream: both are humble in appearance, especially the latter, which is chiefly inhabited by gypsies—a race formerly remarkable for their disorderly lives and dangerous characters, and at this day distinguished by peculiarity of habits from the general body of the community. The close proximity of the border, most likely, induced the settlement of the gypsies in this locality. The old parish church, which, at the time of its demolition, was the oldest thatched church in Scotland, is now replaced by an elegant edifice of black stone, the windows and corners being faced with white. Besides the church there are two meeting-houses in Town-Yetholm—one for Original Burghers, the other for the United Presbyterian Congregation. Fairs are held on the 27th of June, for sheep, and on the 5th of July and 31st of October, for lambs and wool.

LINTON is a strictly agricultural parish, extending nine miles in length by three in breadth—bounded by Sprouston on the north, Northumberland on the east, Eckford on the west, and Yetholm and Morebattle on the south. It is separated from the latter parish by the Kaile: besides that stream, it has two small lochs, one of which abounds with trout, the other with eels. The land, which rises from the Kaile, is under the best system of cultivation. The church is a humble structure, beautifully situated on a high mound.

The parish of MOREBATTLE is about nine miles in length, by a mean breadth of four; it is bounded by Linton and Yetholm on the north, Eckford on the west, Hownam on the south, and the county of Northumberland on the east. The greater part of the land is hilly and pastoral, the low grounds only being arable. The Kaile and Bowmont run through the parish, both waters affording excellent sport to the angler. Near the former stream, at the distance of seven and a half miles from Kelso and ten from Jedburgh, stands the village. The ancient and more correct mode of spelling the name is Morebotle, which signifies 'the dwelling-place at the marsh.' The vestiges of ancient camps and various ruins, particularly Whitton Castle and Corbet House, indicate this parish to have been the frequent scene of warfare. The places of worship are, Established and Free churches, and for United Presbyterians—one for each congregation.

SELKIRKSHIRE.

THIS small county, of irregular form, lies in the south of Scotland: bounded by Roxburghshire on the east and south-east, on the west by the counties of Dumfries and Peebles, and on the south and south-west by Dumfries-shire. The county extends twenty-seven miles from south-west to north-east, and is sixteen miles in breadth, exclusive of a small detached part on the east: its area comprehends 266 square miles, or 170,313 statute acres.

EARLY HISTORY.—This border county was formerly designated the 'Sheriffdom of Ettrick Forest,' from being in a great measure the vale of the Ettrick and its tributary streams, and from its being covered with wood; it was stocked with large herds of deer, and formed a favourite scene for the enjoyment of the chase by the Scottish monarchs. In many of the royal charters it is entitled 'The Forest;' and before regular sheriffs were appointed it was placed under the jurisdiction of a keeper, who generally held the office of constable of the King's Castle at Selkirk. The ancient history of this county is so intimately associated with that of Roxburghshire (already briefly detailed), that but few incidents worthy of special notice exclusively belong to the district. Unlike Roxburghshire, this county contains few or no remains of eclesiastical establishments—though it possesses a number of ruined 'keeps,' the seats of feudal strength; and among other objects worthy the inspection of the antiquary is a large portion of a stupendous work of the Romanised Britons, called the 'Catrail,' once a vast fosse, having a rampart on either side, constructed during the fifth century as a strong line of defence against the invading Saxons.

SURFACE, PRODUCE, MANUFACTURES, &c.—With the exception of a very narrow portion on its eastern side, the county may be said to be a continued alternation of hill and dale, and many of the eminences rise to a considerable height. The principal vales are those of the Ettrick and Yarrow, besides a portion of the vale of the Tweed and the Gala; from these valleys there shoot out many 'cleughs' and 'hopes,' that run up for some distance between the heights: these vales as well as the waters (noticed hereafter) which pour through them, have been repeatedly the theme of Scottish as well as English lyrists. Around Galashiels and Selkirk the hills are now subjected to the plough, and in these situations wheat is raised at a considerable elevation above the level of the sea. In the upper valleys of Ettrick and Yarrow, tillage is confined to the haughs and low grounds contiguous. The principal mountains, with their altitude above the level of the sea, are—Blackhouse Hills, 2,370 feet; Windlestrae Law, 2,295; Law Kneis, 1,990; the Three Brethren, 1,978; Black Andrew, 1,966; Pentlaw, 1,964; Wardlaw, 1,900; Minchmoor, 1,877; Hangingshaw Law, 1,780; and Peatlaw, 1,557. Throughout the county generally agriculture is as well understood and practised as in any district of the kingdom. Great attention is paid to sheep farming, and the improvement of the breed of sheep; this was stimulated, and kept up with great success, by the praiseworthy conduct of Lord Napier, who at the termination of the war betook himself to the vale of Ettrick, and commenced farming, as a rational amusement. The shire is almost wholly stocked with white-faced sheep, except a high tract of country towards the sources of its rivers, of which Hindhope on the Ettrick, and Lawdhope on the Yarrow, are the lowest points. Of minerals, none of the more useful have yet been found in this pastoral county, it being equally deficient in coal, lime, and sandstone; in some parts, however, abundance of whinstone is obtained, and a good deal of granite. The manufactures of this county, which will be more particularly noticed in the directory of Selkirk and Galashiels, consist in both towns, of woollen, tweeds, tartans, shawls, and hosiery, together with the tanning of leather and the dressing of sheep and lamb skins.

RIVERS, LAKES, AND RAILWAYS.—The county is well watered by the Ettrick, the Yarrow and the Tweed: the latter valuable river, after draining Peebles-shire, intersects the northern extremity of Selkirkshire from west to east, during a placid course in a deep channel of nine miles, when it is joined by the Ettrick, and, also receiving the Gala, passes on to Roxburghshire. The Gala cannot be esteemed a river of this county; it takes its rise in the parish of Heriot, in the county of Edinburgh, and, flowing through a portion of Roxburghshire, falls into the Tweed about a mile below Galashiels. The Yarrow has its source at a place called Yarrow Cleugh, near the rise of the Moffat Water, in Dumfries-shire, and falls into the Ettrick two miles above Selkirk. The county has some small lakes, the chief being Saint Mary's Loch, and the Loch of the Lowes, lying at the head of the Yarrow. The principal railway line with which this county is connected is the North British, and the chief town that lies in its route is Galashiels, and a branch from the main line runs to Selkirk.

The county of Selkirk contains only three complete parishes, namely, Ettrick, Stow, and Yarrow; but has portions of seven other parochial divisions. The only towns are those of Selkirk and Galashiels—the former a royal burgh, but not represented in parliament; the county at large returns one member

GALASHIELS AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

GALASHIELS is a burgh of barony and market town, the latter which is one of manufacturing celebrity, is 31 miles S. S. E. from Edinburgh, 18 E. from Peebles, 6 N. from Selkirk, 4 N. W. from Melrose, and 30 S. by W. from Berwick-upon-Tweed: charmingly situated on both sides of the Gala, about a mile above the confluence of that river with the Tweed; its parish is partly in Selkirkshire, and partly in that of Roxburgh; and it lies on the route of the 'North British Railway,' for which line there is a station in the town. Galashiels is comparatively of modern erection, the oldest houses not having been built more than ninety years, whilst the greater number have not existed more than thirty. It is composed of several streets, all of which run parallel with the river. The Old, or High Town, as it is now called, still contains the church, the manse, and a few of the original respectable dwellings; and this portion has also been much improved by new erections. It is situated on a sort of table-land overlooking the picturesque vale of the Gala, and is allowed to be the most pleasing as well as the most healthy part of the town. The houses are mostly built of blue whinstone, and a fine white freestone, and all being slated, the entire presents a peculiar, yet neat, if not handsome appearance. The streets are gas-lighted, and the inhabitants are now plenteously supplied with water. The river is here crossed by three bridges—two of stone and one of wood. The wire suspension bridge, erected in 1813, was swept away by a great flood some years ago. The necessary funds have been raised to erect a Town Hall, a want much felt from the growing importance of the place.

For many years, Galashiels has enjoyed an envied distinction in the manufacture of tweeds, shawls, and tartans, all of wool, and in great estimation from the superiority of their fabrics. This is the staple of the place, and there are many houses engaged in it; the numerous factories contain machines for spinning the yarn, besides a quantity of that article annually imported. This town, in common with others in the south, interested in manufactures, sustained for a long period great inconvenience from their distance from sea ports, railways, and collieries; but the extension of the North British Railway to these parts has to a great extent obviated the obstructions that commerce had previously laboured under. The supply of water, too, at one time was exceedingly limited in the dry months of the year; but now that coal has become more abundant and cheaper, steam power is resorted to extensively so that that inconvenience is no longer severly felt. A Railway is now in operation from hence to Selkirk, and it is in contemplation to form a line to Innerleithen and Peebles, the proposed line will shorten the distance to Glasgow and the west. The manufacturers and weavers meet annually on the 10th of October, for the purpose of electing a deacon of their trades, and conferring on matters therewith connected. The business and commerce of the town and district are facilitated in their monetary transactions by the establishment of three highly respectable banking-houses—they are respectively branches of the 'National Bank of Scotland'; the 'Bank of Scotland' and the 'Royal Bank of Scotland.' There are several agencies, from fire and life assurance companies, of the first repute. Of other flourishing branches in Galashiels are the coal, corn, and timber trades, brewing, and rope making. A small debt court is held in the town six times a year. Two newspapers are published here, the 'Galashiels Record' and the 'Border Advertiser,' both are conducted with considerable talent, and have a large circulation in the border counties; the former is published on Wednesday and the latter on Friday.

There are eleven places of worship in Galashiels—they comprise churches of the establishment, and of the free communion of Scotland, and edifices for the worship of United Presbyterians, Baptists, Episcopalians, Congregationalists, and a sect termed Glassites. Some excellent schools afford the means of a sound education at a small expense; among these are the Parochial, Free Church, Subscription, and Gala schools, and there are several private academies. A short distance from the town is situated ABBOTSFORD, the beautiful seat of the late celebrated novelist, Sir Walter Scott: the line of rail from Galashiels to Selkirk passes close to this delightful spot. A bulk grain market is held on Tuesday, and fairs on the third Wednesday of March, the 8th of July, and the 10th of October.

SELKIRK

WITH THE NOBILITY, GENTRY AND CLERGY IN THE PARISHES OF ASHKIRK, ETTRICK, ROBERTON, KIRKHOPE, AND YARROW.

SELKIRK is an ancient town, a royal burgh, and the seat of a presbytery, and the capital of its county and parish; 38 miles S. S. E. from Edinburgh, 22 E. by S. from Peebles, 12 N. N. W. from Hawick, 8 S. W. from Melrose, and 6 S. from Galashiels; occupying a rising ground, at the foot of which flows the river Ettrick The place derives its name from a kirk that was established here at an early date, when the locality became distinguished as a hunting-seat of the king. In the oldest charter it is called Seleschirche, Sele-chyre, or Sel-chire, which signify 'the great' or 'the good church.' When a second kirk was erected in the vicinity, after the foundation of a monastery by David I. in 1113, the prior place received the dignified title of Selkirk Regis, while the village of the monks was denominated Selkirk Abbatis: the monks of Selkirk did not, however, remain long settled in the town; they were removed to a more pleasing locality by their royal patron. Of the castle of Selkirk, at which David occasionally resided, little is known, and its site cannot now be satisfactorily ascertained. Formerly Selkirk exhibited but an indifferent appearance in its buildings and their arrangement; but latterly a spirit of improvement has been developed which has imparted to the place an aspect far more prepossessing. The streets have been levelled, many handsome private houses built, and a new-town house (surmounted by a handsome spire) erected, containing apartments for the burgh and sheriff's court, public meetings, &c.; a gaol has also been built, on the north side of the town; the streets and principal shops are now lighted with gas, and the market-place is embellished with a very handsome monument in memory of Sir Walter Scott. In High-street there is a monument in remembrance of Mungo Park, the African traveller, who was a native of Foulshiels, in this county; it is the work of Andrew Currie, a native artist: there is also in contemplation a monument to Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd.

Selkirk was in past ages celebrated for the making of brogues (a description of single-soled shoe): tradition carries the existence of this trade so far back as the period of the battle of Flodden, in which conflict, it is asserted, the brogue makers of Selkirk took a distinguished part. As a further proof of the consequence and ability of the professors of this craft, it appears from the town records, that when the Highland army, in 1785, commanded the magistrates of Edinburgh to furnish six thousand pair of shoes, these civic officials made a call upon the burgh of Selkirk for no less than a third of the quantity, which was supplied, and, soon after, a few hundreds more. This branch has greatly declined at the present day. The principal manufactures now carried on consist of various descriptions of woollen goods, as tweeds, tartans, plaids, & shawls, in which process three very extensive mills are employed, & one wool spinning mill; there are also two extensive tanneries. A Railway is now opened from here to Galashiels, where it joins the Hawick branch of the North British line, thus giving to Selkirk, railway communication with most parts of Great Britain. The town possesses two principal inns—the 'County' and the 'Fleece.' A branch of the 'British Linen Company's Bank,' and one of the 'Union Bank of Scotland,' are settled here, and there is a savings' bank. The introduction of manufactures has caused a great augmentation of the population of the town, and a material extension of its ancient limits. As a royal burgh, Selkirk is governed by two baillies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, and twenty-nine councillors, one third of whom retire annually, and their successors are elected the first week in November. The sheriff's court is held weekly, and a small debt court for recovery of debts under £8 6s. 8., quarterly. The magistrates hold criminal courts as occasion requires, and the justice of peace lieutenancy meetings are regulated in like manner.

The places of public worship are a church of the Establishment, a Free church, two United Presbyterian, an Independent, and Secession chapels. The institutions for education in Selkirk are of a judicious character; they comprise, besides the parochial school, a burgh school, subscription school, and some private academies. The inhabitants support a public library, and a Mechanics' Institute. The general scenery, in the vicinity of Selkirk, is very delightful: the rivers Ettrick and Yarrow form a junction, and empty their waters into the Tweed, about three miles west of the town; the beautiful mansion of Bowhill (belonging to the Duke of Buccleuch), the stately ruins of Newark Castle, the fertile straths, and the serpentine windings of the two rivers, together with many elegant seats, form beautiful scenery, romantic and diversified. Philiphaugh, the residence of John N. Murray, Esq., is a beautiful castellated mansion; amongst others may be noted Hangingshaw, the residence of James Johnstone, Esq.; Sunderland Hall, of C. S. Plummer, Esq.; and Broadmeadows, of R. K. Pringle, Esq. The market is held on Wednesday, and fairs on the 5th April, and 31st of October.

STIRLINGSHIRE,

ONE of the most important and beautiful counties in Scotland, is situated partly in the Highlands and partly in the Lowlands; bounded on the east by the county of Linlithgow and the river Forth, on the south and west by Dumbartonshire, on the north by the shires of Perth and Clackmannan which latter county touches it also on the east), and on the south and south-east by a portion of Lanarkshire. Its boundaries are in many places distinctly marked by water-courses or lakes—the principal boundary line on the north being the Forth, the Avon on the east, the Kelvin river on the south, the Endrick water on the south-west, and Loch Lomond on the west. The figure of the county is extremely singular, and has been fancifully likened both to a fish and a serpent: its tail, which diminishes to an apex at the north, is inserted between the counties of Dumbarton and Perth; and its head is suddenly turned towards the shires of Lanark (on the south) and Linlithgow on the south-east. Its length from east to west is thirty-six miles—but, following the curvature of its form; from east to its northern point it will measure upwards of forty-five miles; its breadth varies from twelve to twenty miles, except where it declines towards the north, and here the distance across is very trifling. The shire comprises an area of four hundred and sixty two square miles, or two hundred and ninety-five thousand, eight hundred and seventy-five statute acres of land, of which, two-thirds are under cultivation.

EARLY HISTORY.—This county, from its situation between the firths of Forth and Clyde, and on the direct passage from the northern to the southern parts of the island, has been the scene of many memorable transactions; and there are few counties where monuments of antiquity are so frequently to be met with; neither does it yield to any in point of modern improvements or in the beauties of scenery. The wall of Antonius, built for the purpose of protecting the Roman conquests on the south, traversed the lower division of the county, and has left some slight traces for the investigation of the antiquary; the remains of Roman forts are also distinguishable, and weapons and coins of that invading power have been occasionally dug out of the soil. After the overthrow of the Pictish sovereignty, Stirlingshire, with all the country upon the south side of the Forth, was for some years under the dominion of the Northumbrian Saxons; and at a later date it passed quietly under the government of the Scottish sovereigns. Subsequently considerable importance was attached to the county from the position and strength of the castle of Stirling (which we shall notice more particularly under the head of its locality), commanding, as it did, the most important pass betwixt the northern and southern districts of the kingdom. In the twelfth century it was much benefited by David I, who erected religious houses, particularly that at Cambuskenneth, within its bounds; and the inmates of these establishments being generally learned men, their pious authority tended to civilise the rude manners of the population.

SURFACE, SOIL, PRODUCE, MINERALS, MANUFACTURES, &c.—This county, as has been said, is partly Highland and partly Lowland. The former, which is in the western quarter, and adjacent to Loch Lomond, is a mountainous district; here the majestic Ben Lomond rises to the height of more than three thousand feet. East from this Highland part, the land becomes flattish, or gently inclining towards the Forth or the Endrick. In the centre of the county the ground is again elevated into a series of hills, of which those of greatest altitude are from thirteen to fifteen hundred feet in height; from one of these eminences, in Kilsyth parish, there is obtained one of the finest views in Scotland; it is computed to embrace an extent of 12,000 square miles. Many of the hills in the central, and more especially in the southern division, have their sides and even their summits clothed with a fine green sward, which affords excellent pasture for sheep. The eastern division of the county consists of beautiful carse land, in many places quite flat, and in others presenting a succession of inclined planes, gradually rising towards the south from the rich vale of the Forth. In this quarter the country has experienced improvements of the most extensive and beneficial character; and it now exhibits the pleasing spectacle of fertile meadows, fields in the highest state of tillage, with plantations, pleasure grounds, gardens, and orchards, all in the most exuberant vegetation and fruitfulness. Almost every variety of soil to be met with in Scotland occurs in Stirlingshire; but the most common and the most fertile in the county is the alluvial or carse land, which occupies many thousands of acres on the banks of the Forth; in this species of soil there are beds of shells, clay, marl, and moss In the western and central districts, on the banks of the rivers, the land is generally of a light and gravelly description; while patches of rich loam present their surface to the husbandman in other parts of the county. From the great variety of the soil, the system of agriculture in Stirlingshire naturally cannot be uniform, nor its produce equally abundant or limited to any particular species: large crops of wheat, barley, beans, peas, turnips, potatoes, &c. are raised; the culture of artificial grasses has also been very generally adopted in this county. The extensive ranges of moor in the upland district are exclusively devoted to the feeding of numerous flocks of sheep, which are of the old black-faced or Highland breed; there are but few cattle reared, the county being sufficiently supplied by the drovers from the Highlands. Stirlingshire is inferior to few districts of Scotland in the quantity and variety of its Mineral productions, the most abundant of which are coal, ironstone, limestone, and sandstone. The principal coal-pits are in the southern base of the Lennox hills; but this valuable article is also obtained in the eastern district, in the vicinity of the Forth and Clyde Canal: the county produces such quantities of this mineral as not only to be sufficient for home comsumption, but, by means of the Union Canal, to supply the metropolis. The ironstone limestone, and sandstone are found in the same districts with the coal Veins of silver were discovered and wrought about ninety years ago, but the working of them was soon discontinued; copper, lead, and cobalt have likewise been raised at different periods, but not to any considerable amount. The grand staple manufacture of this county is iron goods, both cast and malleable, the chief seat of which is at Carron, near Falkirk. The making of nails for carpenters' work is also carried on, in several parishes (especially in that of Saint Ninians), to a valuable extent; at Saint Ninians are likewise manufactured tartans; at Stirling, tartans and shawls; and at Bannockburn (ever memorable for the decisive defeat of the army of Edward by the triumphant Bruce) carpets are manufactured; while in other towns and localities are calico printing works, large distilleries, tanneries, breweries, and chemical establishments.

RIVERS, MOUNTAINS, AND RAILWAYS.—The Forth is the principal river in Stirlingshire; it takes its rise from a spring near the summit of Ben Lomond, and, after receiving in its course the Teith, the Allan, and the Devon, expands into that noble estuary called the Firth of Forth. Between Stirling and Alloa a distance of only seven miles in a direct line, the stretch is more than twenty by the course of the river, owing to the numerous windings, which are termed 'the links of the Forth.' The next river in magnitude is the Carron; it has its source in the central district, and is navigable for vessels of large burthen for about two miles from the place where it forms a junction with the Forth. The other streams are the Avon, the Endrick, the Blane, and the Kelvin, none of which, however, require particular notice. Besides these waters, the county enjoys the advantage of the Forth and Clyde Canal and the Union Navigation, which is of paramount importance to the commerce of this productive and flourishing district. The eminences of greatest altitude above the level of the sea are—Ben Lomond (before mentioned), 3,262; Alva Hill, 1,600, and Campsie Fells, 1,500. The county is intersected by the Scottish Central, the Forth and Clyde, and the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railways, while branches run to Campsie and Kirkintilloch, and from Stirling to Dunfermline—the last named is now leased to the Edinburgh and Glasgow Company—thus affording facilities of communication with all parts of the kingdom.

DIVISIONS, REPRESENTATION, &c.—Stirlingshire comprises twenty-two complete parishes, and portions of four others. It contains two parliamentary burghs—Stirling (which is a royal burgh) and Falkirk: the former joins with Culross, Queensferry, Dunfermline, and Inverkeithing, in returning a member to the legislature; and Falkirk is associated in representation with Linlithgow, Lanark, Airdrie, and Hamilton. The county, of course, deputes a third representative.

AIRTH AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

AIRTH is an ancient village in the parish of its name, 27 miles W. from Edinburgh, between 8 and 9 E. from Stirling, and 6 N.W. from Falkirk; situate on the banks of the Forth, nearly opposite to Kennet Pans, and was at one period a place of considerable importance, but is now greatly decayed; it possesses an Established church, a Free church, and United Presbyterian chapel. There are three small ports or harbours on the Forth, into which vessels of light burthen can enter, and two ferries across that estuary, at which are boats for the transport of cattle, carriages, &c. to Alloa, and other places on the Fife side. The salmon fishery is prosecuted here with considerable success: and the coal mines, of which there are several in the neighbourhood, afford employment to many of the labouring class. The beautiful and romantic seat of Mrs. Graham is well worthy of notice. The Earl of Dunmore has an elegant mansion here in the pure Gothic style, and few buildings are superior to it either in chaste simplicity of architecture or elegance of design. In the parish there are three ancient towers, one at Airth, another at Dunmore, a third at Powfoulis; that at Airth is of very early date, and is called Wallace's tower, from the circumstance of that hero having privily entered the building, slew the captain and one hundred men, and relieved his uncle, who was a prisoner—the tower is still in tolerable preservation. Some years ago an anchor was found in Dunmore-hill, at least half a mile from the present course of the river. The whole parish, with the exception of the hills of Airth and Dunmore, is a level tract.

BALFRON, BUCHANNAN AND DRYMEN.

BALFRON is a neat manufacturing village in the parish of its name, 19 miles from Glasgow, the like distance from Stirling, and 17 from Dumbarton; agreeably situate on the declivity of a hill. The houses are, for the most part, well built, and very nearly all whitewashed — the appearance of the place is that of cleanliness and respectability. The Ballindalloch cotton spinning works, the property of Messrs. Jeffrey and Co. furnish employment to a considerable number of the inhabitants, chiefly females, whose general clean and healthful appearance may be ascribed to the salutary regulations enforced in the establishment of this respectable firm. These gentlemen have also a convenient building for the purposes of a school, in which the children of persons employed in their works receive gratuitous instruction. There are many weavers employed here by the Glasgow manufacturers, in connection with whom are some resident agents. A sheriff court for small debts is held here on the fourth Thursdays in March, June, September and December. A branch of the British Linen Company's Bank is settled in the village. The annual fair is held on the third Tuesday of May, (old style.)

The parish of BUCHANNAN lies in the western extremity of the county, and is mountainous and moorish. The river Forth rises in the district, at the back of Ben Lomond, and the Endrick waters, intersects the parish. Buchannan House, the seat of the Duke of Montrose, stands on the margin of Loch Lomond; and the fort of Inversaid, near the head of the lake.

DRYMEN parish lies on the south-eastern shore of Loch Lomond, into which runs the river Endrick, below the village of Drymen. In this village resided Lord Napier, the inventor of the celebrated logarithms. A sheriff court for small debts is held here on the fourth Thursdays in January, April, July and December.

BRIDGE OF ALLAN,
LECROPT, LOGIE, CAUSEWAYHEAD, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

BRIDGE OF ALLAN.—This beautifully romantic and fashionable watering place, is situate on the river Allen, about one and a half miles from its confluence with the Forth, and nearly at the western extremity of the Ochil Hills. It is partly in Lecropt parish and partly in that of Logie. It is also situated in two counties—Stirlingshire and Perthshire, both parishes being placed in these counties—a portion of the parish of Logie is also in the county of Clackmannan. It is about three miles from Stirling, and within two hours' journey from either Edinburgh or Glasgow—omnibuses from the principal hotels meet every train. It is resorted to by persons from all parts of the kingdom, as well for pleasure as for restoration of health, on account of the mildness of the climate, the beauty of the surrounding scenery, and the fame of its mineral waters. Prior to the discovery of these springs this place was comparatively little known, and presented to the tourist the unassuming aspect of a small and quiet country hamlet, with a few whitewashed and thatched cottages, embosomed in venerable trees, together with an old mill, and an ancient public house, offering 'entertainment for man and beast.' Since that period things have greatly changed, and Bridge of Allan is now a large and handsome village, consisting of several rows of well-built houses, tasteful villas; various private hotels, and three public ones, which for elegance and comfort are not surpassed in Scotland; the whole being appropriated to the reception of visitors. Numerous improvements were made for the accommodation and recreation of the public, by the late Major J. Alexander Henderson, of Westerton, on whose estate a considerable portion of the village is erected. There are several places of worship—these comprise churches of the Establishment, a quod sacra church, a Free church, and one for United Presbyterians. Among the various attractions and objects of amusement are found billiard and reading rooms and a library; the M'Farlane gallery of sculpture and pictures; a bowling-green, a cricket ground, and several miles of good angling. The late great patron of the place also revived the ancient and interesting game of tilting at the ring—a sport much practised in the reign of James I. The West of Scotland Archery and Rifle Club have occasional meetings here. But the chief seat of attraction is the mineral wells, situated on the Airthrey estate, the property of Lord Abercromby and within a few minutes' walk of the village: they are highly celebrated for their medicinal virtues, and have proved of great benefit to numerous invalids, who have resorted hither to use the waters, both internally and externally—for the latter invigorating purposes there are convenient baths; and the hotels before noticed are establishments admirably conducted for the reception of families and other visitors; while the walks around are beneficial auxiliaries in improving the health of the invalid. Mr. Farie, chemist, has recently erected extensive premises for the purpose of aerating these mineral waters; he has also provided a register of untenanted lodgings in the neighbourhood. For a more detailed account of the many beauties of this interesting locality we may refer to 'Farie's Guide to the Bridge of Allan Spa, and environs.' Among the business establishments, besides the inns, are large bleach works, a paper manufactory, a spinning mill, and the usual trades found in a small country town.

The Bridge of Allan connects the parishes of LECROPT and LOGIE—the former lies partly in the county of Perth, and partly in that of Stirling, at the confluence of the Teith and Allan, and is celebrated for the beauty of its scenery. Logie parish is situated on the Forth, at a part where the counties of Perth, Stirling, and Clackmannan meet; a portion of the parish as before mentioned being situated in each of the three counties. In this parish stands the tall and desolate ruin of Cambuskenneth Abbey, founded by David I, in 1147, and in former ages a pile of great magnitude.

DENNY AND DUNIPACE.

WITH BONNYBRIDGE, DENNY LOANHEAD, HAGGS, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

DENNY is a thriving and increasing town in the parish of its name, 29 miles W. from Edinburgh, 20 N. E. from Glasgow, 7 S. from Stirling, and 6 W. from Falkirk; situate on the south bank of the Carron, which divides the two parishes, on the road directly west from Falkirk, through the centre of the county, the road from Stirling to Glasgow also passing through the town. Near this parish is the Clyde and Forth Canal which is of great benefit to the agriculturists as well as the manufacturers of the district. Places of interest to the tourist in the neighbourhood are the hermitage, Carron glen, and the ruins of Torwood. The banks of the Carron were the scene of many of the most interesting and heroic deeds recorded in Scottish history, but are now that of active industry, and a source of wealth to the surrounding country: the uncommon extent of the water power, as well as the purity of the stream, has caused the establishment of very considerable works on its margin, comprising paper, woollen and dye-wood mills, print works, and chemical works, and in the vicinity are two distilleries; also coal and iron mines, the latter of which is found in abundance; the whole furnishing employment to a large and industrious population, and causing a great circulation of money through an important district. The Denny Railway opened in 1859, is a branch of the Scottish Central, which joins the main line at Larbert, nearly four miles distant. The terminus is close to the town, from which run two sub-branches extending into those districts of iron mines which are already and about to be opened in the immediate neighbourhood, from which the mineral is conveyed to works near Airdrie. The town of Denny has been greatly improved of late; the houses are generally well built, and the aspect of the place is neat, clean and healthful. There is a public library, and a handsome hall where the Oddfellows' lodge and public meetings are held; also a society of the Foresters. The town contains a population of nearly three thousand persons, most of whom are employed at the adjoining public works. The places of worship are the parish church, Free church, and an United Presbyterian chapel; there are a parochial and other schools. Two fairs are held here annually—one on the Wednesday before the 12th May, the other on the Wednesday after the 11th November.

DUNIPACE parish is divided into the four districts of Little Denovan, Meikle Denovan, Dunipace, and Torwood. This locality is rendered famous, in the works of most Scottish topographists, from possessing two mounts, called 'the hills of Dunipace,' the origin of which, or the purposes to which they were devoted, have exercised the ingenuity and stimulated the researches of antiquarians: the common traditionary account is, that they were erected as monuments of a peace, concluded upon their site, between the Romans and Caledonians; but there are strong reasons for presuming that they are sepulchral memorials. It was at Dunipace that Edward I, of England, on the 14th of October, 1301, signed a warrant to his ambassadors, then in France, authorising them to consent to a truce with the Scots, as an indispensable preliminary towards a peace with their ally, the French king, between whom and Edward a destructive war had long been waged. This parish is rich in minerals and has an extended line of the Denny branch of railway crossing the river Carron, which divides this and the adjoining parish of Denny, extending to those mines already opened, and which gives employment with the other works to the inhabitants of this district. The places of worship are the parish church and a Free church.

FALKIRK,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF CAMELON AND LAURIESTON, AND THE PARISHES OF BOTHKENNAR, MUIRAVONSIDE, POLMONT AND SLAMANAN.

FALKIRK is an ancient town, and the principal town of the eastern district of the county, as it is of the parish to which it gives name; 24 miles W. from Edinburgh, 22 N.E. from Glasgow, 11 S.E. from Stirling, and three from Grangemouth. It is situate on the face of an eminence, overlooking the broad expanse of country called 'the Carse or Kerse of Falkirk,' and commanding a most extensive prospect, which, for beauty of landscape, is scarcely surpassed in any part of Scotland: the views comprise (besides the rich and fertile 'carse,' which is well cultivated, and interspersed with villages and several gentlemen's seats), the river Forth, with vessels passing to and from the ports of Grangemouth, Alloa, Kincardine, &c., and also up and down the great canal, which intersects the country about half a mile north of the town; while to the south it is bounded by Callander wood shrouding a rising ground a short distance from the town. Few situations more eligible for rendering a place handsome could have been selected: as it is, the town has a very good appearance; it consists of (excluding a number of back streets and lanes, or wynds) one principal street, which is long and irregular; in general the houses are built of hewn stone, and the town is ornamented with a steeple, one hundred and forty-six feet high, in which are two bells and a clock, and immediately to the west of which an equestrian statue of the late Duke of Wellington was erected in 1854, by public subscription. It is of stone, and is a great ornament to the High street; it is protected by an iron railing. In the year 1859 a commodious exchange or corn market was built on the north side of the parish church, in which a stock market is now held every Monday, and is well attended. The dues or customs from the market amount to about £170 per annum. The port of Grangemouth, situate about three miles to the north-east of Falkirk, has now been connected with the burgh by a railway, formed (without any parliamentary sanction) by the Forth and Clyde Canal Company). Among the inns here, the Crown, in the occupation of Mr. Malcolm, is an excellent commercial and posting house. A number of small villas have been erected towards the north of the town; they form a street, about half a mile in length—uniting to the town the villages of Grahamston and Bainsford, and thereby forming a continuous double line of upwards of a mile in extent. The town is now governed by a provost, three baillies, and eight councillors. This body first came into existence in 1833, but for want of any power of raising money to carry on a municipal government, the powers of the magistrates were latent. This defect has now been remedied by the act just passed, called the 'Falkirk Police and Improvement Act,' under which the magistrates assist the inhabitants for police and improvement purposes. The inhabitants of Falkirk have been long celebrated for a manly spirit of independence, both political and religious, combined with a liberality of sentiment and sociality of intercourse seldom witnessed elsewhere.

Falkirk as it is situate in a very populous district, with no town of consideration contiguous, commands an extensive inland trade; as there is no market held in the seven or eight surrounding parishes, and the various iron and other works (from which the town derives material support) render it the market town for between thirty and forty thousand people. Under the head of manufactures, we may mention that connected with the leather trade in tanning and currying, the making of fire-bricks and tiles, with two distilleries, and several chemical works. Besides the famous Carron Works, which are the oldest and most extensive in Scotland, there are the Abbothaugh Iron Works, the Falkirk Iron Works, the Castle Laurie Iron Works, all in the immediate neighbourhood of the town, and the Union and Camden Iron Works, about a mile to the west. There are various coal works in the vicinity, also several flour mills. The Union Canal joins the Forth and Clyde Canal about a mile west from the town, but its trade is limited, it having been purchased by the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway Company; it passes under ground, about half a mile south of the town, through a tunnel seven hundred and ninety-six yards in length.

Falkirk was created a burgh of barony in the reign of James I, afterwards a burgh of regality in the reign of Charles I, but no baron baillie has been appointed for many years. A body of 'stent masters,' chosen by the different trades of the town managed its affairs till the present year, when that body was abolished by act of parliament, and their powers and property transferred to the magistrates. Justice of peace courts and petty sessions are held as occasion requires; a sheriff court was first opened at Falkirk in 1834, for the eastern district of the county, comprising the parishes of Falkirk, Polmont, Muiravonside, Slamanan, Larbert, Bothkennar and Airth; the ordinary court is held on Mondays and Wednesdays during sessions, and the Small Debt Courts is held on Wednesdays.

The old church, founded by King Malcolm Canmore in 1057, was some years since taken down, and a new one, of the Gothic order, erected on its site; a tower, connected with the ancient structure was, however, permitted to retain its long-possessed position. In the church yard lie the bodies of Sir John de Graham (the friend of Wallace) and Sir John Stuart, who were slain on the memorable field of Falkirk in 1298, whilst fighting for the independence of their country against Edward I; two plain stones mark the spots of their interment. In the same cemetery stands the monument to two brave officers, Sir Robert Munro, of Foulis, and his brother, Dr. Munro, who fell in the second battle of Falkirk, January 17th, 1746. Various sects of religionists have places of worship in Falkirk and neighbourhood; the situation of each, with their respective officiating ministers, are given in a subsequent page. A regular market for grain is held on Thursday; the town has also one of the best flesh markets in the country. Seven fairs are annually held for cattle and horses, viz., the last Thursday in January, the first Thursday in March, the third Thursday in May, the second Thursday in June, the second Thursday in July, the third Thursday in August, and the first Thursday in November; besides two days for hiring servants (the first Thursday in April, and the last Thursday in October), called feeing Thursdays, which are numerously attended. The three Falkirk trysts, supposed to be the largest cattle market in the kingdom, are held in the neighbourhood on the second Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays in August, September and October.

CAMELON is a village, situate on the road from Stirling to Falkirk; about a mile west from the latter town, on the line of the great canal; it consists chiefly of one tolerably well built street; the inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of nails, and there are two foundries, before mentioned, in the neighbourhood, also two chemical works. Camelon is a place of considerable interest to the antiquarian, having been represented by the early writers as a maritime city—in corroboration of which assertion fragments of anchors, blocks of stone with rings attached, and even an entire boat of ancient model, have been found embedded in the soil. The city, it is alleged, was built by Vespasian, and when subsequently possessed by the Picts, had twelve brazen gates; not a vestige, however, of this magnificent place remains, except one small portion of a wall, visible from the Glasgow road. The present village had its origin about eighty years back, and the sea is now about four miles distant from it.

LAURIESTON (or Lawristoun) is a considerable village in the parish of Falkirk, about one mile east from that town; a considerable proportion of the inhabitants are engaged in the same branch of industry (nail making) as those of Camelon, while others are employed in agricultural labours. This place was originally called Langtoun, afterwards Merchiston, and is now named Laurieston, in honour of the late Sir Lawrence Dundas, who made considerable additions to and much improved it.

The parish of BOTHKENNAR lies in the carse of Falkirk, and is washed on the north-east by the river Forth and on the south by the Carron; it is a rich and fertile district, possessing some excellent orchards. A part of the village of CARRONSHORE lies within the parish, the other part being in the parish of Larbert.

MUIRAVONSIDE parish is situate on the left bank of the Avon, which river is here rendered of great service in propelling the works of a number of mills on its banks. The district, which is six miles in length by two in breadth, is nearly all arable and enclosed land, and beneath the surface there is abundance of coal, lime and iron—the latter is manufactured by Russell & Son, of Falkirk, whose works are called the Almond Iron Works. On the Avon are the ruins of an old nunnery, founded by Malcolm IV; and half a mile west are the remains of the ancient Castle of Almond, for several generations a favourite seat of the Earls of Callander.

The parish of POLMONT is one of the richest and most beautiful districts in the country, with little exception, being arable land, finely enclosed and planted; it has the river Avon on its eastern boundary, and is intersected by the main road from Edinburgh to Falkirk and by the Union Canal. The parish, which extends five miles inland from the Forth, has within its limits several coal works, and abounds in iron and freestone. The village of Polmont lies on the road to Falkirk, from whence it is three miles and a half to the east. The small village of NETHER POLMONT is situate on the road from Falkirk to Bo'ness, from which it is four miles distant.

SLAMANAN parish lies on the south bank of the Avon, extending along the margin of that river for about six miles. On the southern boundary of the district is a small lake called Black Loch, which is tributary to the great reservoir for the Clyde Canal.

FINTRY

IS a manufacturing village in the parish of its name, 41 miles from Edinburgh and 15 from Stirling; pleasantly situate north of the Campsie Fells, and admirably calculated for a seat of manufactures from its healthful site and the abundant supply of water; the deficiency of coal, however, is a formidable obstacle to the establishment of works of magnitude, the nearest point from which this indispensable article can be obtained being at the distance of at least eight miles. The Culcreuch cotton mills, which employ a great number of hands, are the most extensive works in operation in this neighbourhood. Both the Endrick and the Carron rivers have their sources in this district, and in their course through it form several romantic falls, among which the celebrated 'Loup of Fintry,' a cataract of the Endrick descending ninety-one feet, is within the parish, and is particularly worthy of being visited. Near the village of Fintry is a hill called 'the Dun,' on which is a superb range of perpendicular basaltic columns, some fifty feet in length; among these may be observed several without any apparent instertices or joints; altogether they form an attractive object.

GRANGEMOUTH

IS a very busy and thriving sea port, in the parish of Falkirk, 3 miles from that town, 27 from Edinburgh, and 25 from Glasgow; it is situated on the Frith of Forth, at the junction of the river Carron with the Forth and Clyde canal. The formation of this place was commenced in 1777, by the late Sir Lawrence Dundas, for the accommodation of the shipping passing through the canal to and from the Clyde and Glasgow, of which it is the natural eastern port. It is now a place of great importance, and displays the enterprise of the British merchant in an eminent degree by its numerous and commodious quays, granaries, and warehouses for goods, and its capacious wet docks and basins for timber. It has also ship-building yards, a graving dock, bonded stores and timber yards; rope and sail making is extensively carried on, and their are saw mills and and large collieries adjacent. The customs department consists of collector, comptroller, two clerks, two landing waiters, one tide surveyor, and twelve tide waiters and boatmen, besides extra tide waiters. The Commercial and Royal Banks have branches here. There are two good school houses, one erected by the Earl of Zetland, to which a library is attached, the other built by subscription. The Earl of Zetland Hotel is an excellent commercial and posting house, it is in the occupation of Mr. Wallace. The wet dock opened in 1843 affording room for nearly 20,000 tons of shipping, being found too small for the trade, a very large dock was added in 1859. The growth of the port is no doubt attributable to the very moderate rate of charges, which are only twopence per ton register on the vessel, and one penny per ton on general goods, as well as to the facilities for vessels of the largest tonnage to enter the docks. The canal rates of toll are also low, and an abundant supply of lighters is always in the port. The area of basins for timber exceed 17 acres. A branch railway, which joins the Scottish Central at Falkirk, was formed in 1859, thus putting the port in connection with the railway system of the country. There are large imports of timber, deals, grain, flax, &c. from Norway, Denmark, America, Prussia, and the Baltic in general, besides a considerable coasting trade. Steamers ply regularly to and from London, Rotterdam, Hamburg, Stettin, &c. The advantages and cheapness of the port, and the readiness of communication by canal and railway, with the populous manufacturing districts, and with inexhaustible supplies of iron and coal, combine to invest Grangemouth with unrivalled advantages for the above imports of other continental produce, as well as for the export of the mineral and other productions of the west of Scotland. Near the canal stands Kerse House, the seat of the Earl of Zetland. There is an Established church, a Free church, and an United Presbyterian chapel, the latter recently built.

POST OFFICE, Ann Gibson, Post Mistress.—Letters from all parts arrive (from FALKIRK) every morning about ten, in the afternoon about half-past two, and in the evening at six, and are despatched thereto in the afternoon at ten minutes before three, half-past five, and ten minutes before nine.

Money Order Office open from nine a.m. till six p.m.

KILLEARN AND GARTNESS.

KILLEARN is a village in the parish of its name, 50 miles w. from Edinburgh, 20 s.s.w. from Stirling, and nearly 17 N.W. from Glasgow; situate on the river Endrick, almost in the centre of the district, and in a pleasant part of the country. Gentlemen's seats and pleasure-grounds abound throughout the parish; and these, with the surrounding highly picturesque scenery, render the aspect of the locality most impressively agreeable. Considerable interest is also attached to this part of the county, as having been the birthplace or residence of men eminent in the biography of Scotland: in its more secluded recesses Sir William Wallace is known to have occasionally found a retreat; and in a much later age, Napier of Merchiston (inventor of the logarithms), when he was making his calculations, resided for some years at Gartness, a place to the west of Killearn, on the Endrick stream. It has an additional claim to the attention of the literary world from being, indisputably, the birthplace of George Buchanan, the celebrated poet and historian, whose name is deservedly famous all over Europe: he was born at a spot called the 'Moss,' a small farm-house on the bank of the water of Blane, about two miles from the village of Killearn; the farm was the property of the distinguished author's father, and was for a long period possessed by persons of the name of Buchanan. A beautiful monument of white freestone has been erected by the gentlemen of the parish and neighbourhood, in honour of the memory of their eminently gifted countryman: it is a well-proportioned obelisk, nineteen feet square at the base, and one hondred and three feet in height above the ground; it stands in the village, and the expense of its erection was defrayed by voluntary subscription. Near the obelisk the parochial church, a neat modern structure, has superseded the old place of worship, the ruins of which still remain. The land of the parish is fertile, and is watered by the Endrick and the Blane. The minerals in this district are chiefly limestone and freestone, and beautiful specimens of jasper are occasionally met with among the fragments of basaltic columns which abound here; the woods produce great numbers of indigenous plants. At GARTNESS, about two miles from Killearn, is a fall of water of about twelve feet, tumbling over a rock, which the salmon going up the river have to clear by a leap. Napier, inventor of the logarithms, resided here for some years; near this is a manufactory for woollen cloths and felting.

KILSYTH AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

KILSYTH is a considerable village, and burgh of barony, in the parish of its name; 35 miles w. from Edinburgh, 15 s. from Stirling, between 12 and 13 N. from Glasgow, nearly 12 w. by s. from Falkirk, and 7 from Cumbernauld; situate on the main road leading to the three first-named places. It is a straggling and irregularly built place, the greater proportion of the inhabitants are employed, through the medium of resident agents, in weaving for Glasgow houses. The parish is abundantly stocked with coal and iron ore, vast quantities of the latter being supplied to the Carron Iron-works near Falkirk. The district is about seven miles in length and three and a half in breadth, and is watered by the Carron and Kelvin rivers; it also contains one of the reservoirs of the great canal Kilsyth formerly gave the title of viscount to the unfortunate family of Livingston, attainted in 1715 for their attachment to the house of Stuart; in the burial place of this family the bodies of the last Lady Kilsyth and her infant son lie embalmed. About the middle of the parish is a hill that exhibits a fine specimen of basaltic columns. Besides the parish church, there are places of worship for members of the Free Church, the United Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Wesleyan Methodists, and Roman Catholics. Fairs are held on the first Friday in April, and the third Friday in November.

POST OFFICE, KILSYTH, William Chalmers, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from GLASGOW) every morning at twenty minutes past eight, and evening at twenty minutes past five; and are despatched thereto at seven in the morning, and evening at six.

KIPPEN, BUCHLYVIE, AND GARGUNNOCK.

KIPPEN is a village 10 miles west from Stirling, situate in the eastern part of the parish of its name. The parish, which is eight miles in length by from two to four in breadth, lies partly in the county of Stirling, and partly in that of Perth; it is well watered; and from some of the higher grounds an expansive and varied prospect, including Stirling Castle and the romantic woody eminences adjacent, is presented to the eye of the spectator. Kippen village possesses two churches—an elegant one belonging to the Establishment, and a Free church. Fairs are held at Kippen on the first, second and third Wednesdays in December.

The village of BUCHLYVIE is situated 4½ miles from Kippen, in the western division of the parish, and contains three places of worship, a quoad sacra, belonging to the establishment, a Free church, and an United Presbyterian chapel. Fairs are held in Buchlyvie on the 26th of June and 18th of November; and on Balgair Muir, in the same parish, an extensive fair for cattle is held on the Friday before the 26th June.

The parish of GARGUNNOCK extends six miles in length by two in breadth. As regards its agricultural features and capabilities, it is divided into two districts; one of which, on the south, is hilly and pastoral; and the other belongs to a flat carse land which spreads from the town of Stirling, in a south-westerly direction, towards the county of Dumbarton. A church of the Establishment and a Free church are in the village, which stands on the side of a hill on the south edge of the carse alluded to, about four miles from Kippen.

LARBERT,

OR Larbert is a parish—the village, three miles from Falkirk and eight from Stirling, is beautifully situated on the side of a hill on the northern bank of the Carron. The parish (with which that of Dunipace is incorporated), contains some gentlemen's seats of the first class, among which is Kinnaird, once the residence and property of Bruce, celebrated for his travels in Abyssinia, who was born, died and buried in this parish; his remains lie interred in the parish churchyard; a monument of iron, cast at CARRON (a village in the parish of Larbert, famous for the extensive iron works of the Carron Company), is erected over his grave. At the reformation, an ancestor of this enterprising traveller repaired and preached in the old church. The present place of worship is a handsome modern erection, with a square tower. Near this place the great Roman road or causeway passes, and about a quarter of a mile to the west the foundation of a bridge is visible when the Carron river is low. The famous Falkirk cattle tryst is held on a moor in this parish, in the month of October, when twenty to thirty thousand head of cattle, and near one thousand sheep are exposed for sale. The places of worship are an Established church and a Free church. There is also a parochial school.

POST OFFICE, LARBERT, Margaret Gillespie, Post Mistress.—Letters from all parts arrive (from FALKIRK), every forenoon at a quarter past ten; and are despatched thereto at five in the evening.

LENNOXTOWN AND CLACHAN OF CAMPSIE,

WITH TORRANCE AND THE PARISHES OF BALDERNOCK AND STRATHBLANE.

LENNOXTOWN, or NEWTOWN OF CAMPSIE, is a large village in the parish of Campsie, 42 miles W. from Edinburgh, 22 S.S.W. from Stirling, and 9 N.N.W. from Glasgow, and is situated at the terminus of the Campsie branch line of railway. In the village is the extensive calico printing establishment of Messrs. Dalglish, Falconer, & Co. and some smaller works of the same kind; the Hurlet and Campsie Alum Works are in this parish, and there are also bleachfields, and collieries in the vicinity. There is also an excellent hotel within one minute's walk from the railway station, of which Mr. Peacock is the proprietor. A sheriff court for the recovery of small debts is held at the Leonox Arms Hotel on the last Thursdays in February, May, August and November. A church, with a square tower, is situated in a commanding position near the centre of the village. The parish of Campsie lies in the central part of the county, and extends eight miles in length by seven in breadth; it is composed of a fertile strath or valley, bounded by ranges of the Campsie hills or fells on the north, which are elevated about fifteen hundred feet above the level of the sea. The Clachan, or town of Campsie, as it is designated, is distant about a mile from Lennoxtown, and stands on the low grounds at the foot of the far-famed Campsie glen, which from its romantic scenery and waterfalls, is a place of great resort in the summer. The proprietor courteously grants permission to strangers to perambulate the grounds, while, for the accommodation of visitors, there is a commodious inn at the Clachan. The district is likewise the residence of several persons of distinction, and ornamented by some elegant seats; those of Woodhead and Craigbaronet are, perhaps, the most conspicuous. The rivers Kelvin and Glazart pass through this parish, which is also intersected by the two great roads from Kippin to Glasgow, and from the latter city to Edinburgh.

The small village of TORRANCE (or, as it is generally called, the Torrance of Campsie) is about four miles from Campsie, on the direct road to Glasgow.

The parish of BALDERNOCK (anciently Bathernock) is situate in the southern extremity of the county, where it is bounded by the river Kelvin, and on the south-west lies the Loch of Baldowie. The parish abounds with cairns, and similar memorials of early warfare. The most remarkable of its antiquities is a structure denominated 'the auld wife's lift:" it consists of three stones, two of which are laid on the earth close by the side of each other, and upon the top of these the third is placed, in the same direction, with their ends pointed north and south; the whole are eighteen feet in length, by eleven in breadth, and seven in depth. In the surrounding ground the roots and stumps of oak trees have been dug up; and there can be no doubt of this spot having once been a Druidic grove, and place of sacrifice and worship.

STRATHBLANE parish, as its name implies, composes the vale of the river Blane, which pursues a north-westerly course through it; the land of the valley is exceedingly fertile, and is embellished by several neat villas, while the hills are clothed with natural woods. The village of Strathblane is three miles and a half west from the Clachan of Campsie, and four east from Killearn. There are print works in the parish. About one mile to the west are the ruins of Duntreath Castle; and two miles south-east are the ruins of Mugdock Castle, the property of the Duke of Montrose.

ST. NINIANS, BANNOCKBURN, CAMBUSBARRON, EAST PLEAN AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

ST. NINIANS is a considerable village or town in the parish of its name, about one mile from Stirling, situate on the road from that town to Glasgow; it derives its name from the patron saint of the ancient parish church, the steeple of which still remains, and is a distinguished curiosity. The church to which this fabric was formerly attached being used as a powder magazine by the Highlanders in 1746, was accidentally blown up immediately before their retreat to the north; though scarcely a stone of the body of the church was left upon another, the steeple remained uninjured. The town consists of one long and rather narrow street, the houses of which are curious and old-fashioned; upon many are dates of considerable antiquity, and some of them have stones upon which various characters and implements are rudely and grotesquely carved. The dwellings, however, are for the most part whitewashed, which imparts a more lively appearance to the place; and well cultivated grounds and thriving plantations abound in the vicinity. St. Ninians has long been famed for the manufacture of nails, other staples are the tanning of leather, and the manufacture of tartans, and other stuffs.

BANNOCKBURN is a prosperous manufacturing village in the parish of St. Ninians, one mile from that town, situate on both sides (but chiefly on the east bank) of the Bannockburn rivulet, which here runs through a glen, and after a course of a few miles drops into the Forth. Few places of its size in Scotland have more rapidly improved of late years, in consequence of the manufactures that have taken their seat here: these consist of tartans and carpets to a considerable extent. Coal is obtained in the vicinity in great abundance; and, with several other branches of trade, a tannery has been established in the village for a long period. In this district the country is characterised by long descending braes, with a northern exposure to the Frith of Forth; and it was on one of these uplands, betwixt the village and that of St. Ninians, that was fought, on the 24th July, 1314, the memorable and decisive battle of Bannockburn, the result of which was the permanent security of the independence of Scotland against the ambition of the English monarchy; in this conflict the army of the latter was defeated with a loss of thirty thousand men and seven hundred knights. Bruce's forces were stationed along the front of an eminence called Gillies' Hill, and extended from south-west to north-east, between the farm of Greysteil and the village of St. Ninians; about half a mile south from the latter, upon the summit of a commanding elevation called Caldan Hill, is a large stone, termed the 'Bored Stone,' having a hole in the top in which the Scottish king inserted his standard on the day of the battle. About half a mile above the village of Bannockburn, at MILTON, is pointed out the remains of the miller's house to which James III retreated from the battle of Sauchieburn (fought in 1488), about two miles further to the south-west, which occasioned the death of that monarch. Two fairs are held at Bannockburn—on the second Tuesdays of June and October (old style). About three miles from Bannockburn is the village of EAST PLEAN, containing an hospital for the accommodation and maintenance of indigent old men, more especially soldiers and sailors. Colonel Francis Simpson, of East Plean, who died in 1831, is the donor, having bequeathed upwards of £3,000 for the purpose. The establishment contains thirty-three inmates, who are fed, clothed, and have a small allowance of pocket money; the trustees have lately granted land on which a church has been erected.

STIRLING

IS an ancient town, the capital of the county and parish of its name, and a royal and parliamentary burgh; 35 miles W. by N. from Edinburgh, 28 N. by E. from Glasgow, 33½ S. W. from Perth, 11 N. W. from Falkirk, 7 W. from Alloa, and 6 S. from Dunblane. Like the old town of Edinburgh, Stirling is situate on the sloping ridge of a rock, the precipitous end of which, towards the west, is occupied by the castle. The prospects from hence are most delightful, and also extensive; towards the east, especially, they are highly beautified by the windings of the Forth, the ruins of the abbey of Cambuskenneth, the Abbey Craig, and the City of Edinburgh in the distance as far as the eye can reach. While the situation of Stirling is thus one of the most pleasing and picturesque in the country, it is a place noted for its antiquities and the historical associations connected with them. The origin of the name of Stirling is shrouded in great uncertainty: in all the old records it is entitled Stryveline or Stryveling, a word of obscure etymology, which has been modified into Sterling and Stirling—the latter its now accepted appellation. The town standing, as it does, on the declivity of a hill, the streets are consequently in general clean; the principal streets are Broad-street, King-street, Port-street, and Baker street. Broad-street is of a spacious and imposing appearance, lying along the inclined plane like the High-street of Edinburgh; there are, leading towards the castle, several diverging streets and several good hotels and inns, the principal of which are the Golden Lion Hotel, in King-street, conducted by Duncan Campbell; and the Royal Hotel, in Barton place, conducted by Archibald Campbell, both combining comfort and economy, with strict attention to the wants of visitors, whether families or commercial gentlemen.

Great improvements have of late years been effected, both in the town and suburbs. The approaches to the town, on every side, are truly grand, and probably equalled by few (and exceeded by none) in Scotland. Of late large sums have been expended upon the main streets, and to good purpose; for few towns now are better paved, or lighted with purer gas, than Stirling; it is also well supplied with excellent water, brought to the town from a distance of three miles; the expense of accomplishing these different objects (except the water) is defrayed by the public, or, as it is termed 'common good,' without assessing any one; so that Stirling is one of the cheapest towns for residence, as well as one of the most beautiful, in the three kingdoms. The town-house, which stands in Broad-street, has a lofty tower, with a clock and a set of musical chimes; behind it is the gaol; here, likewise, are the court-rooms, and a fine apartment for the court of justiciary, which sits twice a year. At the top of King-street is the Athenæum, a handsome edifice with a fine lofty spire and a good clock, which has four faces; the ground storeys are converted into shops; in the upper is a reading-room and very extensive library, comprising nearly five thousand volumes of ancient and modern literature; the front of the building is circular, thus giving a much greater facility to the entrance of the two streets which branch out here. There is also a school of arts, to which a library of upwards of one thousand volumes is attached; and a museum, with a respectable collection of philosophical apparatus, is connected with this institution. There is also a reading-room with library, and a small museum in Murray place, called the 'Macfarlane Library and Museum;' John Macfarlane, Esq. of Coneyhill, maintains it wholly at his own expense.

As was the case with Edinburgh, the town of Stirling arose as a suburb in contiguity with the castle; the latter stands on a basaltic rock, and around it is a pleasant walk, carried from the town, in many places, cut out of the solid rock: from this walk are several beautifully interesting views, and it affords an excellent opportunity for examining the basaltic pillars of which the rock is composed. On the south side of the castle is a flat enclosed piece of ground, called 'the Valley;' it was the spot where tournaments were held, and on one side is a place where the ladies used to sit to witness the feats of valour of the combatants, which is still designated 'the ladies' rock.' This piece of ground is now tastefully laid out as a cemetery, and is quite in keeping with the beautiful scenery by which it is environed; it contains several handsome monuments. On the low ground immediately below this rock is a curious artificial mound, of octagonal form, called the 'king's knote,' which appears to have been a miniature of a regularly fortified place, but which tradition recognises as the scene of some forgotten play or recreation that the king, with his court, was accustomed to enjoy here. The palace, which is within the castle walls, is a stately structure, externally in the form of a square, and very richly and curiously ornamented with grotesque figures, standing upon pillars or pedestals, in good preservation. For several centuries Stirling Castle was little else than a single tower; at the end of the eleventh century it rose into consequence, and in the course of the succeeding century it attained the distinction of being one of the four principal fortresses in the kingdom; such it continued during the sanguinary and protracted contest which Edward I. of England, commenced for the subjugation of Scotland, when it was frequently taken and re-taken, after tedious seiges, and under circumstances which prove its great strength and importance at that period. In the course of that eventful struggle between independence and usurpation, Stirling and its vicinity formed the theatre of some of the most brilliant achievements of Sir William Wallace; of these none was so remarkable as the battle of Stirling, fought on 13th September, 1297, in which the English army was signally defeated with great slaughter. Stirling castle first became a favourite residence of royalty about the reign of James I, whose son, James II, was born in it. In the reign of Queen Anne the fortifications of the castle were considerably extended; and it is declared, in the articles of treaty of union with England, to be one of the four fortresses in Scotland which were ever after to be kept in repair. Since that period it has experienced little change in external aspect, except its being gradually rendered more and more a modern barrack for the accommodation of soldiers. It is commanded by a fort major and subalterns; it has an appointed chaplain, and a barrack-master, who is likewise storekeeper.

Stirling as a royal burgh is one of high antiquity, having received its charter from Alexander I. It is governed by a provost, four baillies, and sixteen councillors, who are elected according to the terms of the Scottish burgh reform bill, which has also enlarged the limits of the burgh in as far as the elective franchise is concerned; and for that purpose it comprehends St. Ninians, and other small villages and hamlets. The burgh, in connection with Culross, Queensferry, Inverkeithing and Dunfermline, returns one member to parliament. Being the county town, the courts of the sheriff are held here, and are attended by a number of procurators resident in the place. The chief manufactures of Stirling are carpets, tartans and shawls for which it has been long noted, and these branches engage a considerable number of weavers; the other leading avocations are rope-making, tanning and wool-spinning. There are seven banking establishments settled here: they are branches respectively of the Bank of Scotland, National Bank of Scotland, the Commercial Bank of Scotland, the Clydesdale Bank, the Union Bank of Scotland, and the City of Glasgow Bank, besides a government security Savings' Bank. On account of the shallowness of the Forth, very little or no shipping trade is carried on; at certain periods of the tide, however, steam vessels from Newhaven afford a cheap, expeditious and agreeable communication with Edinburgh.

Near to the castle are two churches of the Establishment, besides which there are several others belonging to various sects of Dissenters. A monument, in the Grecian style of architecture, has been erected in front of the United Presbyterian chapel, St. John-st, in memory of the Rev. Ebenezer Erskine, one of the first seceders from the Establishment, at a cost of upwards of £500. In 1856 a Poor House, Hospital and Lunatic Asylum, were erected at a cost of £7,000. Several charitable institutions are established here. Stirling has been long celebrated for its schools and hospitals; some of the latter are foundations of long standing, and well endowed—their titles and localities will be found under their appropriate head. Two newspapers are issued from the press of this town every week, namely, the 'Stirling Observer,' on Thursday, and the 'Stirling Journal and Advertiser,' on Friday; they are papers of considerable repute, and deservedly enjoy a large share of patronage. Stirling, long the seat of the Scottish kings, and the classic site of the most interesting scenes in Scottish history, is now the peaceful centre of the richest and best cultivated district in Scotland. An interesting establishment, appropriate to agriculture, has been for some years formed by the Messrs. Drummond, nursery and seedsmen, of this town, wholly at their own expense—this is an agricultural museum, upon an enlightened and extensive scale; and comprises an immense collection of agricultural implements of every possible description, and all the different varieties of grains and roots, with specimens of drains and drain tiles, stacks, &c., in short every article that can be rendered useful in the theory or practice of agriculture. This museum should be visited by every person interested in the improvement of the soil or the ornament of land. Three miles from Stirling are the mineral springs of AIRTHRIE, rapidly and deservedly risen into notice; they are situate in a charming locality, close beside the Bridge of Allan, a neat and thriving village.

A weekly market is held at Stirling every Friday. The fairs are held on the first Friday in February, the last Friday in May, the first Friday in August, and the third Fridays in September and October (for hiring servants), the first Friday in November, and the second Friday in December. The corn market, which is situate near the Athenæum, is a large and commodious structure.

SUTHERLANDSHIRE.

THIS is a Highland county, and one of the most northerly districts in Scotland. Its form presents five sides, that on the east being bounded by Caithness-shire for about thirty-seven miles; that on the south and south-west by Ross-shire; that on the south and south-east, for a distance of thirty-three miles, by the Moray Frith; and its sides on the west and north are washed by the Atlantic and the North Sea. The area of the shire is computed to comprise 1,207,188 statute acres: of this large territory a small proportion only may be taken as cultivated.

SURFACE, SOIL, PRODUCE, &c.—This large county consists almost entirely of one uninterrupted succession of wild mountains, valleys, and morasses The northern and western coasts are bold and rocky, deeply indented by inlets of the sea and bays, and variegated by imposing promontories, among which latter Cape Wrath, at the north-western corner, is most prominent. The shire comprehends the political districts of Strathnaver (anciently a county of itself), Assynt and Sutherland; the first named including the northern part, and the two latter the southern. The interior is divided, naturally, into three districts—the Eastern, the Middle, and the Western: the first is a level narrow stripe of land on the east coast, sheltered from the north by a ridge of mountains from three hundred to eight hundred feet high; the second is occupied by the four straths of the rivers Helmsdale, Brora, Fleet, and Oickel; and the western district, which borders on the Atlantic, is still more wild and mountainous, abounding in salt and fresh water lochs. The mountain of greatest altitude in the shire is that of Glaschean, which rises 2,000 feet above the level of the sea. The large extent of Sutherlandshire was the last district in Scotland which was subjected to the improvements of modern times. Until about the close of the last century it was a country lying in nearly the same condition as it must have exhibited centuries before, and, in many respects, was shut out from the progress of that civilisation which had been so beneficially spread over the rest of Britain The great barrier which impeded improvement was the dangerous narrow firths to be crossed, and the total destitution of roads, either along the shore or into the interior. Two powerfully moving circumstances at length brought about the introduction of efficient measures of improvement:—the first was the extraordinary and patriotic exertions made by the noble family of Sutherland and Stafford; and the second was the well-judged liberality of parliament, which agreed to advance a moiety of the expense to be incurred for certain roads and bridges in the Highlands. When it was proposed to place turnpike gates on the principal line the noble proprietor said, 'It will shut out the thoroughfare of passengers, of which we have too few; and, regarding the tenantry, I see no benefit in lowering rents with one hand, while, with the other, I impose tolls upon them.' Thus under the fostering care of the Duke of Sutherland, as well as that of the Duchess, the aspect of the county has been most agreeably changed. Sufficient praise cannot be given to the lady, who has encouraged the building of neat cottages in the English style, and introduced a taste for cleanliness and propriety of appearance, by premiums in money, and a most becoming patronage in different ways. The breeding of sheep is the great staple business of the shire, for which its sheltered straths and finely swelling green hills, as well as its climate (which is superior to that of Caithness-shire), eminently adapt it. Under the various improvements of store farming the county rears 200,000 Cheviot sheep, of which 20,000 are annually exported, besides 80,000 fleeces of wool. From the fishing stations on the coast the county annually exports from 30,000 to 40,000 barrels of herrings, besides cod, ling, &c. Nor is the business of tillage neglected: the agriculture of the shire is now equal to that of the Lothians; and the soil, being of sandy open-bottomed nature, bears excellent crops of grain. The exports of farm produce, &c., have been much assisted by the erection of piers at Helmsdale and other places on the coast, chiefly at the cost of the Duke of Sutherland. The building of houses, bridges, and other edifices, has been greatly facilitated by the abundance of sandstone, limestone, and slate, found in different parts of the county. The principal rivers are the Durness, the Strathmore, the Navern, the Armisdale, the Avon, the Strath-Fleet, and the Shin.

Sutherlandshire comprises thirteen parishes, and part of one other. It contains only one town—Dornoch, which is a royal and parliamentary burgh, joining with Kirkwall, Wick, Dingwall, Tain, and Cromarty in returning one member; and the county at large sends another.

The total annual value of Real Property, in Sutherlandshire, as assessed in April, 1815, amounted to £33,878 and the amount assessed to the Property Tax, in 1858 nd 1859, to £52,271.

DORNOCH, CLASHMORE AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

DORNOCH is a small town and royal burgh, the capital of its parish, and of the county of Sutherland, nine miles from Tain (by the Meikle Ferry and twenty-nine round by Bonar Bridge), and twelve and a half from Golspie, healthfully and pleasantly situated near the mouth of the river Portnaculter, now generally called the Firth of Dornoch, and opposite to Tain, which lies on the south side of the estuary. Dornoch is an ancient place: it was the residence of the bishops of Caithness even before the twelfth century; the cathedral church was then erected here by Bishop Gilbert Moray, but, in the year 1570, some hostile tribes of the neighbouring country took advantage of the minority of Alexander, Earl of Sutherland, made a sudden irruption into the town, and among other barbarous acts set fire to the venerable edifice, after a desperate resistance by the inhabitants, who succeeded, however, in preserving the old tower that still remains. On the 5th November, 1605 (the day of the discovery of the gunpowder plot), a range of handsome stone pillars which supported some Gothic arches that had escaped destruction, was prostrated by a violent gale of wind. In 1614 the Earl of Sutherland commenced the repair of a part of the cathedral, and subsequent alterations converted it into an ordinary plain church; but during the year (1836) the late Duchess Countess of Sutherland restored the structure to its original dimensions and Gothic proportions: and now, with its projecting abutments and arched windows (all carefully copied from the remaining fragment of the edifice), and adorned with Gothic groinings along the lofty and long roof of the aisles, the Dornoch cathedral is the handsomest erection of its kind in the north of Scotland. The remains of the late Duke of Sutherland repose in the east aisle, where is placed a beautiful marble statue of that deeply lamented nobleman, executed by Chantrey, also a tablet to the late Duchess. A small part of the bishop's palace still remains; but all the manses of the other dignitaries of the cathedral have disappeared, and the town has lost much of its comparative importance since the triumph of the reformation.

Dornoch was constituted a royal burgh by Charles I, in 1628; and is governed by a provost, two baillies, a dean of guild and a treasurer, with six councillors; in connection with certain other burghs before named, it enjoys parliamentary representation. The trade of the town is very limited, owing chiefly to its locality at an angle of the county, and to the free navigation of the Firth being obstructed by the same bar of dangerous sand-banks mentioned in the account of Tain. Of late years some extensive buildings have been erected, regular and neat; two of these are very handsome, one contains the town and county court room, sheriff clerk's room, &c.; the other the town and county gaol and house for the gaoler. There are Parochial and Free Church schools, and another for young girls, endowed by Lady Glenorchy, who was maternal aunt to the Marchioness of Stafford. The neighbourhood of Dornoch is very pleasant, and a short distance hence are some good sea-bathing stations. Within four miles, situate on rising ground, is the neat and picturesque castle of Skelbo, erected by the Duke of Sutherland, as a home farm and rural retreat during the residence of his grace in the north, it is under the skilful management of Mr. T. Barclay. The scenery about here is very diversified, and combines the home grounds laid out with the best taste, and surrounded by distant spots alternately romantic, and beautifully picturesque, with wood and water, hill and dale.

There are two public fairs or markets held annually in the town, one on the first Thursday in November, and the other on the first Wednesday in December. These fairs were formerly wont to be thronged by persons from distant parts of the country: but now, in consequence of the rise of small villages in different places, and the establishment of cattle markets elsewhere, these fairs are but thinly attended CLASHMORE is a modern and thriving village, about three miles west from Dornoch, situated partly on the estate of Sutherland and partly on that of Skibo, being divided only by a small burn which separates these properties, and by the parliamentary road to Caithness, which passes through the village. A neat and comfortable inn, the Sutherland Arms, affords every accommodation required by visitors; it was erected some years since by the Duchess Countess of Sutherland, at an expense of £1,000 sterling, and is much frequented by noblemen, gentlemen, and travellers. Within half a mile of the village is the beautiful seat and residence of Mr. Dempster, of Skibo; on the site of this mansion there formerly, for centuries, stood a castle, with a garrison, under the charge of a general officer as governor; around it many bloody conflicts took place, but its retention having become unnecessary in these peaceful times, is was demolished, and the present castle of modern architecture, erected in its stead. The celebrated, noble, and brave but ill-fated Marquess of Montrose, in the year 1650, lodged two nights as a prisoner in the castle of Skibo, after his unfortunate defeat by the Presbyterian army near Bonar Bridge, and his subsequent capture by the avaricious and treacherous Neil Macleod, of Assynt, who basely betrayed and delivered him up to his enemies. A fair is held on the Monday after the first Wednesday in May.

HELMSDALE, BRORA AND GOLSPIE.

HELMSDALE is a modern village in the parish of Kildonan, 37 miles S. by W. from Wick, and 64 N.N.E. (by land) from Tain; situated at the mouth of the river from which it takes its name, and on the coast road that passes northward. The houses are substantial, the streets are regular, and its harbour is excellent; during the season for the herring fishery large fleets of boats resort here. The places for curing are the most complete and the best adapted on the whole coast for pursuing this branch to a great extent. The river that flows through the extensive strath of Kildonan abounds with salmon. Just opposite the town stand the ruins of an old castle, which serve as a landmark to mariners. The places of worship are two churches—one of the establishment, the other a free church; the schools are those in connection with them, and also one for young ladies.

BRORA is a village in the parish of Clyne, about twelve miles from Helmsdale and five from Golspie. Its trade is of a domestic nature; the curing of fish employs some of the inhabitants, and there is a distillery in the neighbourhood. The parish is large, being twenty-four miles in length by from four to eight in breadth—extending inland to Strathbog, through which flows a tributary to the Brora water, a narrow and rapid stream, abounding with excellent salmon. Two fairs are held, one in the second Thursday of October, and the other on the Friday after first Wednesday in May.

GOLSPIE is a parish and village—the latter neat and respectable, is eleven miles from Dornoch and twenty from Tain; pleasantly situated on the east coast of the county. Before the commencement of the present century, Golspie was principally inhabited by fishermen, but it is now the most important and prosperous village in the shire: the great parliamentary road passes through it, and, besides the north mail daily, mail gigs, upon a construction to carry passengers, start from the hotel twice a week for Tongue, Assynt, and Scourie. A branch of the Aberdeen Town and County Bank, and another of the British Linen Company, are established here. A convenient pier, accessible at low water, constructed in the safe harbour of the little ferry (three miles and a half distant), is a valuable improvement to the village and its neighbourhood, and a very excellent hotel is another convenience possessed by this respectable village. The parish church, a small but convenient building, erected in 1619, and kept in good repair, stands within a well-enclosed burial ground, surrounded by thriving trees; and at the south end of the village the Free church is situated; schools are in connexion with both these places of worship. A society exists in the village, entitled the Friendly Society of the Sutherlandshire Lodge of Gardeners, for the relief of sick members and the benefit of their widows. Golspie owes its increasing prosperity to its eligible situation in the centre of the arable district, and to the direct communication established between it and the distant west and north coasts.

The vicinage of Golspie is peculiarly distinguished and adorned by Dunrobin Castle, the chief and princely seat of the Duke of Sutherland, situated within a mile of the village. This castle is known to have existed in the twelfth century, and according to old historians, it was even long before that period the family fortalice of the ancient Thanes and Earls of Sutherland. Of its ancient appearance it has almost become divested, and given place to a particularly chaste and characteristic style of architecture. The principal entrance is through a long avenue of trees—terminating which the noble building bursts upon the sight. The view from the castle's summit is remarkably fine, and comprises all that can give effect to a delightful landscape—including the tastefully laid out gardens and grounds, the finely wooded burn, and waterfall, and the picturesque mountain of Ben-Bhraggie, towering over all, to the height of thirteen hundred feet. Upon the summit of this eminence has been placed a lofty monument, to the memory of the late Duke of Sutherland. The interior of the castle is no less to be admired than the beauties that surround it; and the works of art with which it is decorated are various and costly—the paintings especially are of the first merit; while the apartments altogether are magnificent in their furniture and dimensions. The view from the sea likewise possesses great interest: the building from this point is seen to great advantage—exhibiting its noble tiers of balconies, and numerous spires, its windows of stained glass—its gardens and beautiful fountains, &c. Near the village a handsome memorial has been erected to the late Duchess, raised by subscription, to perpetuate the remembrance of the many virtues of that noble lady.

WIGTONSHIRE.

THIS county, which forms the western part of the ancient district of Galloway, occupies the south-western extremity of Scotland. It is bounded on the east by the stewartry of Kirkcudbright (or Eastern Galloway), also by Wigton bay; on the south and west it is girded by the Irish Sea, and on the north by the county of Ayr. The extent of the shire from north to south is about thirty miles, and (including Luce Bay) its breadth from east to west about the same: the superficial contents of the county (adopting a medium calculation betwixt conflicting authorities) may be taken at four hundred and eighty square miles, or three hundred and nine thousand, seven hundred and sixty statute acres—of which about one-third, perhaps, is cultivated. The Bay of Luce indents the land to the extent of fifteen miles and forms two promontories; at the southern extremity of the western projection is the Mull of Galloway, while the apex of the eastern is called Burrow Head; these two peninsular headlands are also known by the Celtic name of the Rhinns (Rhyns or Rinos) of Galloway. On the north another promontory is formed by the intersection of Loch Ryan. In ordinary language the district is divided into Upper and Lower Galloway, which designates the northern or high and the southern or low parts of the shire.

EARLY HISTORY.—At the epoch of the Roman power obtruding itself into North Britain, the ancient British tribe of the Novantes inhabited the whole of Eastern and Western Galloway, having Leucophibia (the modern Whithorn) for their principal town, and Rerigonium (Loch Ryan), for their principal port. The Anglo-Saxons over-ran the district in the sixth century; and Oswie, the Northumbrian king settled at Whithorn. During the ninth and tenth centuries the country on the west was inhabited by the Picts from Ireland and the Isle of Man; and hence the name of Galloway, or 'the country of the Gael,' was conferred on the territory. About the twelfth century Galloway passed into the hands of the Scottish king, Alexander II. In the sanguinary contests which originated in the competition of Bruce and Baliol, the chieftains of Galloway long remained attached to the party of the latter, whose family they sheltered after Edward Bruce had subdued the whole country. The family of Douglas subsequently became possessed of the lordship of Galloway; but, on the attainder of the nobleman of that name in 1455, the title became extinct: it was revived, however, and now bestows an Earldom on the distinguished family of Stewart and Garlies. The Maxwells of Nithsdale received a portion of the estates. The proximity to Ireland and the Isle of Man caused the country of the Gael to remain for a long period a separate community from the rest of Scotland, and the Gaelic dress, manners and language lingered here long after they fell into desuetude in the rest of the Lowlands. Whilst these distinctions remained the inhabitants were conspicuous for rudeness bordering on ferocity. Their chief derived his authority sometimes from the kings of Scotland and at others from the kings of Northumbria, but neither could subdue the turbulence and insubordination of the chieftain and his vassals, who were very troublesome neighbours, inflicting the mischiefs of reckless incursions into the territories of those that had the misfortune to dwell in the proximity of these half civilized marauders.

SOIL, CLIMATE, PRODUCE, &c.—This shire is one of the most level districts in Scotland; and the hills, of which there are none of great altitude, are generally pretty free from the encumbrance of rocks. The best lands lie near the shores—the inland divisions being more elevated, and largely mixed with heath and moss. The major part of the soil is of an hazel colour, and is of that kind sometimes called a dry loam, though it often inclines to a gravelly nature. The county presents an exposure to the south, and its waters mostly descend to the Irish Sea. The climate is moist, with winds from the south-west, which prevail during the greater part of the year, usually accompanied with rains; yet, when proper attention is exercised by the agriculturist, the moisture of the climate is but seldom injurious to the products of the earth: snow rarely lies long, and frosts are not generally severe or of tedious duration. In early times this district of Galloway, like most other sections of the country, was covered with woods; and in modern days planting has been pursued most extensively: it is said that, during twenty years, the Earl of Stair annually planted twenty thousand trees. The salutary improvements that have been effected in the agriculture of this county have been, with some justice, ascribed to the efforts of the Agricultural Society of Dumfries; the spirit and practice of husbandry gradually spread from that shire to Kirkcudbright, and thence penetrated into Wigtonshire: since that period, rents have risen rapidly; and corn and other products of tillage, black cattle, wool, sheep and swine, are now largely exported. This district has long been pre-eminent as being an excellent pastoral one and for the superiority of its wool. The mineral resources of this county are by no means extensive: there is no coal, at least for any useful purpose; and although there is plenty of iron ore, the absence of the former article renders the latter of comparatively little value; in the northern part of the 'Rhinns' the existence of sandstone has been ascertained; quarries of slate, of different qualities, are found in various places; and lead mines were formerly wrought within the district. The shipping trade of Wigtonshire has felt, like all maritime counties, the impetus of steam navigation. The ports of Stranraer, Wigtown and Whithorn derive considerable benefit from this mighty power; and till recently Portpatrick was the station for the mail steam packets communicating with Ireland: the removal of which to Glasgow and Greenock has been a severe blow to the prosperity of this interesting little port. The coasting trade of this county is considerable and is steadily increasing, giving employment to a large number of mariners. In 1688 the number of boats belonging to this shire was four, and in 1860 this insignificent number is augmented to hundreds. There is also considerable activity in the fisheries connected with the numerous ports and lochs, so that combining the various sources of agriculture, commerce and the fisheries, Wigtonshire may be pronounced an active and prosperous county.

RIVERS AND MOUNTAINS.—This county has no considerable rivers; the principal are the Cree, the Bladenoch and the Tarf, with a few of smaller size. The Cree, which is a boundary river between this county and the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, rises in Carrick, in Ayrshire; after forming a lake at the head of Wigtonshire, it flows again as a stream, and, passing Newton-Stewart on the east, falls into a creek at the head of Wigtown Bay. The Blandenoch also has its source in Carrick, and, after running a course of twenty-four miles, falls into Wigton Bay. The Tarf issues from a small lake, called Loch Whinnoch, in the parish of Girthon, Kirkcudbright; and after a course of twenty-one miles unites with the Bladenoch. The mountains with their elevations above the level of the sea, are, Lang, 1,758 feet; Mochrum Fell, 1,020; Knock of Luce, 1,014; and Barhullion, 814. On the Line of Railway from Dumfries to Portpatrick; Newton-Stewart, Wigton, Glenluce, Stranraer and Portpatrick will possess stations; the important line will open out extensive facilities for communication with other important towns and counties.

Wigtonshire comprehends seventeen parishes, and has three royal and parliamentary burghs, namely, WIGTOWN, STRANRAER and WHITHORN; with these is associated New Galloway in returning one member to Parliament, and the county at large sends another. The burghs of barony in the shire are Newton-Stewart, Garlieston, Glenluce and Portpatrick; it has several thriving villages, and a number of small sea ports or natural harbours; and is ornamented by many handsome mansions and elegant seats of its nobility and gentry.

GARLIESTON AND SORBY.

GARLIESTON is a sea-port village in the parish of Sorby, finely situated at the head of Garlieston bay (a small haven on the west side of Wigton bay), and opposite Fleet bay (distances see SORBY). The place is built in the form of a semicircle, facing the sea, with a safe and commodious harbour, capable of receiving a great number of vessels; and if a breakwater was carried out to a rock called the Allen, which could be affected at an expense comparatively trifling with the benefit that would result from the improvement, vessels might here take shelter, when wind-bound, at all times of the tide, which at the spring-flow rises eighteen feet. A regular communication is now maintained between this port and Liverpool, by the 'Countess of Galloway' steam-packet, once a fortnight, and there are traders occasionally. The Broughton and Poutenburn streams, which here flow into the bay, are crossed by several bridges. Galloway House, a fine mansion, the seat of the Earl of Galloway, erected in 1740, is adjacent on the south; it is surrounded by beautiful plantations and pleasure-grounds, and the walks about it for several miles, are extremely picturesque, and the prospects on every side delightful.

SORBY (or Sorbie) is a parish and village—the latter 39 miles E. from Portpatrick, 30 S. E. from Stranraer, 13 S. from Newton Stewart, and 6 S. from Wigtown; situated in a fine part of the county, and surrounded by land in a high state of cultivation. The parish is of an irregular figure, extending along the shore about twelve miles, and varying in breadth from two to six miles inland. The chief bays in the parish are Garlieston (above described) and Rigg, with the ports of Allan, Whaple and Innerwell: these bays and ports are very convenient for shipping, and well adapted for the prosecution of the fisheries. The headlands are Crugleton and Eagerness: upon these are the remains of two strong castles; and about a mile to the east of the kirk are the gradually mouldering outlines of Sorby tower, formerly belonging to the Hannay family. The places of worship are the parish church at Sorby, and a Free Church and an Independent Chapel at Garlieston.

GLENLUCE AND NEW LUCE.

GLENLUCE is a village in the parish of Old Luce, 19 miles E. by N. from Portpatrick, 18 W. from Wigtou 16 S. W. from Newton-Stewart, and 10 E. by S. from Stranraer; situated on the banks of the river Luce, and on the public road, at the head of Luce bay, which here forms a tolerably good harbour for small vessels, and affords employment for many fishermen. The country around is interesting and picturesque, and abounds with game of almost every kind. The church is a neat edifice, remarkable only for its simplicity; there is also a free church, and a chapel for a united secession congregation. About a mile to the north of the church, farther up the vale (from which the village takes its name) are the ruins of Luce Abbey, founded by Rolland, Lord of Galloway, in 1190: when in its perfect state it must have been an extensive building. The vast mass of prostrate fragments at present cover about an acre and a half of ground, notwithstanding the quantities that have been carried away. The only part now remaining entire is a small apartment on the east side of the square, within which latter stood the cloisters; in the middle of this apartment stands a pillar, about fourteen feet high, from which eight arches spring, and have their terminations in the surrounding walls. Tradition reports Michael Scott, of cabalistic memory, to have been at one time abbot of this establishment, and adds that his magical library still exists under a particular part of the ruins. To ascertain this a person excavated a part of the ground and found many curiosities, together with several skeletons in an upright position; the explorer however having been seized with insanity, farther search by him was interrupted, and the superstitions of the people here prevented others from pursuing the examination. The Dumfries and Portpatrick Railway goes through this town. The principal hotel here is the Kings Arms. There is a monthly fair or market held here, from the first Friday in the month of April to the first Friday in December

The village of NEW LUCE is five miles north from Glenluce, situated on the Luce, where the Cross water falls into that river. This district, which, until the year 1646 formed part of the parish of Old Luce, extends about ten miles in length by from five to six in breadth. It consists of high and low ground: of the former, the greater proportion is covered by rocks or heath; the arable land, which is not of great extent, lies principally on the banks of the rivers. The parish church—a plain building, and an United Presbyterian chapel, are the places of worship.

KIRKMAIDEN, DRUMORE, STONEYKIRK,

AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

THE parish of KIRKMAIDEN occupies nearly the whole of the western limb or peninsula of Wigtonshire—projecting into the mouth of the Solway Frith, and tapering to a point that inclines to the east. This parish which comprehends the most southerly district of all Scotland, is about ten miles in length and from two to four and a half in breadth; it still has a wild appearance, but produces good crops of corn and potatoes, and feeds numbers of black cattle. The coast is generally bold, and indented by caves scooped out by the endless operations of the sea, and particularly by its furious lashings against the opposing barrier in stormy weather; on both sides of the peninsula, however, there are several good anchoring grounds. At PORTNISSOCK is a harbour, constructed at the expense of the late Andrew M'Douall, Esq., then proprietor, who used every exertion in his power to improve this locality. There is also a tolerable harbour at DRUMORE; here the coast-guard have a station, under the command of a lieutenant of the royal navy. The church, a plain edifice, is situate near the centre of the parish, not far from Dromore bay, at the distance of six miles from the Mull of Galloway, 35 from Wigton, 36 from Newton-Stewart, 20 from Stranraer, and 16 from Portpatrick. On the estate of Colonel M'Douall, of Logan, is a fish pond well worthy the inspection of visitors; it is hewn out of the solid rock, and has communication with the sea by means of an ingeniously contrived iron grating; some of the fish in this artificial reservoir have been rendered so tame that they will feed out of the hand.

The parish of STONEYKIRK (more properly Steven's Kirk) lies in the western peninsula of the county, to the north of Kirkmaiden, six miles from Stranraer and about the like distance from Portpatrick; on the east and south-east is the bay of Glenluce. The parish, which extends seven miles in length by from three to five in breadth, comprehends the three old parishes of Stoneykirk, Clachshant and Toskerton. The surface is generally hilly, moorish, and of a pastoral character; the low grounds are arable, and in some places planted. On the estate of Major Maitland, in this district is an artificial mount, supposed to be of Roman origin, and used as a beacon in the time of war; there is likewise another, of a similar kind, on the estate of Sir John M'Taggart, of Ardwell House.

KIRKOWEN,

OR KIRKCOWAN, is a parish and village—the latter 10 miles from Glenluce, 8 from Wigton, and 7 from Newton-Stewart; situated on the Tarf water, near its junction with the Bladenoch. Near the village is the extensive woollen manufactory of the Messrs. Milroy, which furnishes employment to many of the inhabitants. The Portpatrick railway passes within a quarter of a mile of this village. The principal hotel here is the 'Commercial.' The church, which is a very neat edifice, was erected in 1830; its site, as well as the ground occupied by the church-yard, was munificently given by Captain W. C. Hamilton, of Craiglaw. The old church was dedicated to Saint Cowan, the original name of the parish. There is also a chapel for the United Presbyterians. The surface of this district is various, consisting of moorland interspersed with pieces of arable land. It extends from north to south fifteen miles, by a general breadth of about five; and it is well watered by the Tarf and Bladenoch streams.

NEWTON-STEWART,

AND THE PARISH OF PENNINGHAM, WITH MINNIEGAFF AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

NEWTON-STEWART is a thriving town and burgh of barony, 121 miles s. w. from Edinburgh, 82 s. from Glasgow, 52 w. from Dumfries, 26 w. from Stranraer, and 8 N. from Wigton; situated on the high road from Dumfries to Portpatrick, on the right bank of the river Cree, in the parish of Penningham, with a small portion on the opposite side o fthe stream in the parish of Minniegaff. The new line of railway from Dumfries to Portpatrick passes through the town. It owes its origin to a younger branch of the Stewarts, Earls of Galloway, who possessed the estate of Castle-Stewart, and founded the village upon it, to which he gave the name of Newton-Stewart. About the year 1778 the estate fell into the hands of William Douglas, Esquire, when it was created a burgh of barony, under the title of Newton-Douglas, but it subsequently resumed its original name. About seventy years ago the houses consisted but of one storey, and were covered with thatch, but the greater portion are now two storeys in height, and are slated. The town is principally composed of one long street, in the centre of which is the town-house. The Cree is crossed by a very handsome bridge of five arches, connecting the larger division of the town with the lesser part on the other side of the river. The government of the town is vested in the hands of the justices of the peace, who meet once a month. The cotton manufacture was formerly carried on here and in the neighbourhood to a considerable extent, but it has been in a declining state for some years. The staple at present is wool, furnished from the surrounding country, and mostly purchased for the Lancashire markets. Among the other prominent branches may be mentioned the tanning of leather, for which there are two yards, and an extensive brewery.

The places of worship are a church of the Establishment, and chapels for the Reformed and United Presbyterians and Roman Catholics. The educational establishments comprise parochial and sabbath schools, the Douglas academy, industrial and infants' schools, and two or three private schools. There is a mechanics' institute in the town, in a very flourishing condition; it is liberally supported by the gentry of the neighbourhood; the news-room is supplied with the leading newspapers and periodicals. It is open to the public gratuitously every evening: the library contains about eight hundred volumes. The principal hotel is the Galloway Arms, situated in the centre of the town. Agricultural improvement has been carried on to a great and beneficial extent in this district. At the upper extremity of that part of the town in Minniegaff parish, there is a large moat hill, where David Graham, brother to Claverhouse, and superior of this district, used immediately, before the Revolution, to administer justice. About three miles to the north of the town are the remains of Castle-Stewart, formerly belonging (as before stated) to a branch of the Galloway family. The weekly market is held on Friday. Cattle markets, which are well attended, are held on the second Friday in every month, and the annual fairs on the last Wednesdays of March, July and October, and on the first Wednesday after the 15th of June (old style).

The parish of PENNINGHAM, or Penninghame, extends along the right bank of the river Cree for about fifteen miles, by a breadth of from three to five; bounded by Wigton on the south and Kirkowen on the west. The greater part of the district is moorish and uncultivated, chiefly adapted to pasture.

MINNIEGAFF is a large parish in the western part of the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, bounded on the west by the Cree, over which is a bridge (before noticed), forming the communication with the parish of Penningham and the town of Newton-Stewart. The parish is seventeen miles in length and eleven in breadth. In the lower parts the land is a good deal improved, especially towards the margin of the Cree, which stream, being navigable for several miles up, has been of much benefit in an agricultural point of view. This river likewise produces excellent fish of different kinds, but the best and most abundant is the salmon. By far the greater portion of the parish is devoted to pasturage: it is covered by large flocks of sheep and numerous herds of black cattle. There are two places of worship —one each of the Established and the Free churches. Within a mile of Newton-Stewart, but in the parish of Minniegaff, is 'Heron-Kirouchtree' beautifully situated on the side of a hill, surrounded by fine woods, and intersected by tasteful serpentine walks. A grotto in the grounds is of exceedingly romantic appearance; it is curiously formed out of an old stone quarry, and is well worth inspection.

POST OFFICE, NEWTON-STEWART, James S. Gray, Post Master.—Letters from WIGTOWN, WHITHORN, &c., arrive every morning at half-past ten, and are despatched at half-past two in the afternoon.

Letters from PORTPATRICK, STRANRAER and GLENLUCE arrive every morning at eleven, and are despatched at twenty minutes before three in the afternoon.

Letters from GLASGOW and GIRVAN arrive every day at half-past twelve, and are despatched at five in the evening.

Letters from DUMFRIES and all ENGLAND arrive every afternoon at ten minutes past two, and are despatched at eleven in the morning. On Sundays letters arrive from DUMFRIES, &c. at five in the evening, and are despatched at eight in the morning.

The Money Order Office is open from nine in the morning till six in the evening.

PORT WILLIAM AND MOCHRUM.

PORT WILLIAM is a prosperous village in the parish of Mochrum, 24 miles S.E. from Stranraer, 15 S.S.E. from Glenluce, and 9 W. from Withorn, situated on the bay of Glenluce. The harbour here, though small, is commodious and safe, and from it large quantities of grain and potatoes are exported for Liverpool and Lancaster. In the vicinity is Montreith, the handsome residence and demesne of Sir William Maxwell, Bart., proprietor of the place and its founder. The mansion, which stands on the bank of a fine lake, commands an extensive prospect of the bay of Glenluce, the shores of Galloway, the Isle of Man, and the coast of Cumberland: near it is an old castle, surrounded by lofty trees; and contiguous are the remains of the old parish church, now occupied as a place of sepulture by a family named Maxwell, whose ancestors formerly possessed the estate, and which was wrested from them when power was law. The houses in general are very well built, afford excellent accommodation for families and tourists, visiting this place during the bathing season. The principal hotel is the Montreith Arms. The places of worship are a chapel each for the Free and United Presbyterians, and Roman Catholics.

The parish of MOCHRUM is about ten miles in length, and extends inland between four and five miles. The Castle or 'Old Place' of Mochrum, surrounded by lakes, is a very ancient picturesque building, in an inland part of the parish; it was formerly the family seat of the Dunbars, Knights of Mochrum, but has for many years been the property of the Marquess of Bute.

The village of Mochrum, which is about a mile and a half from Port William, contains nothing worthy of mention except the parish church and school.

PORTPATRICK

Is a parish and sea-port town—the latter 133 miles s.w. from Edinburgh, 89 s.s.w. from Glasgow, between 34 and 35 w. from Wigtown, the same distance w. by s. from Newton-Stewart, and rather more than 8 s. by w. from Stranraer: it is distant from Dublin 117 miles; from Belfast 36; and from Donaghadee 21. It is situated on the coast of the North Channel, and has long been the great thoroughfare from the north of Ireland, being the nearest point of Great Britain to that country, and the best place of crossing from one kingdom to the other. The town is small, but its position delightful—having a fine southern exposure, and surrounded on the other side by a ridge of small hills. It was formerly, with the estate of Dunskey, the property of Lord Mount-Alexander, whose residence was the old castle of Dunskey, which stands in the neighbourhood, on the brink of a tremendous precipice overhanging the sea, and was once a building of considerable strength, as appears from its interesting remains; the late Sir James Hunter Blair subsequently became possessed of the castle, and it is to the exertions of that gentleman that the town and harbour are indebted for many improvements. There is now one of the finest quays in Britain, and a reflecting light-house; in the construction of the quay the diving-bell was most successfully employed. Several years ago extensive and important improvements were carried on at the harbour, under the auspices of government and direction of Sir John Rennie, for the accomodation of her Majesty's packets. The mail communication between this place and Ireland however ceased in the year 1849. since that date the business of this locality has been diminished to a great extent. The railway from Dumfries to this place will, it is contemplated, again restore this place to its former consequence and the mails from this port to Ireland be re-established.

The places of worship are the parish church, and one for the Free communion of Scotland; and the schools are one connected with each. The parish church is a remarkably neat edifice, with an embattled tower and from its advantageous site is a conspicuous, as well as an ornamental object.

POST OFFICE, Alexander Niven, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from STRANRAER) every evening at nine, and are despatched thereto every afternoon at ten minutes past one.

STRANRAER,

AND THE PARISHES OF INCH, KIRKCOLM, LESWALT, CAIRNRYAN & NEIGHBOURHOODS.

STRANRAER (or Stranrawer) is a thriving, respectable and ancient town, a royal burgh, and the seat of a presbytery, as well as a parish within its bounds; nearly 10 miles N. from Glenluce, and rather more than 8 (by the toll road) from Portpatrick, eligibly situated at the inner extremity of Loch Ryan. The principal street is of great length, but the houses have not been erected on the most regular plan. In the centre of the town stands a building, originally a castle, but now used as the police-office, an edifice of considerable antiquity, but the date of its foundation has not been satisfactorily ascertained. It is mentioned in a charter granted by James VI, and is called 'the tower, fortalice, and manor place of Chappell,' and was once the residence of the family of Kennedy of Chapel and Chrychan. In the year 1614 it was inhabited by John Kennedy, of Grennan, and Elizabeth his wife, then Lady Auchtriloor. The lands of Auchtriloor are immediately contiguous to the burgh of Stranraer, and are now the property of the Earl of Stair. The town-hall, in High-street, is a neat structure; in it a justice of the peace court is held on the first Monday in every month, also a burgh court, occasionally, on Saturday, and the sheriff of the county frequently holds criminal courts with a jury, and also courts for the recovery of small debts. The new prison is a handsome and substantial erection, possessing the requisite adaptation both for confinement and discipline. The academy is a large and commodious building. As a royal burgh, the town is governed by a provost, a dean of guild, and sixteen councillors; and it joins with Whithorn, Wigtown and New Galloway in parliamentary representation.

The bay of Stranraer affords excellent anchorage, and when the present pier is extended to the deep water, as is now intended, and the other improvements in the course of being carried on are completed, the harbour will afford excellent shelter and accommodation for vessels of large tonnage. The depth of water in the loch, which is sheltered from all winds, is such as to allow a fleet of men of war to ride at anchor here with perfect safety. The bay affords a plentiful supply of fine oysters, the right of fishing for which belongs exclusively, by ancient charter, to Sir William Wallace, of Loch Ryan, who annually lets it. There are likewise several kinds of white fish caught abundantly; and occasionally some herrings are got equal in quality to the finest obtained on any other part of the Scotch coast. There are two coast-guard establishments here, under the command of a lieutenant of the royal navy; and a custom-house, the jurisdictional duties of which includes all the creeks within the 'Rhinns' as members. The exports of the place consist of shoes and leather; also grain, cheese, and all kinds of farm produce, and cattle, which are now conveyed to Glasgow regularly twice every week by steam-vessels, to Belfast once a week, and to Liverpool occasionally. The Portpatrick railway passes through the town. Among other branches of business usually found in a flourishing town, there are in Stranraer tan-yards, an extensive nursery in the neighbourhood, some nail manufactories, and four banking companies—branches of the British Linen Company, the Union Bank of Scotland, the Clydesdale Banking Company, and the City of Glasgow Bank. The principal inns are the 'King's Arms,' the 'Commercial Hotel,' and the 'George.' News rooms, subscription libraries, and various societies—literary, benevolent and religious, are among the institutions maintained by the denizens of Stranraer.

The new church, in Church-street, is a very handsome structure, in the pointed style of architecture, the front lofty, and surmounted with pinnacles; the interior is capacious, with galleries and a commanding pulpit, and the whole has an aspect of chaste neatness. The second church connected with the Establishment is situated at the western extremity of the town, on a lofty eminence, and, with its tower, is a conspicuous landmark from the loch. There are eight other places of worship for various denominations, inclusive of two Free churches—a list of all these is given in the directory, with their localities and ministers.

Numerous seats, adorned with all the charms of nature and art, ornament the neighbourhood of Stranraer. Culhorn, now the residence of the Earl of Stair, is one mile and a half distant, and Castle Kennedy, four miles off, the property of the same nobleman, is surrounded by delightfully picturesque scenery. The following, situate in the vicinity of the burgh, are also worthy of notice:—Lochnaw Castle, the residence of Sir Andrew Agnew, Bart.; Corsewell House, J. Carrick Moore, Esq.; Loch Ryan House, Sir William Wallace; Dunskey, General Thomas Hunter Blair; Balgreggan, Major Maitland; Logan, Colonel M'Dowall; Genoch, Alexander M'Meel Caird, Esq.; Calloch, Robert Kirkpatrick, Esq.; Rephad, George Guthrie, Esq.; Laurel Bank, John Adair, Esq.; Belmont, Nathan Taylor, Esq., &c. The market is held on Friday. The following are the annual fairs:—for horses, the first Monday in January, the Thursday before the 29th of June, and the Monday before the second Thursday in October; for cattle, on the third Friday in every month, commencing from April and ending in November. There are also two other fairs for general business, held in May and August.

The parish of INCH lies on the shore of Loch Ryan, extending nine miles in length by a breadth nearly as great. The parish church stands on the margin of a lake, in which there is a small beautifully wooded island. The lake is nearly divided by a neck of land, on which stands the ruins of a castle, formerly a seat of the Earls of Stair.

KIRKCOLM parish is bounded by Loch Ryan on the east, measuring a square of about five miles. The church is pleasantly situate near the shore of the lake, north of the bay called the Wig.

The parish of LESWALT lies betwixt the Irish channel on the west and Loch Ryan on the east; it is about the same size and of much the same form as Kirkcolm. The surface of this district is most agreeably varied with hill and dale; while, from the sea, the coast presents bold and rocky features.

CAIRN RYAN is a small group of houses, on the eastern margin of Loch Ryan, six miles from Stranraer. The harbour affords safe anchorage for vessels, which frequently take refuge here, and there is a lofty lighthouse for their guidance. Sir William Wallace has a residence here.

WHITHORN,

WITH THE ISLE OF WHITHORN, AND THE PARISH OF GLASSERTON.

WHITHORN (or Whithern) is a town of considerable antiquity and a royal burgh, in the parish of Whithorn, 40 miles E. by S. from Portpatrick 32, S. E. from Stranraer, 21 S. from Newton-Stewart, and nearly 13 S. from Wigton; situated not far distant from the shore of Wigton bay. It was originally inhabited by a tribe of Britons called the Novantes, and was then a town of some consequence: it is mentioned by Ptolemy under the name of Leucophibia; the Saxons called it Hwitærn, and from the latter the appellation Whithern is derived. St Ninian built a church here in the fourth century, which Bede mentions as the first that was erected of stone. During the eighth century it was the seat of the bishops of Candida Casa, and it formed the episcopal capital of a bishopric of Galloway in the twelfth century. After the period of the reformation, however, it is seldom mentioned in public transactions, and seems to have sunk into obscurity. The town consists chiefly of one street, running from north to south, with diverging alleys; nearly in the centre it is intersected by a small stream, which is crossed by a bridge.

From successive kings Whithorn received various charters constituting it a burgh of barony; it is now a royal burgh, but the period when it attained that distinction does not appear. It is governed by a provost, two baillies, and nine councillors; and joins with Stranraer, and other burghs herein before-mentioned, in returning one member to parliament. The trade of Whithorn is very inconsiderable, and that which it does enjoy is merely of a retail and domestic character; independent of this, however, there are two banking establishments, and several insurance agencies. The places of worship are the parish church, a Free church and one each for United and Reformed Presbyterians and Roman Catholics. The parish church is remarkably neat as well as spacious, and much superior to most of the parish kirks in this county; it is erected partly on the venerable ruins of the priory, founded by Saint Ninian before-mentioned, and who is said to have been the first who converted the Picts to the Christian faith. These ruins are remarkably grand and imposing; they contain several large vaults, a beautiful Saxon, and some Gothic arches, also sculptured royal armorial bearings of Scotland, and the dilapidated arms of the bishops of Galloway. The inhabitants support a subscription library, and a bible society, and parochial and infants' schools are the other institutions of the town. A cattle market is held on the second Thursday in each month from April to December, and an annual fair in July.

The ISLE OF WHITHORN is a pleasant village, about three miles from Whithorn, of which it is the port. Near the village stand the remains of an old church, said to be the first built in this part of the kingdom, or as some affirm, the first founded in Scotland, and its preservation is desirable from its venerable age and interesting origin.

The parish of GLASSERTON lies on the east coast of Luce bay, bounded by Whithorn on the east, Mochrum on the west, and Kirkinner on the north; it extends seven miles and a half in length by a general breadth of two and a half, except in its northern part, where it is nearly double that space. On the coast near its north-western confines is Lag Point, with a small haven on the north, called Monreith Bay; a village at its head is termed the Milltown of Monreith. The church stands in the southern quarter of the parish.

POST OFFICE, WHITHORN, Alexander Gordon, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from WIGTOWN) every evening at ten minutes to six, and are despatched thereto every morning at twenty-five minutes past seven.

Letters to and from ISLE WHITHORN and GLASSERTON at the same time as those from WHITHORN.

Money Orders granted and paid from nine in the morning until six in the evening.

WIGTOWN,

AND THE PARISH OF KIRKINNER AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

WIGTOWN or WIGTON—(the former mode of spelling is, however, now generally adopted, to distinguish this town from that of Wigton, in the county of Cumberland), is a royal and parliamentary burgh, the seat of a presbytery, and the capital of its parish; 105 miles S.S.W. from Edinburgh, 58 S.W. from Dumfries, 28 E. by S. from Stranraer, and 8 S. from Newton-Stewart, pleasantly situated on an eminence near the north side of the Bladenoch water, two miles from its junction with the Cree, or bay of Wigtown. It is a place of considerable antiquity, having come into existence, during the middle ages, from the erection of a castle on the spot by a band of successful Saxon invaders, who conferred on it the name of Wig, from the place having been contested in a battle; the adjunct ton, or 'town,' was afterwards given when the town arose. The castle of Wigtown, subsequently became a royal residence; but the town itself does not appear to have been conspicuous until the reign of David II. when it gave the title of Earl to the family of Fleming. The principal street of the present town is a parallelogram, of which the internal space is enclosed by a wall and iron palings, and the centre laid out in walks and a bowling green, forming an agreeable promenade for the inhabitants. At the end is a very handsome modern cross, of granite, sculptured in an elegant and tasteful manner, and enclosed with an iron railing. At the other extremity is the court house, having a tower of considerable height, which imparts a degree of dignity to the town. The building contains the court-room, the sheriff's small debt court, and the ordinary courts—which latter are held every Tuesday in time of session: and the sheriff's court sits once a fortnight, for deciding claims not exceeding £12. A mechanics' institution is liberally supported by the gentry of the town, the news room is supplied with the leading newspapers &c. of the day, it also contains an excellent library, with upwards of 1,000 volumes. A monument has recently been erected here in memory of the late Margaret Wilson and Margaret M'Lachlan, who unfortunately perished in the Bladenoch water, in the year 1685, it is situated on the top of Windyhill, from which there is a magnificent view of the town and the surrounding country. The monument was erected by public subscription at a cost of £200. Many new buildings have been erected, some of them of a very tasteful and costly description; such as the parochial, borough, and grammar school, the county jail, and the banks—the latter branches from the respectable establishment, of the 'British Linen Company,' the 'City of Glasgow,' and the 'Clydesdale Banking Company.' The inns, and accommodation for strangers visiting the town are excellent, and the burgh altogether may be considered in an improving condition. The harbour of Wigtown is safe, and has depth of water for vessels of three hundred tons burthen to approach the town. The principal exports are corn and cattle; and there is a regular communication with Liverpool by steam-packets. An extensive brewery and a distillery (the latter at Bladenoch); a large manufactory for farina, and another for agricultural implements (at Bladenoch) are the other principal branches. Wigtown is the seat of a custom-house, the members of which comprehend the creeks of Wigtonshire and those of the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, from the Mull of Galloway to the mouth of the river Fleet. In the year 1581 Wigtown was specified as one of the 'King's Free Burghs,' it is (as a royal burgh) governed by a provost, two baillies, and fifteen councillors, and is associated with Stranraer, Whithorn and New Galloway, in returning one member to the legislature.

The places of worship are a church of the establishment, a Free church, and one for United Presbyterians. A masonic lodge and a friendly society are in the town—the latter established in 1795. The parish of Wigtown extends five miles in length by four in breadth; it has several eminences throughout, but it is in general flat and fertile. At the western extremity of the parish are nineteen large granite stones, placed in a circular form: they are supposed to have belonged to a druid place of worship or sacrifice, while tradition points to the spot as the tomb of King Galdus. The market entitled by charter, to be holden on Saturday, is now but little observed. Fairs are also chartered to be held at Candlemas, on the first Monday in April, and the first Fridays in July and August, all old style—they are, however, in a great measure, discontinued, but there is an annual cattle show, which is numerously attended.

The kirk town of KIRKINNER is about three miles from Wigtown, on the road to Garlieston, and is remarkable for its beautiful and picturesque scenery. The principal ornament in this neighbourhood is the stately mansion of R. V. Agnew, Esq. Here are also the remains of the ancient castle of Baldoun, formerly a residence of the Dunbars, an incident in which family is supposed to have served as the foundation of the 'Bride of Lammermoor,' by the late Sir W. Scott. The parish extends three miles along Wigtown bay, the Bladenoch water dividing it, on the north from Wigtown, and Dowalton lake touching it on the south. The ruins of Longcaster church (the parish now incorporated with Kirkinner), stand a mile from the lake.

POST OFFICE, WIGTOWN, Grace Tait, Post Mistress.—Letters from all parts (except WHITHORN, &c.) arrive every afternoon at half-past three, and are despatched thereto, every morning at twenty minutes past nine.

Letters from WHITHORN, &c. arrive every morning at twenty minutes past nine, and are despatched thereto every afternoon at half-past three.

Money Orders granted every day from nine in the morning until six in the evening.

☞ The proprietor claims the attention of the public to the mode necessary to be observed in directing to this town—which should be 'Wigtown, North Britain,' or 'Wigtown, Wigtonshire,' not Wigton (only) as, in the latter case letters, &c. will be forwarded to Wigton, in Cumberland, instead of their proper destination,

WAS AWARDED TO

CHARLES MACINTOSH & CO.

SOLE MANUFACTURERS & PATENTEES

OF THE

Vulcanized India Rubber.

The process for rendering CAOUTCHOUC unadhesive, and that for rendering it Cold resisting, or, as it is commonly called, "VULCANIZED," are the inventions of Mr. THOMAS HANCOCK, for which he obtained Patents, dated 21 November, 1848, and 18 March, 1846. By the vulcanizing process the character of CAOUTCHOUC is materially changed, being PEMANENTLY ELASTIC IN CLIMATIC HEAT OR COLD, and capable even of ENDURING GREAT DEGREES OF HEAT, is GREATLY INCREASED IN ELASTICITY AND STRENGTH, and is NO LONGER SOLUBLE IN ESSENTIAL OILS AT COMMON TEMPERATURES. Is susceptible of delicate embossings, and can be moulded into any form which it ever after permanently retains, it admits of the most durable colouring, receives the finest Copper-plate and Lithographic impressions, and is also adapted to the more ordinary purposes of Wood-cut and Letter-press printing. The production of this material in its modified state, has made it applicable to so many new uses, that upwards of FIFTY PATENTS have been taken by different persons, adapting and applying it to their various purposes.

THE GRANGE HOUSE SCHOOL is designed to afford a higher classical and general education to a limited number of young gentlemen of the upper ranks, all of whom are resident. The private studies of the Pupils are superintended by the Vice-Principal, with the assistance of Resident Tutors, graduates of English and Continental Universities.

The Grange House, a baronial residence, is situated about a mile to the south of Edinburgh, and is consequently easily accessible to Masters professionally attending the School. The locality is widely known for its salubrity; and the Mansion House, with enclosed Pleasure Grounds, Gardens, and Park, extending over several acres, is peculiarly suitable for a Private Boarding and Scholastic Establishment of the highest class.

LIFE ASSURANCE.

The system of the NORTH BRITISH INSURANCE COMPANY combines the benefit of Mutual Assurance with the safety of a large Protecting Capital, and affords all the facilities and advantages which can prudently be offered by any Life Assurance Office.

ADVANTAGES OFFERED BY THIS COMPANY.

1. Nine-tenths (90 per cent.) of the Profits, or, in other words, the whole of the Profits arising from the Life Business, after setting aside one-tenth for the guarantee, are divided among the Assured entitled to participate.

2. Bonuses may be added to the Sum Assured, or surrendered for a Cash Payment, or applied to the reduction of the future Premiums.

3. A Prospective Bonus of One per Cent. per Annum is allowed on Policies which have subsisted for Five Years, which may become claims previous to the next Investigation in 1865.

4. The Sum Insured may be made payable at any given age, or at death, if it occur previously.

5. An ascending scale of Premiums, whereby Policies may be effected at the lowest possible rates.

6. On Insurances for the Whole Period of Life, half the Premium may remain on credit for the first Five Years, or one-third during the convenience of the party assured.

7. No Extra Charge for residence in British North America, the Cape, Australia (including the Diggings), New Zealand, Port Natal, and parts of the United States, and no license required except for the voyage.

8. On proof of age, and by special application, Policies are declared unchallengeable from and after the expiry of Five Years from their date, and parties, on receiving a license, may go to any part of the world without incurring the forfeiture of their Policies—thus making the Policies of the Company good marketable securities.

9. Advances made on Policies to the extent of the security they afford, when the value amounts to £50. and upwards.

10. No Entry Money or other charge. Policy Stamp paid by the Office.

NEW AND IMPORTANT ADVANTAGES.

To meet the exigencies of parties, and to render the benefits of Life Assurance more generally available, the Directors have adopted the following new and important principles:—

1 APPLICATION OF PROFITS TO THE PURCHASE OF AN ANNUITY.

By this system a party not only secures the payment of the sum in the event of his death before 65, but at his option he may convert the Policy, with its Bonuses, into an equivalent Annuity commencing at 65.

2. HALF PREMIUM SYSTEM,

By which a party may secure all the benefits of the Half Credit System without any debt being incurred.

3. DOUBLE INSURANCE SYSTEM,

By which, for a moderate uniform Premium, a Policy may be secured which will increase each year until, in 20 years, the sum in the Policy is doubled. This system is particularly advantageous to young lives.

For further explanation of these New Principles, and for the Rates applicable thereto, see the Company's Prospectus.

ANNUITIES.

1. Immediate Annuities are granted on favourable terms.

2. Deferred Annuities, to commence at any specified age, may be secured, either with or without return of Premium.

3. Survivorship Annuities may be secured with or without return of Premium.

REVERSIONARY INTERESTS.

The Company are ready either to purchase Reversionary Interests and Life Rents, or to make advances on them to the extent of the security they afford.

FIRE INSURANCE.

The Company INSURES AGAINST FIRE—Silk, Cotton, Woollen, and Flax Mills, Buildings of all descriptions, Furniture, Stock in Trade, Merchandise, Agricultural Stock, Implements of Husbandry, and Effects of every kind, at the lowest rates of Premium corresponding to the risk.

Farming Stock is Insured without the Average Clause, and loss and damage by Lightning thereon made good.

No charge is made for Policies when the sum insured amounts to £300., or for Transfers from other Offices.

Insurance for seven years charged for six years only.

Losses settled with promptitude and liberality. A duty of 3s. per cent. per annum on all property insured from Fire in Great Britain and Ireland is payable to Government, with the exception of Farming Stock and Public Hospitals, which are exempt.

The Company holds itself responsible for damage done by explosion of Gas, such explosion taking place within Buildings on or in which this Company has insurance, without extra charge.

Prospectuses, containing Tables of Rates and every other information, may be had at the Head Office, in Edinburgh, or at any of the Company's Agencies in the Country.

64, Princes-street, Edinburgh,
21st October, 1859.

DAVID SMITH, Manager.
JOHN OGILVIE, Secretary.

FIRE INSURANCE.

The attention of those who are not Insured at all, or not sufficiently Insured, against loss by Fire is directed to the very moderate rates at which this Security may be obtained.

NO CHARGE IS MADE FOR A POLICY WHERE THE SUM INSURED AMOUNTS TO £300.

This Company, which has been in existence for upwards of Thirty-eight years, offers the Security of a large Paid-up Capital, and the personal responsibility of upwards of a Thousand Shareholders.

Losses are paid immediately on the adjustment of the Claim to the satisfaction of the Directors.

This old and extensive Society has since its commencement distributed amongst the representatives of Assured Parties sums exceeding in amount

Three Millions Sterling.

THE PROFITS are added to the Policies in Bonuses, proportionate to their age and endurance, and the amounts declared at past divisions have increased the sums assured by, from 12½ to 128 per Cent.

The Directors, in terms of the Constitution and Bye Laws, afford to Members the amplest facilities and privileges consistant with an equitable regard to the general interest of the Society.

In particular—

DECLARED BONUSES may be surrendered for present cash, or applied in reduction of future Premiums, the right to share in subsequent Divisions not being thereby lost.

SURRENDER VALUE is allowed upon every discontinued Policy, although no more than One Premium has been paid.

WHEN POLICIES attain the value of £50, Loans are made to Members without expense, and at a medium rate of interest, as upon First-class Securities.

MEMBERS are permitted to Travel and Reside in any part of the World, subject to moderate extra rates of Premium, suitable to the risk.

WHEN POLICIES have been five years in existence Members may apply to have them declared INDISPUTABLE on any ground whatever.

IN THE SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS the wishes and convenience of Parties are carefully attended to, and the full sums due are made payable without charge in any part of the Three Kingdoms.

The Accumulated and Invested Funds of the Society now amount to about £3,500,000.
The Annual Revenue to ..... £425,000.

THE

SCOTTISH PROVIDENT INSTITUTION

FOR

Life Assurance and Annuities,

SAINT ANDREW SQUARE, EDINBURGH.

INSTITUTED IN 1837—INCORPORATED BY ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

Trustees.

SIR WILLIAM JOHNSTON, OF KIRKHILL.

CHARLES COWAN, ESQ., OF LOGAN HOUSE. | WM. CAMPBELL, ESQ., OF TILLIECHEWAN.

A. MATHESON, ESQ., OF ARDROSS, M.P. | JAMES PEDDIE, ESQ., W.S.

The only Office which combines

MUTUAL ASSURANCE WITH MODERATE PREMIUMS.

INTENDING ASSURERS are requested to compare the amount of Premium which they would be charged in this and in any other Office. For the same yearly sum as large an Assurance may generally be secured in it from the first, as can be looked for elsewhere after many years' accumulation of bonuses. The annexed example shews that a Policy for £1,200 or £1,250 may be obtained for the Premium usually charged for £1,000 only.

A Table of Rates of all the Offices will be found in the Post Magazine Almanac, which will confirm this statement. Tables of Rates of the Scottish Offices will be sent on application.

IN ADDITION to this certain and immediate advantage,

The WHOLE PROFITS are secured to the Policy holders themselves, and the method on which they are divided is peculiarly favourable for good lives. The Surplus is reserved for those Members who survive the period at which their premiums, with accumulated interest, amount to the sums in their policies, no share being given to those by whose early death a loss is caused to the other Members. On this principle it is obvious that, notwithstanding the lowness of the Premiums, as large additions may be made to the Policies of those who participate as can be given by the ordinary system, even where the highest rates are charged.

EXAMPLES OF ANNUAL PREMIUMS TO ASSURE £100 AT DEATH.

AGE 25	AGE 30	AGE 35	AGE 40	AGE 45	AGE 50
£1 18 0	£2 1 6	£2 6 10	£2 14 9	£3 5 9	£4 1 7

Thus an Assurance of £1,000 can be obtained at age 30 for a yearly Premium of £20 15s.
This latter Premium, if paid to any of the other Mutual Offices, would secure
A Policy for £800 only, instead of £1,000.

ANNUITIES granted on favourable terms; tables of these will be sent on application.

Forms of proposal and every information and assistance may be had at the Head Office, or at any of the Local Agencies; for which, see the Directory.

JAMES WATSON, Manager.

"It was stated to you at last Annual Meeting that a careful and minute investigation had been made into the whole of the securities on which the Funds of the Institution have been from time to time invested, and that the result had been in the highest degree satisfactory..... Without recurring to the details given by Mr. Binny last year, I shall merely, as having had the honour to act as chairman of the Loan Committee during the past year, add my assurances to his, that all your funds are safely and surely invested; that no greater care or caution could have been exercised than has hitherto been shown in the selection and examination of the investments, and that we are, all of us, fully and continually alive to the importance, or rather absolute necessity, of avoiding the slightest relaxation of diligence in this fundamental department of our duties."—From address by JOHN HUNTER, Esq., Auditor of the Court of Session.

Annual Average for the last seven years, being 1,055 policies for £500,475.

THE ASSOCIATION'S POLICIES are free from several restrictions commonly imposed on Assured Lives, and confer unusual and important facilities and privileges, protecting the holders against forfeiture, &c. They are, thus, more than usually valuable, and form nearly Absolute and Indefeasible Securities for Provisions under Marriage Settlements, Debts, &c.

AN ALLOCATION OF PROFIT is made every year to Participating Policyholders of five years' standing at the date of the preceding Balance, and their share of profit is applied in reducing their next Premiums. Each Policy Holder thus enjoys during his own life his share of the Profit, and the expense of Life Insurance is very materially reduced. For example, the amount of Profit, allocated for 1859, being 37½ per cent (or 7*s.* 6*d.* per £1.), the Participating Policy Holders are called on to pay only 12*s.* 6d. per £1 of their Premiums—namely £31 5*s.* instead of £50; £12 10s. instead of £20; and £6 5*s.* instead of £10: &c. &c.

The OUTLAY for LIFE ASSURANCE may also be materially lessened by means of the half credit system. An Assurance of £500, or upwards, may be effected and kept in force by payment only of one half of the first six years' Premiums. The Unpaid Half Premiums remain (without security) in the hands of the Assured, so long as he pleases; and if not paid before death, the amount will be deducted from the sum Assured—interest thereon being, in the meantime payable annually in advance. The Assured will receive the same share of Profit as if he had paid the full Premium. The principal advantage of the system is the small outlay required. For Example an Assurance of £250 on the ordinary system, on a life of 30 requires a payment, the first year of £6 5*s.*; while, under the Half Credit System, that sum with 7s.6d. of Interest, will assure a sum of £500.

SIR,—I have great pleasure in being able to bear testimony to the superiority of your Gauge Glasses, for locomotive purposes, over any other makers that I have used, during a period of more than twenty years, on one of the principal lines in England. I have now had your Gauge Glasses in use in Ireland, on the above line, in our engines, since August, 1856, and I am glad to say, that I have not had one broken during that time; and I must say, it is a great desideratum, having good Gauge Glasses, as regards the safety of locomotive engines.

D. ROBERTSON,

POSTING MASTER TO HER MAJESTY,

H. R. H. Prince Albert, and H. R. H. the Duchess of Kent

The only Hotel in Aberdeen ever honoured with a visit from any of the Royal Patrons.

DAVID ROBERTSON takes the present opportunity of thanking those who have patronised him during the last fourteen years, and begs to acquaint them and the Public that he has taken a further lease of the Royal Hotel.

The house is at present undergoing a thorough repair, including papering, painting, &c.

Being one of the largest in Scotland, it has every variety of accommodation—making up nearly a hundred beds—numerous Private Sitting-Rooms—the largest and most elegant Coffee-Room in Scotland—and the only Hotel in Aberdeen where a Public Room is specially kept for parties with Ladies, who wish to avoid the expense of a Private Sitting-Room.

The Commercial Room, both in the present Proprietor's time and that of his predecessors, has been so numerously and respectably patronised by the Principals and representatives of Commercial Houses, from all parts of the Kingdom, as to make it superfluous to allude to it in an advertisement.

No Hotel in Aberdeen has such an extent of Stock-Room accommodation as this.

D. R. would call public attention to the fact, that, while everything furnished for the Table is of the best description, his scale of charges is as moderate as those of minor establishments.

Gentlemen supplied with first-rate SHOOTING at so much per Gun—Bed and Board included; and every information can be obtained about Fishings and Shootings.

The resources of the Stable Yard attached to the Royal Hotel are of an extent not surpassed in Scotland, insuring parties Posting of experiencing no delay in getting any number of Horses. No Posting attached to any other Hotel in Aberdeen.

Parties having cause for complaint, will much oblige D. R. by their making it known to himself.

There are always Conveyances at the Steamers and Railway Stations from the Royal Hotel to take Passengers either to the Hotel or direct to any Station.

The Royal Hotel is within two minutes' walk of the South and Deeside Stations, and three minutes of the Great North.

The elegant suite of Refreshment Rooms fitted up by the "Great North of Scotland Railway Company" at KEITH (half way between Aberdeen and Inverness), are leased by Mr. ROBERTSON; and parties travelling North or South, who have not time to visit a Hotel in Aberdeen, will find an abundant supply of every kind of Refreshment, for which sufficient time is allowed by all the Trains.

WHOLESALE PRICES ON APPLICATION.

THE KILBAGIE CHEMICAL MANURE CO.

Kincardine-on-Forth,

BEG to inform the public that they have produced Artificial Manures at reasonable prices, capable of competing with Guano, and proving their superiority over that volatile manure, by continuing to nourish series of crops for years after their application. On some soils they have proved so successful that more than the difference of the entire rent, through the increased amount of produce, has been the result.

On Turnips, the KILBAGIE CHEMICAL MANURE has been tested by John Dickson, Esq., of Saughton Mains; John Hay, Esq., Factor to Sir George Sinclair, Bart.; John Elliot, Esq., Factor to the Marquis of Stafford, and others; and the produce was equal to that from Guano. A very remarkable result has also been obtained proving its great superiority over Guano for Turnips from possessing the peculiar property of forcing them quickly into rough leaf beyond the destructive power of the fly, and thus preventing many crops from destruction.

At the following prices the Company pack the Manure in bags, and deliver at Kincardine Railway Station, or put it free on board in the harbour of Kennetpans, but these prices are subject to yearly variation:—

Potato Manure	Per Ton,	£7 10 0

This important Manure has, in every case, been found to prevent Potato Disease, and materially increase the yield.

Flesh Manure	Per Ton,	£7 10 0
Superphosphate of Lime	„	7 10 0
Dissolved Bones	„	8 10 0
Grain Manure	„	8 10 0
Grass Manure	„	8 10 0
The Kilbagie Chemical Manure	„	8 10 0
Crushed (unboiled) Bones, from ½ Inch Grist to Dust as from the Mills	„	8 10 0

From three to six cwt. to the acre may be used. When the farmer is applying Guano, he will find it very beneficial to mix with it the Kilbagie Chemical Manure, as its large per centage of free Acid will fix and retain the Ammonia which in many Guanos is found to be so volatile.

The following is the result of a trial of the several Manures, named below on Turnips (value for value), made by Mr. Thomas Wilson, on his farm at Warmit, by Newport, taking two poles of land for each trial, and using at the rate of four cwt. per acre of the best Peruvian Guano:—

I. Kilbagie Chemical Manure produced	- - -	3 cwt. 42 lbs.
II. Wool Manure, Do.	- - -	3 „ 25 „
III. Best Peruvian Guano Do.	- - -	3 „ 19 „
IV. Dissolved Bones, - - - - - - -		3 „ 16 „

To invalids and parties requiring change of air, Aberfeldy will be found peculiarly inviting, as from the mildness and dryness of the climate, it has been styled the "Devonshire" of Scotland. The drives from Aberfeldy to Taymouth Castle, Loch Tay, Loch Rannoch, Glenquaich (celebrated by Sir Walter Scott as the residence of "Vich Ian Vohr"), Pitlochrie, the Pass of Killicrankie, Blair Athole, Dunkeld, Birnam, the Sma Glen, Crieff, the Falls of Acharn, Loch Tummel, Killin, Miggerny Castle, and Glenlyon are remarkably fine. The scenery of Glenlyon is admitted to be the most magnificent in Scotland, and only requires to be known to become a great attraction to all tourists.

Amongst the objects of interest in the more immediate vicinity are the Falls of Moness, the Birks, Grandtully Castle, the original of the Waverley "Tully Veolan," the picturesque ruins of Garth Castle, one of the hunting resorts of the Ancient Scottish Kings, and Castle Menzies. The view from the Hill of Farrachil cannot be surpassed. The road by Aberfeldy is the best and most direct from Birnam and Dunkeld to Rannoch.

DANIEL M'CRAE,

GREASE MANUFACTURER, GREENOCK.

Testimonial from Captain Hyndman, Shipshusband to Messrs. Stirling, Gordon & Co., Glasgow and Captain Wallace, Master of Ship Jamaica.

Greenock, 11th October, 1858.

Sir,—The Ship Jamaica was coated with your "Patent Grease" in the beginning of April last before proceeding on a voyage to Jamaica, and as she has now returned, I have much pleasure in informing you as the result of the trial that it is decidedly the best stuff that has yet been applied for preventing fouling. Several kinds of composition (including Peacock's, and M'Innes') have been tried but your Patent Grease has proved to be much superior in keeping the bottom free from barnacles, sea-weed, &c. You will again coat the Jamaica with the "Patent Grease" before she leaves the port.—Yours truly, (Signed) JOSEPH HYNDMAN, Shipshusband.

WILLIAM WALLACE, Master.

An important feature in the "Patent Grease" is the speed with which it can be applied. A vessel can be docked one tide—coated with it—and undocked the following tide, causing thereby a great saving of time.

Other References and Testimonials can be seen on applying to the Patentee, 44, Dalrymple Street, Greenock, or to the following Agents:—Messrs. Neil, White & Co. 71, Regent Street, Liverpool; Messrs. PATENT ASPHALTE FELT for ROOFING,

AS IMPROVED BY THE ORIGINAL INVENTOR AND PATENTEE,

And Patronised by Her Majesty's Woods and Forests,

Most of the Nobility, Gentry, and Agriculturists, and many Members of the Royal Agricultural Societies of England, Scotland, and Ireland.

Is perfectly impervious to rain, snow, and frost, and a non-conductor of heat, and has been proved, by long and extensive experience, in all climates, to be superior to all other descriptions of Roofing, not only on account of its elasticity, lightness, economy, and durability, but also because it is a perfectly weather tight covering, and can be laid on with great facility by farm-servants, or any unpractised persons.

Of the many purposes for which the Patent Asphalte Felt has been used, the following may be mentioned: For Roofing Churches, Houses, Cottages, Verandahs, Farm Buildings, Cattle and Sheep Sheds, and every description of Building, in lieu of slates, tiles, thatch, &c., and for lining Granaries and Stores (as rats or mice will not touch it), the inside and outside of Walls, Wooden Buildings, and for protecting Ceilings under Floorings from wet and damp, at the same time deadening sound.

For Covering Conservatories and Garden Sheds and Frames, being (from its imperviousness to frost), a protective material for Plants, Seeds, Flowers, &c.; for Thatching Corn and Hay Ricks, making a permanent covering for many years, and thereby effecting an annual saving of straw.

The price of the Felt is only ONE PENNY PER SQUARE FOOT, being considerably less than half the Price of Slates, Tiles, Thatch, &c. There is also a very great saving in the wood work, as the Felt, from its lightness, does not require half the weight of timber that slates or tiles do, nor does it require nearly so much fall or descent; and there is a further saving in the expense of carriage and labour, in the latter particularly, as a moderate-sized house can be roofed in by the felt in a few hours; nor is it, like slates, &c., liable to breakage. The Felt can be manufactured of any required length, by 32 inches wide.

Patent Sheathing Felt, for Ships' Bottoms, under wood or metal.

NON-CONDUCTING DRY HAIR FELT, for Covering Steam Boilers, Cylinders, Pipes, &c., which effects a saving of 25 per Cent in fuel.

PETERHEAD,

Inventors and Sole Proprietors of the New Sowing Machine for Grain and Grass Seeds.

J. S. & Co. in returning thanks to their numerous friends and customers for their liberal support during the past 25 years, beg to call their attention, and the Agriculturist generally, to the superiority of their New Sowing Machine, of which they have now furnished 96, all of which have given the best of satisfaction.

1st.—It is light and portable, the seed box, 20 feet in length, being made to turn on a pivot along-side the horse, and can pass through a gate of 6 feet 10 inches. 2nd.—The slides or regulating plates work on the principle of parallel rulers, the seed having but one plate to come through, whereas (in every other Machine hitherto known) there are two plates. Its propelling motion is simple, and consequently not liable to get out of order. 3rd.—It is fitted with an index for regulating quantity, and can be set to sow from ½ bushel to 7 bushels per acre, and can shut and open one or both slides 30 times in one minute. It gained the 1st Prize at the Royal Northern Society's Show in 1857, was highly commended by the Judges at the Highland Society's Show at Glasgow and Aberdeen in 1857 and 1858. J. S. & Co.'s Farm Cart gained the 1st Prize at the Highland Society's Show at Aberdeen in 1858.

JOHN M'INTYRE,

In returning his most sincere thanks to his numerous Friends, Tourists and the Public generally, for the very liberal share of patronage he has received since opening the above Hotel, begs most respectfully to intimate that, with a view to meet the rapidly increasing traffic, and to enhance the comfort of Visitors, he has this year made extensive and elegant additions to this far-famed Establishment, by which it now contains Sixty Bed-rooms, all fitted up in the most comfortable and superb style, Two Large and Commodious Public-rooms, Parlours and Dining-rooms, all most handsomely furnished; also, a Drawing-room (in which there is a first-rate Piano-forte), finished in a style of taste of which the most fastidious will be more than satisfied. From the Drawing-room one of the most magnificent views in the Highlands is to be obtained. Pleasure Boats attended by experienced Boatmen, for the benefit of Parties residing at the Hotel, are placed, free of charge, on Lochs Vennachar and Achray. The "Gallant Grey" Stage Coach will commence early in June to run, in connection with the Trossachs New Hotel, to and from the Callander Station of the Dunblane, Doune and Callander Railway, and the Loch Katrine Steamer.

From the extensive accommodation now afforded and the unexceptional manner in which the business of the Establishment is conducted, the "New Trossachs" takes its stand as a First-class Hotel, unsurpassed by any North of the Tweed.

JOHN SHIRRA,

Begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he has Opened that Large and Commodious Inn at Port of Monteath, Perthshire, and from the large and extensive accommodation he has, and the strict attention to the comforts of those who may patronise him, he hopes to merit a share of public favor.

He may also state that there is a large and beautiful Loch close at hand, where his customers may enjoy themselves by fishing and boating. The beauty of the surrounding scenery cannot be surpassed, and as the Railway is now opened to that place, there is every opportunity afforded to Visitors. Besides, there is the finely wooded Island of Inchmahome, picturesquely situated near the centre of the Lake, and containing considerable ruins, famous in olden times as a priory, and the family residence of the Earls of Monteath, where Mary, Queen of Scots, found a safe retreat after the battle of Pinkie; her favourite bower is still to be seen.

NEW RATES FOR LIFE INSURANCE.

These Premiums have been adopted by the Directors after much consideration, with a view to suit that large class of individuals who desire to secure a certain sum to their Representatives at the smallest annual expense to themselves, as well as those whose immediate object is to afford security to lenders, or otherwise to facilitate money arrangements. A most favourable contrast with the Rates of Mutual Assurance Societies will at once be perceived on reference to these Rates:—For example, a person at the age of 30 may secure £1,200. to his family, however early his death may happen, by an annual payment of £24. 19s., while the same Insurance in a Mutual Assurance Society would cost £30. 13s., besides a large entrance fee. A certain annual return of Premium, amounting to £5. 14s., is thus secured, which, if disposed of by an additional Insurance, would secure a further sum of £275., making in all £1,475., at less expense than an Insurance of £1,200. would cost with a Matual Assurance Company; a consideration which, with many, will outweigh the expectation of future contingent profits.

Parties desirous of sharing in the Profits of the Company, may do so by paying a higher rate on the Mutual Principle, but free from all risk—the Capital of the Company being pledged to the Policy Holders, while about 84 per cent. of the whole Profits belong to the Assured, and are periodically divided among Policies of five years' standing and upwards.

Every facility given to effecting Insurances.

Loans granted on the security of the Company's Policies to the extent of their value.

Parties allowed to pass, in time of peace, from one part of Europe to another, without additional Premium.

No Entrance Money charged.

ANNUITIES.

Parties desirous of Investing Money, to receive an Immediate Annuity, will find the Rates given by this Company liberal.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Insurances are effected on Liberal Terms.
Farm Stock and Crop are Insured Free from Government Duty.
Damage occasioned by Lightning is made good.

THE WITNESS,

ESTABLISHED 1840.

A Liberal, but not party Newspaper; is a first-class Family Paper, advocating sound Protestant principles and social economics, and admitting nothing into its columns that is not strictly moral in its character. It circulates extensively amongst the Nobility, Landed Proprietors, Clergy, and the Middle Classes, and is a highly advantageous medium for giving extensive publicity to Advertisements relating to Literature and Science, Education, Property, Insurance, Commerce, Agriculture, &c. It was edited by the late HUGH MILLER from its commencement until his death in 1856; and several of the works of that eminent man first passed through its columns, and acquired for it a degree of celebrity as a Literary and Scientific Journal not reached by any other Paper in Scotland. Mr. Miller's successor, Mr. PETER BAYNE, is the author of "The Christian Life," and "Essays; Biographical, Critical, and Miscellaneous," which have met with the most flattering reception by the reviewers throughout the United Kingdom.

The Life Policies issued in 1858 were nearly three times as many as those issued in 1857; and in the Fire department for the same year, the new business transacted produced premiums to the amount of £8,883, while the new business of 1857 produced only £3,716. The increase of Fire Duty paid by the Office in 1858 was greater than that paid by any other London Office.

The great deficiency in sound religious instruction, and the neglect of the more solid parts of English Education, too commonly met with in Young Ladies' Boarding-Schools, are evils which have been long felt and deplored.

It is with a view of remedying these deficiencies that St. Margaret's College has been established. Its objects accordingly are:—

1*st.*—The careful and systematic training of its inmates in sound religious principles.

2*dly.*—The combination of a solid English Education, with the acquirement of more ornamental attainments.

3*dly.*—The removal of the ordinary discomforts and temptations of school life, by modelling the whole arrangements and discipline of the College upon the plan of a well-regulated family.

Crieff possesses every advantage that can be desired for an establishment of this kind. Situated in the beautiful vale of Strathearn, the salubrity of its climate and the grandeur of its scenery can hardly be surpassed. The Crieff Junction Railway now renders the communication with Edinburgh, London, and all parts of the country, both speedy and direct.

STEAD'S PLACE, LEITH WALK,

EDINBURGH,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEPOT FOR

INDIA RUBBER MACHINE BELTING,

Steam-Packing, India Rubber Pump Valves, Clacks, &c.

India Rubber Machine Belting has a perfectly smooth and even surface; it seldom requires tightening more than once; it will always run straight, with a perfect bearing on the pulleys, by which a power of 20 per cent. is gained over the best Leather Belts. It will stand a heat of 300 degrees Fahrenheit without being affected, and the severest cold will not stiffen it, nor diminish its pliability. It can be constantly run in damp places, or exposed to the weather without injury, and is therefore invaluable for Paper Mills, Saw Mills, Mines, Machine Shops, Grain Elevators, and all exposed places. The cost of Wide Belts is at least one-third, and in some cases only one-half, that of Leather; thus a Five-Ply India Rubber Belt, twelve inches wide, is considered equal to a double Leather Belt of the same width:—the price of the Leather Belt per foot is 9s., while that of the India Rubber is only 4s. 6d.

TESTIMONIALS.

Messrs. ROBERT M'FARLANE & SON, DALMORE MILLS, 30th May, 1859.

Dear Sirs,—We have found India Rubber Belts give less trouble, and, we think, will be more durable, than any other kind of Belt in use among Paper Makers.

We are, yours truly, WM. SOMMERVILLE & SON.

Messrs. ROBERT M'FARLANE & SON, ROYAL PAPER MILL, Wandsworth, 2nd June, 1859.

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of 30th ultimo, I have great pleasure in bearing my testimony to the very superior quality of the Indian-Rubber Belting over every other kind I have tried. For all purposes it answers admirably, but in particular where there is considerable friction I have found it most advantageous; and it lasts much longer than either Leather, Woollen, or Gutta Percha.

I am, yours truly (pro WM. M'MURRAY), J. M'M.

HAMPTON AND ROUGHWAY MILLS, near Tonbridge, Kent,

Messrs. ROBERT M'FARLANE & SON, 18th June, 1859.

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your favour of the 31st May. From the six months' trial I have had of the India Rubber Mill Bands, I am most favourably impressed with their value; they stretch very little, and work much slacker than any other Band I have used—consequently take less power. I am using them in warm situations, where Gutta Percha was very troublesome from stretching. From my experience, I consider I am justified in using them freely in both my Mills. I am, dear Sirs, yours truly, BENJN. BROWN.

SPRINGFIELD MILLS, Loanhead, near Edinburgh,

Messrs. ROBERT M'FARLANE & SON, Edinburgh. 24th Septr. 1859.

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of yesterday, we have much pleasure in bearing testimony to the superiority of the India Rubber Belting. We have used it now for a considerable time in all parts of our Mill, and find it answers our purpose much better than any other kind whatever. We are, yours truly, (Signed) JAMES DURHAM & SONS.

Messrs. ROBERT M'FARLANE & SON, NEW BATTLE MILLS, Dalkeith, 24th Sept. 1859.

Gentlemen,—We have used the India Rubber Belts at our Works here for the last four or five years, and find them preferable to all others, both as regards the little trouble they give, and their lasting qualities. We have them at work in various widths from three to ten inches, both on fast and slow speeds; and we are now using them, instead of gearing, for driving Rag Engines. We have tried both Leather and Gutta Percha Belts, but find the India Rubber ones manufactured in Edinburgh much superior to either for all practical purposes.

We are, yours truly (pp. ROBERT CRAIG & Co.), A. W. A.

The Coy's Steam Coal has been proved one of the most Strong Heating, Durable Coals at present wrought in Scotland, and being of a firm, solid nature, are very suitable for Shipping, or for Sea-going Steam Vessels, as they stow away in much less room, and have much greater last, besides raising and keeping the steam up better than Coals of a lighter and bulkier nature.

The Limerigg "LADY GRANGE" Coal is an excellent Coal for general Household use, of a very Durable, Clean, Caking Quality, making a very cheerful burning fire.

MERCHANTS DEALT WITH ON LIBERAL TERMS.

Shipments made and Steam Companies supplied at prices, which, considering the quality of the Coal, cannot but prove economical.

TERMS MODERATE.

JAMES BROWNING, M.A. Head Master.

Edinburgh, August, 1859.

On the 29th of last month, I witnessed the Public Examination of all the Classes in the Academy conducted by JAMES BROWNING, Esq. M.A., at Bonnington Park, Peebles. In English Grammar and Elocution—In British and General History—in French, Arithmetic and Geometry —the Pupils displayed proficiency seldom equalled or approached in Educational Institutions from which Classics are excluded; while in the Latin and Greek Languages and Literature, they displayed accuracy, depth, variety, and command of knowledge, which were never surpassed in any of our Metropolitan Grammar Schools. In fact, the results exhibited on the occasion to which I refer, strengthened a conviction I have entertained for many years, that Mr. BROWNING is at once an accomplished scholar, and one of the best teachers in the kingdom. GUTTA PERCHA

MILL BANDS.

The Gutta Percha Company beg to state that the increasing demand for the Gutta Percha Strapping for Driving Bands, Lathe Straps, &c., fully justifies the strong recommendations they have everywhere received.

Their durability and strength—permanent contractibility and uniformity of substance—their non-susceptibility of injury from contact with oils, grease, acids, alkalies, or water—and the facility with which the only joint required can be made in Bands of from 200 to 300 feet long—render them superior to leather for almost all working purposes, and decidedly more economical.

TESTIMONIALS:—

From MELLING & SON, Rainhill Iron Works, near St. Helens, Lancashire.

In reply to your inquiry, we have much pleasure in bearing testimony to the efficiency of the Gutta Percha Driving Bands. We have now had them in use for a period of two years, and have always found them, when properly applied, to give general satisfaction.

From HALL & GORTON, Tottington Hall Cotton Mills, near Bury.

Your letter of the 31st of August is to hand, and in answer respecting the use of your Gutta Percha Bands, I cannot give you a better proof of our approval of them, in preference to Leather Straps, than having given an order for another, yesterday, to be in readiness in case of accident. They are decidedly preferable to the old Straps, and we can recommend them with the greatest confidence to any person for Driving Straps.

From NELSON KNOWLES & CO. Tottington, near Bury.

In reply to yours, we are using the Gutta Percha as Straps to turn our Dye Vats, Winches, Hydro-Extractor, Lathes, &c. We think it a very great improvement on any other. We also have tried it in etching on rollers, through the aquafortis, when engraving, and find it answers our most sanguine expectations in that respect, being perfectly impervious to the action of the nitric acid of the strength required for our purpose.

☞ GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES.

I. M. SINGER & CO.'S
AMERICAN SEWING MACHINE

Has received Eighteen Medals from Eighteen different States, in Exposition in the United States, and the Medal of Honour at Paris "Exposition Universelle."

With the great increase in our facilities for Manufacturing, which we have recently made, we are now prepared to sell our latest improved Machines at a great reduction from the former prices.

The Practical utility and superiority of SINGER'S SEWING MACHINES over all others is well known to the public, and the fact is established beyond a doubt, that, in every branch of industry where sewing is to be done, these Machines can be used with immense profit. As the speed of the railway train is to travelling on foot, so is sewing with Singer's Machines compared with hand-sewing. No Tailor, Shoemaker, Hat or Cap Manufacturer, Dressmaker, Staymaker, Carriage Trimmer, Saddler, Sack or Bag Manufacturer, should be without them. These Machines are simple in construction, easy operate, are very strong and durable and will not get out of order, except by gross carelessness—they being the only kind of Sewing Machines by which every variety of work, coarse and fine, can be perfectly executed. Many inferior and worthless Sewing Machines are manufactured and sold under various names. Several attempts are being made, by a few adroit Artizans, to copy and manufacture SINGER'S SEWING MACHINES.

We would caution the Public against purchasing such Machines, as they are inferior and quite worthless. For all manufacturing purposes, "SINGER'S GENUINE AMERICAN SEWING MACHINES" can safely defy competition. Wherever the subject is practically understood, it is well known that it is far cheaper to pay the price asked for these Machines than to take any spurious imitation of them, even as a gift, as it has been proved by parties who have already purchased, and found them utterly incompetent to perform the work required of them, and have compelled the Vendors of such Machines to take them back and refund the Money. The result in purchasing cheap and inferior Sewing Machines is disappointment and pecuniary loss to those who do so; but we are confident those who purchase SINGER'S SEWING MACHINES will not meet with disappointment or loss, for they alone have been found to satisfy the wants of the Public. Our Machines are warranted to be all they are represented.

SINGER'S NEW FAMILY SEWING MACHINE

Has achieved a great degree of popularity, and a merited appreciation, and in all private families where there is much sewing to be done, these Machines are invaluable assistance. They will execute as much work in one hour as can be done by hand in ten; makes a beautiful back-stitch on both sides of the work, which will not ravel or rip, and will surpass hand-sewing in durability and strength. As an elegant piece of furniture, nothing can be purchased for a like sum of money so ornamental as one of our Cabinet Machines. The Ladies are specially invited to call at our Office, and see their usefulness demonstrated.

The Citizens of Glasgow, and Public in general, are requested to call at No. 65, BUCHANAN STREET, Glasgow, where we shall be pleased to exhibit our Sewing Machines, and show their great superiority in every branch of business.

N.B.—The Transverse Shuttle Machine, which is of an entirely new pattern, and in size midway between the Manufacturing and the Family Machines, has just been received, and is now on Exhibition.

II.—Moderate Rates of Premiums, with and without Profits for whole of Life, and for short periods.

III.—"Half-Credit System of Assurance."—A new adaptation of the Bonus system recently originated by this Company. Under this plan the Assured are allowed Credit for seven years for one-half of the Premium exigible at entry, and at the end of the seven years are enabled to keep up the Policy at a very moderate rate of Premium; whilst even that moderate premium begins immediately thereafter to be reduced, and continues to be further reduced yearly to the end of the party's life. At death, after the expiry of the term of credit, the sum in the Policy is payable free of all debt or claim upon it by the Company.

IV.—Special privileges as regards voyaging and residence abroad on terms highly advantageous to the assured, on the conditions stated in the Company's pamphlets.

No Entry Money Charged.—Medical Fees paid by the Company.

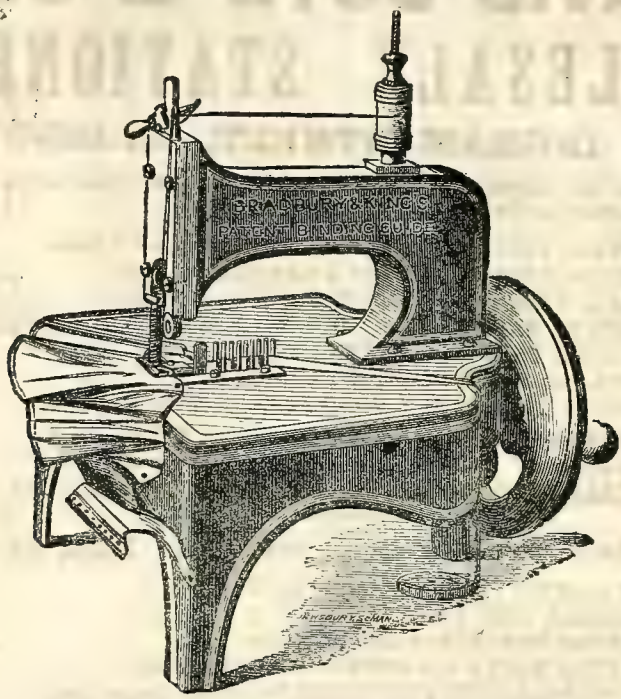
FOR SEWING MACHINES,

BRADBURY & KING'S PATENT.

No. 252. Dated 27th January, 1859.



The above invention is for the purpose of BINDING the EDGES of any material, such as STAYS, BOOTS SHOES, HATS, CAPS, COATS, VESTS, TROUSERS, MANTLES, BAGS, CARPETS, RUGS, &c., &c., &c. The work is more durable, besides making a neat and more finished appearance than when done by hand, and the saving of time is immense.

The material is forced into the binding and held firm until sewed. The needle cannot miss the edge of binding. Any curve or angle can be sewn a uniform distance from the edge. The same Guide is adjustable to different widths of tape. The apparatus can be applied to the various sewing machines at present in use, and taken off when required for ordinary stitching.

W. & J. NORRIS,

WATERLOO PATENT ANCHOR AND CHAIN MANUFACTORY,

75, 77, 79, 81 & 83, Norfolk Street, LIVERPOOL,

In calling the attention of Captains and Owners of Ships to their large Stock of ANCHORS and CHAINS, Messrs. WM. & JOHN NORRIS beg to state that their NEW PATENT ANCHORS are now fast superseding anything hitherto invented. Instead of being made of solid lumps of iron, which when subjected to heat cannot be got to amalgamate in all its parts, and consequently are liable to imperfections, which are not apparent till put in use, these New Anchors are composed of best scrap hammered iron plates, placed longitudinally, and fastened in such a secure manner as that every part adds to the strength of the other, and thus presents a security against breaking and twisting that no other Anchor possesses.

Among other testimonials, Messrs. WM. & JOHN NORRIS have received the following from two American Captains who were supplied in Liverpool some months ago, and are now in London.

"London, 23rd September, 1857.

We have great pleasure in certifying that we have used Messrs. Norris & King's Patent Anchor under very trying circumstances, and have found them to possess great holding powers, to be extremely strong, and comparatively light and easy to handle.
